Nixon Campaigns For New Majority

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — In the first appearance of his campaign for a second White House term, President Nixon today pictured critics of his defense spending plans as gambling with world peace.

Nixon, in a speech prepared for the annual American Legion convention, made no direct mention of his Democratic opponent, Sen. George McGovern, who spoke from the same platform Wednesday.

However, the President cited military programs that McGovern would curb or scrap and described defense policy as "one of the major issues of this election year."

He said that if some of these economies were adopted "America would become the second strongest power in the world."

He said: "We have economized and will continue to economize on military spending whenever and wherever it is safe to do so. But I never have gambled — and I never will gamble — with the safety of the American people under a false banner of economy. Lasting peace is bulit only on strength."

First Stop

For Nixon, it was the first stop on a cross-country tour taking him into Illinois, Michigan and California on the day after accepting the Republican nomination for another four years in the presidency.

The President told jubilantly cheering Republicans at the closing session of their national convention Wednesday night that he seeks "a new American majority" that will win the election and build peace "the world can enjoy for generations to come."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew remained behind in the convention city of Miami Beach, Fla., to answer newsmen's questions before heading to Minneapolis for an address before the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He won the GOP renomination Wednesday night with one dissenting vote and two abstentions and got a boost for the 1976 presidential nomination from Mrs. Nixon.

Head for Michigan

Nixon planned to head next for Utica, Mich., to dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School before flying on to a welcome home from his San Clemente, Calif., neighbors.

Before the legionnaires, Nixon reported that on his history-making journeys to Peking and Moscow earlier in the year, "I found a desire for peace."

He added that hopes for peace "will not become a reality if we heed the honest but misguided voices of those who say we should weaken America today and naively hope for peace tomorrow."

Nixon concluded by saying: "Let us join together, not as Democrats and Republicans, but as Americans, to keep America strong."

McGovern frequently has urged sharp cutbacks in military spending, but in his appearance before the legionnaires he told his polite but subdued audience that, if elected, the United States would never become a second-rate power.

Nixon cited some of the economies called for by his critics and declared that if they were adopted, "America would become the second strongest power in the world."

He said that "most important of all" unilateral abandonment of development of the B1 bomber and multiple-warhead offensive missiles would mean "we can never hope to make further progress in arms limitations with the Soviet Union."

"The Soviet Union faced with an America stripping its military strength unilaterally would have no incentive whatever to cut back its own programs," he said.

Never No. 2

"My guiding principle has been, and will continue to be, that America will never be the second strongest nation in the world," Nixon declared.

As the confident Republicans headed home from a convention marked by three days of harmony with barely a discordant note, antiwar protesters also began to leave after failing in their effort to stop the GOP proceedings.

More than 900 demonstrators were arrested Wednesday night, 300 outside the Doral Beach Hotel headquarters of the Committee for the Re-election of the President. Police used a crowd-control gas known as CS to disperse roving bands

Loyalty Grows From Fragile Contacts

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — And so it was done.

Delegation Chairman Robert Warren gave out a deep, throaty cheer as he swung Wisconsin's banner on the convention floor. Richard Nixon stood 50 yards away, an armful of Spiro Agnew at his side. Then Pat Nixon came to the podium, glaring pink suit even brighter under the quartz lights.

Rep. Glenn Davis of Waukesha cheered with Warren as the vice president introduced Nixon. He threw to the floor the unfinished crossword puzzle, 40 minutes of ink stains splotched upon it.

Strange Convention

"I'm stumped." Davis had been saying as Nixon's introduction burst upon the floor. "What's a four-letter-word for 'fish with gaff through ice'?"

"Strange convention," state Nixon re-election Chairman John MacIver of Milwaukee had been saying.

"No one is in the aisles."

"How did I first meet Richard Nixon?" MacIver had said earlier. "Well, it wasn't until 1967. I'd never been involved in a presidential campaign; I'd run Warren Knowles' campaigns, but I'd never become involved in a presidential campaign.

"Then a couple of friends suggested that I ought to meet him, at least. His apartment was in the same building as Nelson Rockefeller's.

Elevator Stuck

"On the way upstairs, the elevator stuck. Someone reached for the phone, but then somebody else stopped him, said he shouldn't. What would happen if the fire department was called. What kind of 'non-candidate' would that make Nixon?

"So we finally got through to the janitor, and he got the elevator up to about three feet of the next floor, and we climbed out. We walked through an apartment and up to Nixon's place.

"We found out later that the apartment belonged to the William Randolph Hearsts. The people were very nice about it, though.

Out of such fragile contracts are strong political ties formed.

Capitol Steps

"The only time I have ever really met him, face to face, to talk to was on the state Capitol steps in 1959," said Assembly minority leader Harold Froehlich of Appleton, as he sat on the floor as a delegate, listening to Agnew's nomination.

"It was very early, before the campaign had even started. I was in college, and I got a couple of friends, and we went down to have a look.

"He walked right by and shook my hand and all I could think of to say was, "we're with you all the way."

Davis, the veteran 9th District congressman is perhaps the only member of the Wisconsin delegation here who knows Nixon well. He is one of the few whose commitment is built on more than a genuinely sincere handshake with him. It is built on a philosophical agreement.

"When did I first meet him?" says Davis, chomping the unlighted butt of a cigar.

"It was either on the fifth of May, 1947, or the next day. That's when I was sworn in after my special election. I really got to know him when Don Jackson — he was a congressman from California — and I formed the Chowder and Marching Society," he says of the classic and most powerful of the secret social and political fraternities of Congress.

"In 1949, I knew we had to do something to kill the ranking veteran's pension bill that would have given everybody whoever served a pension for life.

"It was on a Monday, and I talked to Jackson on the floor of the House. We picked up and went out into the speaker's lobby and right then and there we picked the other 13 charter members of the society.

Other Members

"Dick Nixon was one of them, so was John Byrnes from the class of '45, and Gerry Ford from the class of '47.

"We were looking for younger guys with some guts. Most of the fellows we picked were fellows who had actually been in the service. We wanted good guys, the ones who we knew could stand up under pressure and who we thought would have some influence.

"Nixon was already becoming

Consumers Paying More Than Ever Before for Meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef and pork cost more than ever before in July while overall supermarket food prices rose 1.8 per cent, the Agriculture Department said today.

Supermarket prices for the year are running 4.5 per cent more than in 1971, the department said.

Most of the gain was attributed to higher prices paid farmers and mark-ups by retailers.

The overall retail-food-price increase was slightly more than the 1.2 per cent reported Tuesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The department explained its meat index was for the entire month while BLS covered prices only in the first week of July, meaning prices rose through July.

Beef Price

In all, a "market basket" list of form-produced food, theoritically enough to feed an average family for an entire year, cost $23 more than in June—a record of $1,322.

Average beef prices for all cuts soared to more than $1.17 per pound in July, compared with $1.13½ in June and the previous record of slightly less than $1.16 last February and March. A year ago beef was about $1.05 per pound.

Pork averaged a record 85.6 cents per pound, compared with 82.0 in June. The previous high was 82.1 cents in January 1970.

Compared with a year earlier, consumers in July paid 12.0 per cent more for beef and 19.9 per cent more for pork.

The July report showed the price spread for beef rose the most between wholesalers and retailers. Farmers received the same as in June, and wholesalers who sell carcass beef actually received a little less.

Prices of live beef cattle have dropped from recent high marks and the wholesale beef price also has edged down. Much of that reduction, however, was not included in the July figures.

More Cattle

Nixon administration officials predict retail beef prices also will begin to drop, but many expect them to remain higher than last year despite the larger supply of fattened cattle going to market.

The "farm value" of a pound of beef in retail stores in July was 77.5 cents, unchanged from June, the report said. However, the spread between the farm and consumer was 39.8 cents, compared with 36.0 in June.

The farm value is not the price producers get for live cattle, but it is their share of what a consumer spends for a pound of beef. It takes almost 2.3 pounds of steer on the hoof to make one pound of beef in the meat counter.

Farmers got $16 of the market-basket increase mainly because of higher prices for hogs, chickens, eggs and some fresh vegetables. Middlemen who transport, process and sell food accounted for $7 of the rise.

Compared with $528 in June, the farmers' share of the market basket in July was $544. The middlemen received $771 in June and $778 last month.

A dozen eggs averaged 49.6 cents per dozen, up from 45.8 cents in June. However, they were 3.1 per cent cheaper than a year earlier.

Compared with June, lower prices also were reported for milk, bread, tomatoes and lettuce.

New Indictments Filed in Slaying Of Yablonskis

WASHINGTON (AP) — New indictments in connection with the murder of Joseph A. Yablonski have been returned against four officials of the United Mine Workers union.

The indictments, handed down by a Cleveland grand jury Wednesday, allege that the four encouraged false testimony before a grand jury.

They are Albert E. Pass, secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19, William Prater, 53; Chester Philpot, 50, of Straight Creek, Ky., and Ernest Stults, 60, of Grimsley, Tenn.

Pass also is a member of the union's international executive board. Prater, Philpot and Stults are field representatives for District 19, which covers parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Pass and Prater already are being held in a Pittsburgh jail on other charges in connection with the murder of Yablonski, his wife and daughter, who were found dead in their Western Pennsylvania home on Jan. 5, 1970.

A total of eight persons now have been charged in connection with the slayings.

Yablonski was defeated on Dec. 9, 1969 by incumbent W. A. "Tony" Boyle in an election for the union presidency. A new election has since been ordered by the courts.

Assessment by U.S. Military

Several More Years in Vietnam Predicted

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — High Air Force officials believe North Vietnam still is importing considerable amounts of vital military supplies despite the U.S. bombing, and say American involvement in the war could last several more years.

These officials estimate that anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent of North's petroleum, ammunition and other war goods—as compared with pre-bombing amounts—are getting past the American bombing and mine blockade

They said it is enough to sustain, on a limited basis at least, Hanoi's war effort.

And, they say, it is conceivable that if efforts to negotiate a settlement to the war fail, the American bombing from bases in Thailand and Navy aircraft carriers could last for some time possibly for three or more years.

Small Groups

This assessment, given to a small group of newsmen Wednesday night, was perhaps one of the more sobering reports on the situation since the North Vietnamese Easter offensive began.

Although the Pentagon never has asserted that the bombing would shut off the flow of war goods to North Vietnam, administration and military officials have claimed that the flow had been reduced to a trickle.

It was stated in Wednesday night's assessment that the amount of supplies reaching communist forces in the South has been drastically curtailed.

Before the U.S. resumed the daily bombing of the North in April, Hanoi received 250,000 tons of supplies a month by sea and thousands more by rail.

Senior Air Force officials say the North Vietnamese by using truck shuttles and railroad bypasses, still are able to bring in substantial amounts of supplies from China.

Petroleum Pipeline

Also, the communists have built one petroleum pipeline from the Chinese border and are working on a second. U.S. planes have bombed pumping stations along the route but the North Vietnamese quickly rebuild, the officials say

Supplies are also coming in by sea from Chinese ships anchored offshore which are safe from U.S. air attacks. The goods are then transferred to small North Vietnamese lighters or barges able to avoid the American minefields but vulnerable to U.S planes. Because of the difficulty in finding these barges, officials say enough get through to keep up a small but steady flow of war material.

Nevertheless, they say the bombing has put heavy pressure on the North and believe that this, coupled with Saigon's ability to hold its ground, will force Hanoi into following one of three options

—Call off the offensive and withdraw its forces

—Continue the attack until losses of manpower and supplies become too severe, forcing a return to guerrilla warfare.

—Push the attack even harder in the coming weeks until south, before the U.S. presidential election in November and then press for a negotiated settlement

Mrs. Maier Nearly Ousted By Democrats

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee County Democratic organization restrained an attempt Wednesday night to expel Mayor Henry Maier's wife from the party because of her endorsement of President Nixon.

Mary Ann Maier, having complained about hospitality at the Democratic National Convention, make a seconding speech for Nixon's nomination at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach

She has said she intends to remain a member of the Democratic party.

Angry Milwaukee Democrats at a county council meeting fell one vote short of the necessary two-thirds to suspend rules and get a vote on an expulsion resolution. The vote to suspend was 36-19.

The resolution sponsors said they will try again at a September meeting.

Eight years ago, the council expelled an alderman who had endorsed Barry Goldwater as the GOP presidential nominee.

Is Laird the One for '76?

Convention Rumors Point to Potential Presidential Bid

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The feeling on the floor is that the hidden story of the 1972 Republican National Convention may be the emergence of Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird as a prospective candidate for the GOP's presidential nod in 1976.

State delegates talking with a number of other delegations during the course of the convention found a marked interest in Laird as possible alternative to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in four years.

One ranking national political editor told a top Wisconsin delegate — in the presence of a Wisconsin reporter — that Laird's possibilities were strongly propelled by the convention events

Another Wisconsin delegate spent more than two hours deep inside the restricted headquarters of President Nixon's campaign organization talking about prospects for Laird in 1976 — at the instance of a top Washington operative for Nixon.

On instructions of Nixon, Laird did not attend the convention

To Your Good Health

Trust Your Doctor About Blood Pressure

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a cheerful, neurotic music teacher, age 55. The doctor says I am in excellent health but I have high blood pressure I have lost 20 pounds take medication and watch my diet.

Thosteson

Several of my friends have high blood pressure and we compare notes When theirs is, say 160-90, they take off from work to rest under (they say) their doctors' orders

Last week mine was 158-118 and my doctor says I'm doing great. When I report my blood pressure, they tell me to go to bed and change doctors.

I respect my doctor who has taken care of me and my husband for nearly 35 years, and he tells me to keep on working. So should I keep quiet about my blood pressure "score?" — Mrs. G. N.

Managing a patient with high blood pressure can vary quite a bit depending on a lot of things, including the patient's emotional make-up, his general health, whether he is making some gradual progress and so on.

However, it is extremely unusual for a patient to be told to stop work and go to bed just because pressure reached 160-90. Frankly, it sounds to me as though your friends are using a pretty flimsy excuse to stay away from work.

Let's admit that your pressure is higher than ideal — but you are doing something about it other than ducking work I would, most certainly follow your doctor's instructions and take your friends' free 'advice' with a grain of salt.

Yes, I'd keep quiet about your score," and if your friends do any insisting, lie to them with a clear conscience. It is quite probable their meddling is upsetting you enough so that your nervous tension is adding a few (or more than a few) points to your blood pressure readings.

Meantime, if you haven't read it already, I suggest you send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope for my booklet, 'Controlling Your Blood Pressure." Just understanding the condition and knowing that you are taking the proper steps to treat it should give you a little more self-confidence and less worrying about what your friends say

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The other day I was reading about an operation to smooth facial scars, called dermabrasion. Can you tell me how old one should be to have this done, the price and where it can be done? — P. M

Age isn't particularly significant. Keep in mind, however, that dermabrasion is for relatively superficial scars and blemishes and won't remove large scars or pits.

The cost varies depending on how much area has to be treated. Your family doctor can refer you to a plastic surgeon or to a dermatologist, since many dermatologists use dermabrasion

It amounts to removing the surface layers of skin and allowing a new surface layer to form. It's excellent in certain cases, but it isn't the end-all of blemishes that some folks think it is. So talk to a skin specialist or plastic surgeon first before making up your mind whether it The doctor said I should get it fixed Do you think I should at my age? — G W.

Dear Dr Thosteson I am 70 and my health is good. I work right along, do a lot of walking and go dancing once a week.

In the last few months I have had a hernia on the right side.

Yes. Your doctor recommended it and he knows your general condition. A hernia does not improve by itself. It gets worse.

Headaches! You can beat them Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of the booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use Zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dollar's Record Since The Truman Years

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Let's say the U.S. dollar was worth 100 cents in buying power at the time the 25 million of you in the muct analyzed under-25-year-old age bracket were born. Let's arbitrarily assume the base year of a 100 cents dollar was 1948, for three very good reasons.

First, as 1972 is, so 1948 was an election year (the Truman upset). Second, 1948 is a recent enough year to have meaning to today's record numbers of first-time voters as well as to those of us who are older. Third, 1948 was the first comparatively normal economic year after the explosive inflation of World War II, and thus, it is a fair yardstick against which to measure cost of living trends since.

Q. How much has your dollar lost in buying power in the 24 years since 1948?

A: The dollar that was worth 100 cents in the marketplace in 1948 is worth only 57.6 cents now. Close to half of its purchasing power has been erased by the inflation of this modern era.

Q. In terms of prices, how much has your cost of living increased in this span?

A. The food, clothing and other items for which your parents paid $10 when you were born in 1948 cost more than $17.35 now.

Q. How much value has this dollar lost since the Vietnam war escalation began in 1965 and turned what had been a magnificently balanced economic expansion into a nightmare of inflation?

Porter

A. The cumulative loss in the 1948 dollar has been 42.4 cents. Of that, 19.4 cents has been wiped out just since January 1965.

Q. How much of that 19.4 cents has been lost under the Nixon administration so far?

A. 9.9 cents.

Q. And what has been the cumulative rise in the cost of living in the Nixon administration to date?

A. 17.2 per cent.

In Miami Beach this week the preliminaries of the 1972 presidential campaign are being completed — and then, with the Republic nominations completed, we'll finally turn to the issues. High among those issues will be inflation.

In Washington today, the latest Consumer Price Index is being released — showing still another peak in the cost of living, still another loss in the dollar's buying power.

Of course, the White House will defend its record. And since the New Economic Program was adopted Aug. 15, 1971, there has been an improvement: The 1948 dollar has lost only 1.4 cents in this short span, the 1948 price index has risen only 2.4 per cent.

Attack Record

But just as strongly, the Democrats will attack that record. And they will emphasize that the record has improved only since the White House adopted the wage-price controls the Democrats had urged and Nixon had sworn he would avoid.

The economic figures you will find below are political dynamite. How you interpret them, though, will depend on the attitude you bring when you read them.

Each figure represents a political administration, which adds spice to my tale. The base year is 1948 and the statistics were compiled for his column by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Nixon administration has been divided into two spans: Pre-Aug. 15, 1971, and since then — to give you a completely honest picture.

At the end of the Truman (D) administration (January 1949-1953), the dollar was worth 90.2 cents. At the end of the first Eisenhower (R) term January 1953-1957) it was worth 87 cents but only 80.7 cents at the end of the second Eisenhower term (January 1957-1961). At the end of the combined Kennedy-Johnson (D) administration (January 1961-1965) it was worth 77 cents, and at the end of the Johnson only (D) term (January 1965-1969) it was worth 7.5 cents. By the end of the pre-NEP period of the Nixon (R) administration (January 1969-August 1971), the dollar was only worth 59 cent, and at the end of the period since (August 1971 to mid-1972) worth 57.6 cents.

13 Men Murdered in New York on Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — There were more homicides Monday than in any other 24-hour period in the city's recorded history, the chief medical examiner says. Thirteen men died.

There were four murders in Brooklyn, one in the Bronx, four in Manhattan and four in Queens, including the triple slaying of Brooklyn teen-agers on a deserted beach.

None of the murders appeared connected to the organized crime warfare that has claimed at least 15 other lives in the past 14 months.

Twelve of Monday's victims died from handguns, two from rifles and one from stabbing. All were males. Six were black.

Smog Devices Ordered on California Cars

New Equipment Expected to Cause Engine Overheating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly all pre-1971 cars in California are being placed under strict smog control laws despite predictions that many will suffer harmful overheating problems.

The state Air Resources Board voted Wednesday to require additional antismog equipment on 1966-1970 model cars within two years although its engineering staff warned of overheating, possible valve damage and poorer gas mileage.

Board members noted that the devices would reduce oxides of nitrogen 40 to 50 per cent and said motorists would have to put up with overheating as part of the cost of fighting smog.

The newly required equipment must be installed before vehicles may be registered for 1974. State law limits the cost, including installation, to $35.

California earlier thought it was equipping post-1965 cars with strict smog controls when it required that they be equipped with devices to limit emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide — two of the three major components of smog.

Two Components

That effort backfired, however, when the antismog adjustments limiting those two components caused the third component, oxides of nitrogen — to soar.

Oxides of nitrogen are a group of gases which give the air a reddish-brown color and are harmful to humans and plants.

The result of the 1966 controls was a severe smog crisis in Southern California even though hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide levels dropped sharply.

Earlier this year, the board ordered strict controls over 1955-1965 models, and federal regulations have been in effect since the 1971 model year.

Unlike antismog devices aimed at controlling hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, the devices approved Wednesday do not work by making combustion more efficient. In fact, they reduce efficiency slightly in an effort to reduce combustion temperatures.

Volve Damage

As a result, the board was told by its engineering staff that the devices would cause overheating and in some cases valve damage.

About 20 per cent of California's 12 million cars would be especially susceptible to such problems, said G. C. Hass, chief of the ARB's emissions control center in Los Angeles.

The staff recommended that only one of the two devices under consideration be approved. A device offered by Echlin Manufacturing Co. of Hartford, Conn. did not contain sufficient safeguards against overheating, the engineering staff said.

They recommended approval of a more complex system manufactured by the Perfect Circle Division of Dana Corp., Hagerstown, Ind. However, the board voted 3 to 2 to certify both systems.

Navy Inspection Calls Eisenhower Away From Renomination

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A summons by the Navy prohibited Lt. (J.G.) David Eisenhower from being on hand when his father-in-law, President Nixon, was renominated at the Republican National Convention.

A family spokesman said Tuesday that Eisenhower was called back to his station at the Mayport, Fla., Naval Station for an "administrative inspection" in connection with forthcoming sea duty.

The Navy's call forced Eisenhower to cancel an appearance at a GOP youth rally and attendance at the Tuesday night convention session at which Nixon was renominated.

Rickover Points To Rapid Advances In Soviet Fleet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Admiral H. G. Rickover has accused American shipyard workers of loafing on the job while the Soviet Union expands an "already far superior" shipbuilding capacity.

In closed door testimony released Wednesday by the House Appropriations Committee, the outspoken Navy figure said he had "called the attention of shipyard commanders and Navy officials to what is going on in the yards" many times but had seen few results from his efforts.

"I constantly receive reports of gross situations in which workers are idle and their supervisors are taking no action to prevent it—in some instances supervisors have contributed and have been party to the loafing," Rickover said.

The Soviets, meanwhile, he continued, have four, possibly five, nuclear-submarine building yards," and turned out over 10 such subs last year, including a number of new-design ships.

"In the same year we produced four, none of them new designs," said Rickover, who is generally acknowledged as the leading figure in the U.S. nuclear sub program.

Rickover said he has given Navy officials examples of overtime abuses in U.S. yards that have been going on for years. He estimated the Navy could save at least $50 million a year on overtime merely by tightening the controls."

Rickover's testimony was highly censored.

Algerians Give Ransom Back to U.S.

PARIS (AP) — Algerian representatives have returned the $1 million ransom a group of black hijackers extorted from Delta Air Lines, and two officials of the airline are scheduled to fly back to Washington with it today, informed sources reported.

The informants said the Algerians turned the money over Wednesday.

The hijackers commandeered a Delta DC8 on the U.S. East Coast and made the flight to Algiers, but the Algerian government confiscated the ransom paid for release of the passengers.

The Algerians have not announced whether they will grant the hijackers' request of asylum.

Earlier this year, two other Americans hijacked a U.S. airliner to Algiers after obtaining $500,000 ransom. The Algerians also returned that money to the airline.

Ferocious African Killer Bees Move

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swarms of ferocious honey bees that have been known to kill both humans and animals are moving toward the United States from Brazil at the rate of 200 miles a year.

There seems to be no natural barrier to block the bees and they could be in North America within four to six years, says a study financed by the Agriculture Department.

"The most alarming and best-known characteristic of Brazilian bees is their aggressiveness," according to the report. "Hundreds of bees become airborne and pursue and sting any animals or people within 100 meters of the apiary.

"There are many reports of animals and even people being killed by stings of Brazilian bees," it continued. "Perhaps most such reports concern swarms or abscording colonies rather than disturbed hives, but both are involved."

The report issued Wednesday by the National Research Council and the National Academy of Sciences is the result of a trip by scientists last November and December to the bee area just north of the Amazon River in Brazil.

The study calls the bees "objectionable and dangerous" and says it is essential "to do whatever can be done" to keep the bees out of North America.

Battle lines against the bees should be drawn first in Central America with preparations made for "delaying tactics" and further control measures later if the truculent insects continue their northward movement.

Commercial honey bees in the United States are of European descent. The Brazilian bee, though smaller, flies faster and farther, works harder at makong honey, but becomes angrier much sooner than its northern relatives, the report states.

The Brazilian swarms began in 1956 when some queen bees from Africa were introduced in the state of Sao Paulo, with the intention of improving European types there. Care was taken to use sieves called "double queen excluders" for keeping the vicious African queens in place.

"Unfortunately, however, a visiting beekeeper, not understanding the situation, removed the double queen excluders and 26 swarms headed by the queens from Africa escaped in 1957," the report said.

Brazilian beekeepers tried to dilute the strain of African bees by introducing thousands of more agreeable Italian queens in 1963-64. Queens are fully mature females which mate with drones and lay thousands of eggs.

But keepers killed the Italian queens "because they produced less honey than Brazilian bees," the report says.

As a result, the African bees survived and now are moving steadily northward.

U.S. Chess Ace Leads

Fischer, Spassky Draw Again

RAYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer marched relentlessly on today toward the world chess championship after a draw in the 17th game when he capitalized on a rule violation by champion Boris Spassky.

Fischer was moving first in the 18th game this afternoon, giving him a slight advantage. American challenger's favor, he needed only 2½ more points to take the title while Spassky needed five more to keep it. A draw gives each player half a point and a victory gives the winner one point.

The question now seemed to be how long the Russian could delay the loss of the crown his country has monopolized since 1948. He has won only two of the 16 games played — another went to him on a forfeit — while Fischer has won six. The last four games have ended in draws.

The draw Wednesday came only five moves after play had been resumed. Spassky repeated a position for the third time, a violation of match rules, and Fischer nailed him.

The experts were divided over whether Spassky intentionally went for the draw or whether he had blundered into it. They had said he as in a slightly stronger position when the game adjourned Tuesday night. And he appeared surprised when Fischer pointed out the violation to referee Lothar Schmid.

Fischer had replied to Spassky's 41st move with an unexpected pawn to king's knight four, and Yugoslav grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric commented, "It is likely he was surprised by Bobby's move and in order to gain time made a few random moves without realizing it was a repetition."

Schmid said he would have an expert examination made of the playing hall as soon as the technicians could be assembled. He also ordered a 24-hour guard on the hall.

But he might have played for the draw. Who can say?"

The Russian seconds looked despondent as they left the hall after the draw. It was a marked contrast to the adjournment Tuesday night when the four filed out smiling. Spassky then held an edge with a rook to Fischer's pawn and knight.

The draw diverted attention from the cloak and dagger charges made Tuesday by the Russians. They suggested the Americans were using "electronic devices and chemical substance" on Spassky, and possibly utilizing the special lighting system over the playing stage and the player's chairs in some unexplained way.

Schmid said he would have an expert examination made of the playing hall as soon as the technicians could be assembled. He also ordered a 24-hour guard on the hall.

'There Will be Another Call'

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It was a long drive from Milwaukee to Appleton Wednesday for the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Murphy.

It took only about two hours but it seems longer when a little bit of hope is gone.

Murphy, who is suffering from a kidney disease, had been called to Milwaukee County General Hospital with the hopes of getting a transplant.

The minister had waited for a donor for months, and finally the call had come late Tuesday afternoon.

Kidney Flown In

The national kidney bank had found a donor in California and the kidney was being flown in If all was in order, Murphy could get the transplant Wednesday afternoon.

But the kidney didn't function properly.

"They did everything they could. They treated the kidney for 4½ hours while getting Bob ready for the operation," explained Mrs. Murphy this morning.

He was supposed to have the operation at 11 a.m. but the staff informed the Murphys that the kidney was still not functioning properly.

So they sat and waited at 11 a.m. and then noon and then 1 p.m. and then 2 p.m. And then the doctor came in and told the Murphys.

The kidney simply wasn't functioning as well as it should be and it would be advisable to forget the operation at this time.

They then disconnected all the tubing and apparatus which had been used to get Murphy ready for the operation.

"Disappointed"

"Bob was emotionally drained," Mrs. Murphy said. Her husband added, "I was not disappointed, but not despairing."

"There will be another one," he said. "We'll just keep waiting for the next phone call. It will come," the pastor of Appleton's Wesleyan Church said.

That's what the doctor said — "There will be another phone call, but now you can go home."

So they got into the car — with Murphy himself taking the wheel — and drove home in the dark and the rain.

Faster Action Urged In Port Emergencies

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Disturbed by slow response during recent emergencies and prompted by its Federal Aviation Administration tower chief, the Outagamie County Board's Airport Committee Wednesday night agreed to include $500 in its 1973 budget for a port alarm system and named a subcommittee to update emergency procedures.

It was revealed that although there is a $30,000 crash truck and a 21-man volunteer fire fighting crew at the airport, it has taken up to 15 minutes to get emergency assistance, which often must come from the Appleton Fire Department.

And it was learned today, through Appleton Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl, that there have been times when, apparently because of equipment neglect, airport crash equipment probably could not have been used.

Kuehnl also was upset over the lack of training or desire for training on the part of airport volunteers.

Supv. John Dietz of Appleton, senior airport panel member and its past chairman, said he has been seeking better port protection for some time.

He made the statement after a reporter asked why so much time had passed with apparently inadequate emergency protection at the airport.

Dietz said expenditures for some emergency measures and equipment had been included in earlier port budgets.

He admitted that the gaps in the protection setup at the airport were potentially serious.

James Norcutt, FAA tower chief at the airport, was critical of the lack of proper emergency procedures. Tower operators are responsible for initiating emergency reaction at the port.

Norcutt recalled a recent emergency where a small private plane came in with a landing gear problem. It was 15 minutes before anyone responded. Norcutt explained, and then aid came from an Air Wisconsin employe in a truck.

With a 10-to 15-minute delay in getting the first crash truck to the scene, Norcutt warned, about all anyone can do is ". . . just go stand outside and watch."

Dietz was upset over an incident last Sunday wherein two Appleton Fire Department units and at least two ambulances were summoned to the airport for a reported emergency that turned out to be nothing more than a collapsed front wheel that caused a small craft to stop nose down on the runway, with no injury to its student pilot.

The volunteer airport crash crew was not notified.

Hard to Reach

Norcutt explained that under terms of an agreement between the FAA and the county, the tower, when notified of an emergency — usually by a pilot — first calls the Appleton Fire Department, then tries to contact Airport Manager Max Sagunsky or some other port official, which might include an airport committee member.

Norcutt said that party because Sagunsky is employed only as part-time port manager, it often is difficult and sometimes is impossible to reach someone with authority to get intra-airport protection moving.

"You need some type of system where you can get right to the people who will respond to an emergency," Norcutt said. "We have to have one place to call and give the information," he added, on behalf of the tower operators. "We can't make a lot of calls after an emergency is declared."

Norcutt said the problem with relying on the Appleton Fire Department as the first line of protection is that it takes firemen at least nine minutes to get to the airport.

The cost of summoning the city fire department also was discussed Wednesday.

Sagunsky said the city had not yet submitted a bill for last Sunday's services at the airport.

Kuehnl told The Post-Crescent today that the county would be

Charge Against Appleton Man Is Dismissed

Identification of Robbery Suspect Ruled Inadequate

NEENAH — Judge James V. Sitter dismissed a robbery charge against an 18-year-old Appleton man Wednesday afternoon, despite the testimony of a young gasoline station attendant who identified the suspect as the man who sprayed Mace in his face and took $548 last Jan. 23.

The attendant's identification of the suspect was not adequate, Sitter ruled.

Sitter made his surprise announcement after the attorney for Jerry Haugner, 208 E. Marquette St., Appleton, asked for a dismissal on the grounds that the attendant, Michael Kwiatkowski, 17, 952 Evans St., Neenah, had not made a solid enough identification of his client as the man who robbed the station.

In making his ruling Sitter said there certainly was probable cause to believe that a crime had been committed but not enough to believe Haugner had committed it.

Time Span

The judge further cited the time span of almost five months which elapsed from the time of the robbery to the first identification of Haugner as the robber. That identification was made by Kwiatkowski from a series of "four or five" photos shown him by police authorities.

Sitter said the court doesn't know if the photos were all of the defendant or if they were of other people.

Calling the attendant's identification of Haugner "weak," Sitter also cited Kwiatkowski's partial description of his assailant and his admission that he was slightly nearsighted as additionl factors in his decision against the bind-over.

Neenah authorities had charged Haugner with the Jan. 23 robbery of Don's Gulf Station, 250 First St.

Asked for Money

Kwiatkowski had testified that he was working at the station about 9:40 p.m. on Jan. 23 when he noticed a man standing inside the station as he returned from cleaning the restrooms. The two talked for about 10 minutes, Kwiatkowski continued, and then, as he was sitting at a desk, the defendant sprayed him in the face with a can of Mace.

Blinded by the liquid the attendant asked the man what he wanted and begged him to stop using the Mace. The man replied he wanted all the money and Kwiatkowski gave him money which he had on his person and money from a cash drawer.

The defendant then is alleged to have walked out of the station where he was joined by two other men, one of whom Kwiatkowski said, had a red knit stocking cap pulled over his face.

Kiatkowski also said the man who sprayed him in the face wore a dark blue knit cap, dark rimmed glasses, and he had a reddish-brown beard.

In court Wednesday Haugner wore wire-rim glasses and was clean-shaven.

Migrants: Back to Texas?

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Trevino came to the United States from Mexico in 1969. Since then they've worked in migrant camps in five states.

Today, Mrs. Trevino was told that she may have to send some of her children back to Texas because their living quarters are overcrowded at the Stokely Van Camp Co. camp in the Town of Grand Chute.

If that happens, the whole family will go back. And if they go back it will be to a place where there isn't enough work and not always enough to eat.

Mrs. Trevino was doing ironing on a card table today when state Department of Labor, Industry and Human Relations inspectors entered her green-painted plywood cabin.

The inspection was part of a statewide sweep sparked by complaints by the United Migrant Opportunity Service.

There are five children living in the 14- by 18-foot cabin and that's too many. "This is overcrowding, Gene," said Inspector Henry Hoffman, addressing Stoekly plant manager Gene Appleton.

"We'll take those two children under the age of 12 and send them back to Texas tomorrow," responded Appleton.

Might be Solution

He has other cabins available and later offered them if splitting up families into smaller units would be listed as compliance. Hoffman said that might be a solution. Such compliance probably would be only token because children probably would refuse to stay away from their parents, but it would meet state law.

Appleton said the company tries to keep up good housing. Although the green-painted cabins are faded, with "Texas" scratched in paint, the company spends from $4,000 to $5,000 on maintenance yearly, he said.

Some steps must be fixed. Paint is faded and wiring may need to be repaired. A refrigerator in one cabin frosts up heavily every two days. Repairs were prescribed by inspectors but the big issue was crowding.

Local Opposition

There isn't much chance of building bigger houses. Appleton said the company had to fight a legal battle to build the houses that now are in the camp because of local opposition.

Besides, he said, the migrants were brought in years ago when employment was high and help was scarce. Now, as Teamsters Union employes they have seniority and the company must employ and house them.

"We don't have a choice," he said, contending that the company is in the uncomfortable position of being unable to comply with state law and being unable to refuse employment to migrants.

The houses have tiled floors and walls made from wood paneling. Bare light bulbs illuminate the small interior.

A bedspread stretched across a clothesline is used by Mrs. Trevino to make a tiny bedroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevino came to Appleton this year for the first time. Mrs. Trevino does not speak English but a 14-year-old daughter, Marcella, said they don't want to go back to Texas. "She is better here because we don't work over there and sometimes we eat and sometimes we don't."

Also Overcrowded

Oscar Garza Sr. has worked for Stokely Van Camp for four years. His family, of six boys also is living in overcrowded conditions.

If it is allowed, he will send part of the family to live in another cabin. He laughs: Really there is not a big problem, he says.

Juan Leal puts it simply. "With me and my old man it's okay." The life is far from ideal but he's got work and is earning money. His cabin is not considered overcrowded but none of the huts are large. For Juan, his wife and father, the life here is better than one elsewhere where there is no work.

Frank Krasniewski, Appleton, business representative for the Teamsters Union, says his jurisdiction does not ex-

State School Head Criticizes Rising Costs of Education

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — In an extraordinary publication, the state Department of Public Instruction has reviewed critically the rising costs of the public schools in the last decade and possible economies in the single most costly service supported by Wisconsin taxpayers.

"Wisconsin faces the challenge of slowing the rise in public expenditures without impairing educational quality", said William C. Kehl, state superintendent of public instruction, in a terse introduction to the work.

Kahl said the publication resulted from an order of the state department of administration, which was acting on the authority of Gov. Patrick Lucey, commanding all state agencies to search out cost reduction methods to permit the state executive to arrest the spending spiral in the new biennial state budget now in preparation.

Half of Budget

Kahl's agency disburses nearly half of the state budget and most of its expenditures represent the funneling of state aids to the local schools which in the aggregate account for more disbursement of tax dollars, state and local, than any other single category of government service in the state.

Difficult decisions will have to be made at the local educational policy level if the objective (of cost cutting and increased productivity) is to be achieved," the school head wrote in the study intended to provide ideas for local school boards and administrators.

Most of the proposals were taken from a report of a consulting firm that recently worked with a presidential commission on education, and were footnoted by comments of the Kahl supervisory staff.

Few of the proposals were new. Most of them are familiar in most Wisconsin localities. Some of them have been proposed and rejected, including an extension of the school term to cover most of the year.

Vacation Conflict

The department explained that conflicts with traditional vacation schedules of the families of children and of school staffs, have provided the fatal obstacles to legislative consideration of an adjustment of the historic pattern of the school system in the past. The implication was that such a conflict will be a fatal obstacle again, as some oblique overtures among legislators with a total lack of public response have shown in recent times.

The study pointedly explained that some of the new cost increases of substantial impact in the last 10 years, such as hugely enlarged spending for school employe fringe benefits, resulted from new factors in school policymaking such as the extension of collective bargaining to the public employment sector and especially to local teachers. The evident implication was that such costs are not likely to be altered.

Greenville Granted Sewer Plant Delay

The State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has granted the Town of Greenville a one-year extension to Dec. 31, 1974 for the completion of its planned sewage treatment plant and connections.

The town recently learned that it has been granted its request for the extension when the DNR revised the July 27, 1971, order demanding that a portion of the town, including the developed area near U.S. 45 and State 76, stop polluting the Bear Creek.

Under the extension, the town also was granted a three-month extension to Jan. 1, 1973, to turn in plans and specifications, and a six-month extension to June 1, 1973, to begin construction.

The town sought the extension because it didn't have enough time to meet the earlier deadlines but has shown enough commitment to the project to warrant the extension.

"We will be able to meet the new deadline," said James Wunderlich, town board chairman.

The town board voted last June to create a new sanitary district as a step toward meeting the order. The district includes about 260 homes and 900 to 1,000 acres.

The sewage plant and the network of sewer lines is expected to cost about $1.9 million, with the federal and state governments providing just over $1 million.

Businessmen Don't Want Meters in Soldiers Square

Downtown businessmen convinced the Appleton Parking Commission Wednesday night not to recommend that the City Council convert the Soldiers Square parking ramp from a cashier to a meter system.

The commission conducted a public hearing on a proposal to convert the pay-as-you-leave cashier system to a metered system, as recommended by the city traffic engineer, Walter Johnson.

No one spoke in favor of the change at the hearing. Those downtown businessmen, the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce and one alderman.

Ald. Alvin Tews (5th) said he believed the metered system would work better than the cashier system, but he voted against the change after the hearing. Tews had requested the hearing.

Two Are Metered

Johnson, who had made a study of the ramps, said at the outset that he was standing on his recommendation that the ramp be converted. The East and West ramps are metered.

Johnson based his position on the survey which he believed indicated people could get accustomed to either type of ramp would provide a better profit picture and allow for better entrance and exit patterns from Soldiers Square.

Robert LaBrant, executive assistant of the chamber of commerce, and the businessmen argued that the parking ramp philosophy of making a profit was wrong. They contended that the ramps were there for the convenience of the public and that altering them for the sake of increasing profits or producing a profit was undesirable.

"A decision to convert Soldiers Square ramp from a cashier to a metered system, we feel, would have a detrimental effect on the future economic health of the central business district and upon the tax base of the City of Appleton," LaBrant said.

"Inconvenience"

"Metered lots psychologically inhibit customers from shopping and present them with an inconvenience they do not face at a modern shopping center," he added.

Businessmen said a metered lot made customers uneasy about leisure shopping and possibly getting a ticket.

Ronald Reynolds of Schlafer's, Inc., 1115 W. College Ave., said a problem results when a customer runs out to plug a meter because of the threat of a parking ticket. The ticket is the big rub with the customers."

Businessmen said some customers preferred to shop leisurely and then pay for the time the ramp was used, as in the cashier's lot, rather than to be on a meter time limit and have to run back to avoid a ticket.

"Detriment"

Robert Bartiola, manager of the H.C. Prange Co. store, 126 W. College Ave., supported his fellow businessmen, contending that "metered parking is a detriment to shopping customers." He noted that it probably would be to his advantage to have Soldiers Square converted to meters since presumably it

Judge Parnell To Lead Probe

Appleton Man to Direct Investigation Of Nowakowski

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Retired Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell of Appleton will be named to conduct a grand jury investigation into allegations against Richard C. Nowakowski, chairman of the Milwaukee County Board, Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows of the state Supreme Court said today.

Hallows made his announcement after Milwaukee County Dist. Atty. E. Michael McCann petitioned for the appointment of a judge to conduct the grand jury probe.

Meanwhile, U.S. Atty. David C. Cannon said his office was investgiating the Nowakowski affair to determine whether any federal laws had been violated.

The Milwaukee Sentinel has alleged that a company which was bidding for a county contract paid a hotel bill for Nowakowski. Other allegations included acceptance of a check from another company doing business with the county.

None for Steiger

Gubernatorial Dreams

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Rep. William Steiger appears anxious to scotch rumors he might seek the Wisconsin Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1974.

"I like what I'm doing and I want to stay in the House of Representatives," the 34-year-old congressman said in an interview Wednesday.

Steiger, a delegate to the GOP national convention, is considered by some Republicans as a possible candidate to the state's top office when Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's term expires in two years.

Two other delegates, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, and former Lt. Gov. Jack Olson also loom as potential candidates for the GOP nomination.

Steiger, a candidate for reelection this fall, said he thought he would prefer to serve in Congress rather than try for a state office. He served in the state assembly before his election to Congress.

"You make that break when you leave the legislature and run for national office," Steiger said. "It's very hard to go back."

Towns to Fight Floodplain

SHIOCTON — Chastising the state Department of Natural Resources and federal governmental bureaucracy, a group of 400-450 people from four unincorporated towns in Outagamie County voted unanimously Wednesday night to join together, draft a resolution and present it to the state Board of Governmental Operations, seeking immediate relief from enforcement of the county floodplain zoning ordinance.

The ordinance was adopted in 1968 and says, among other things, that residences must be set back 75 feet from the water. It defines shorelines as any land within 300 feet of a stream or 1,000 feet of a lake, including areas subject to flooding from those streams.

The group also voted to have its county board supervisor bring a resolution to the Outagamie County Board, asking the immediate "cease and desist" of enforcement of the ordinance until the state and county get new benchmarks and floodplain maps drawn up for the four towns.

The meeting with state, county and local officials in the high school gymnasium here was called by Jay Kleiner, Town of Bovina building inspector, to protest the ordinance and to call for the resurveying of the area. Besides Bovina and the Village of Shiocton, other municipalities included the towns of Maine, Liberty and Ellington.

The resolution asking for help from the Board of Governmental Operations was suggested by State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, and State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton. They said they would "see that there is some action," and invited other area municipalities to join the protest.

Main Protest

While many speakers criticized the DNR during the three-hour meeting, the main protest concerned the outdated benchmarks and maps, which determine the boundaries of floodplain and floodway areas.

Another section of the ordinance criticized by speakers, including Conradt and Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler, was the length of time and expense needed to get a conditioned building permit, which is required to build in flood-zoned areas. Conradt said, "I agree that every time we want to build something, we have to fight, and it shouldn't be that way."

Woehler told the group that the meeting "is where we start — and I will do everything I can to support legislative changes at the county level."

People said benchmarks are often "four miles up the road." Lorge pointed out a major problem — the floodplain for the Wolf River, near these communities, is two or three miles wide in parts.

Kleiner cited the economic impacts of the large areas of floodplain: In Bovina, he said 82 per cent of the tax base is in a zoned floodplain. In Liberty, 71 per cent of the land is in floodplain, with 41 per cent of Maine's land in a plain, 19 per cent of Ellington and 70 per cent of Bovina.

Thanking the crowd for "showing concern for a situation that has gone from bad to worse," Kleiner said the four towns raised $704,500 in taxes last year, with $321,000 coming from areas in a floodplain.

If no new buildings can be built, he reasoned, the existing people couldn't afford to pay property taxes in the area. He cited, as an example, the $800,000 left to pay off on the high school.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the county zoning committee, told the group, "The map lines (for the floodplain zoning) are not anywhere near where they should be." He said they should ask the state to help get better maps, benchmarks and elevation lines. He added, "I can see a couple of points in our zoning ordinance that we can change — and I hope we can without the DNR coming in."

He also mentioned the possibility of deleting the required public hearing from the ordinance and said, "We're going to look into this."

Al Shane from the DNR Green Bay office said the agency has no legal authority to set benchmarks or maps for floodplain or water shoreline purposes. The DNR can't budget for it, he said.

Dick Singler, Bovina town chairman, recommended that the towns finance new maps and benchmarks since the state is "enforcing incorrect maps."

He added, "I definitely feel that the people (DNR) who imposed this map on us are the same people who should take it back and get it fixed."

He admitted that Bovina was not following the law all the way. "Our building in Bovina is really bad right now, and that's not fair to anybody. We're not going by law — but we're not going with a law we can't live by."

Ralph Gehring, a Bovina that the towns together, break "this stupid, ridiculous, law." If the state pushed the issue, he speculated, the towns could win a court case. "And all of a sudden, the DNR would crawl back in Madison, where they belong, and they won't bother us anymore."

But Supv. Joseph Kasperick, who represents most of the involved towns on the county board, said he "couldn't advocate that (breaking the law) at all. Work legally to solve your problems — that's the way to do it."

Central Paper Plans Ok'd in Menasha

MENASHA — A request that the city turn over about half a block of Manitowoc Street to Central Paper Co. for part of a half-million dollar expansion won preliminary approval from the plan commission Wednesday.

The firm has asked the city to vacate the street so that proposed addition to office, plant and warehouse capacity can be physically connected with Central's present facilities along Fourth Street on the west side of Manitowoc.

If the street is vacated, the firm proposed to occupy the area with offices and an addition to its rewind department. A finished goods warehouse area would be built east of Manitowoc Street.

All of the space — about 70,000 square feet — would be contained in one building. Central presently is utilizing about 110,000 square feet of space.

The stretch of Manitowoc which Central desires is from the Fourth-Sheboygan streets intersection south to the Milwaukee Road right-of-way.

Most of the concern over the request centered around the possible effect on pedestrian traffic, as Acting Public Works Director Stan Martenson said studies showed little vehicular traffic on the involved portion of the street.

Fifth Ward Ald. Hugh E. Geibel, who noted that some opposition was surfacing from several local establishments which fear inconvenience to their walk-in customers, wonderered if a walkway could be built through the Central Paper property.

Representatives of the firm pointed out that the east side area would be paved for truck access, and that pedestrians could probably short-cut through that area.

Mayor James A. Adams, who supports the request, did not think there was enough pedestrian traffic to cause serious inconvenience.

"It's in the best interest of the city to allow this expansion. We wouldn't want to lose this firm," Adams said.

If the city vacates the street, it would still need utility access, which Central has indicated it will provide.

Before the street may be vacated, a public hearing must be held, and anyone within about a half-mile radius, which would include the majority of residents in the city, may appear at the hearing.

City officials, who have had little past experience with street vacation proposals, were unsure of how much advance notice of hearing was required by statute, but Adams thought it was 40 days.

In that case, the soonest the hearing could be set by the council would be the mid-October meeting. R. C. Williams, vice-president of manufacturing at Central, has indicated that the firm desired a decision as soon as possible.

Adams said opposition from one-third of the residents in a as-yet-unknown area near the street would be enough to legally stop the city from vacating it.

The plan commission supported Central's request by a 6-0 vote.

The request was first made formally in an Aug. 18 letter by Williams.

Vacating the street would provide "for the physical connection of plant and office facilities expansion programs east and west of Manitowoc Street which not only adds necessary land area, but provides for improved efficiencies of operation," Williams wrote.

In other business Wednesday, the plan commission also recommended vacating a 200-foot portion of Madison Street and a 330-foot section of Butte des Morts Street for the planned sewage treatment plant expansion.

All of the land fronting the effected portions of the two streets is already owned by the city.

Works Unit Ponders Sewer Assessments

NEENAH — The public works committee floundered Wednesday in trying to interpret a council directive to make sure that the total cost of a south side sewer installation was assessed directly to the benefitted property owners.

Because some of the benefitted property still lies outside the city's boundaries, members of the committee decided that a final recommendation would have to wait first for a legal opinion on what the city can and cannot do concerning assessments, and secondly a clarification of the council's directive.

Monday, the council voted to assess the total $20,076 project cost. However, the hitch comes in that the project also fronts on several hundred feet of a city-owned park.

"Are we supposed to drop the $2,766 assessment against the park and charge that cost against the other properties, or should the park assessment remain?" Wayne Bryan, public works director, asked.

He also cited benefits to two parcels outside the city which adjoin the four properties which received the sewer and water service. "Are these to be deferred or should we collect the money?" Bryan queried again.

The committee could not answer either question.

Mayor Roman V. Hauser chided the council for "talking out of both sides of your mouth."

"I think there should be another public hearing," he said, adding that the council's action had changed the assessment policy.

At the council session Monday night, Ald. Robert Troyer, citing a $7,300 difference between the project cost and anticipated collection through special assessments, called for charging the four properties the total cost and "as we collect the other money, pay them back."

Hauser, however, said, "I don't think we should place individuals in the assessing business. We can't charge them for more than it costs to serve them. All you have to do is try that once and you'll find yourself in court," Hauser predicted, adding, "you'll be defeated."

The four properties, in asking for the service, had promised to pay the entire cost. After it was started, a fifth property, owned by Kimberly Realty, said it would pay for extending the lines up to the property line.

Bryan said that "Kimberly wants to pay now and I don't think we should say he can't pay."

The crux of the problem surfaces in the recent flak on how the city attempts to collect investments it makes in sewers to serve areas outside the city limits.

Prostitution Ring Trial Date Set

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Richard "Tex" Simpson is to stand trial Oct. 30 on six charges involving what authorities called an interstate prostitution ring.

Judge Richard Bardwell of Circuit Court had denied Tuesday a motion by Simpson's attorney to dismiss a count of sexual perversion.

Simpson, 24, has entered a plea of not guilty by reason of mental illness.

He was one of several persons arrested in what the state Justice Department called a prostitution ring which, based in a suburban Monona sauna parlor, forced girls from Minneapolis to work at the establishment.

Migrant Workers' Camp Near Waupaca Is Ordered Closed

WAUPACA — "Cucumber heights," the migrant workers camp owned and operated by Roland and William Huebner, Town of Dayton, must be closed by Noon Friday, Circuit Judge James H Levi has ordered.

The order was handed down at 12:30 p m , Wednesday, following a hearing on the temporary restraining order to close the camp which has been operating without certification since July 19

As a result, 15 families, including 50 adult workers and 18 children must leave. They will lose an estimated $4,500 in wages. The Huebners stated that they will lose most of their profit on this year's cucumber harvest, with only two-thirds of the crop in, an estimated $10,000

Appearing for the State of Wisconsin was James P. Altman, assistant attorney general. The defendants were represented by Atty Sidney Meartz, Oshkosh.

To establish that migrants were living in the camp on July 19, Aug. 7, Aug. 18 and Aug. 22, the State called John Kostishack, migrant specialist for the Wisconsin Employment Service, and Henry Hoffman, safety specialist on migrant housing for the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations. Hoffman testified that a series of orders to make the camp suitable for certification had not been met.

Repairs Noted

Thomas Schirz, route 2, Roshlolt, a limited term employe who was a migrant housing inspector for the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations and, who inspected the Huebner camp a number of times during the summer of 1969 and 1971 was a subpoened witness by the defendant.

He attested to a number of improvement orders he had written on the camp In interim visits to the camp, he said, there was evidence of repairs made from time to time. "Most of the order were complied with eventually," Schirz stated under oath. "During that time I was also ordered to write up certain orders that some of the units would have to be replaced. I am not sure if they were officially condemned."

Roland Huebner testified that he and his brother William have operated the camp since 1966. Ten buildings on the grounds are now occupied. Repairs on the buildings, as set forth in a Sept. 8, 1971, inspection order withholding certification of the camp, Huebner said were delayed until May of this year when the Huebners received a pickle contract.

Upon receipt of the contract, the Huebners talked with inspector Hoffman, discussed the problems at the camp and what needed to be done to comply and be certified

Work Reported

"We cleaned up, checked out screen doors, roof leaks, repaired plumbing and closed the worst units," Huebner testified. The brothers went to the Production Credit Assoc. for funds and started minor repairs listed in the 1971 reports, plus installing clothes handing space and shelving.

Two recommendations by Inspector Hoffman, to make heating available and to change the foundation of the ground bearing walls, were not followed, Huebner told the court.

Altman asked Huebner, "Is your camp certified? Is your camp certifiable and was it certified as of Aug. 17, 1972?" Huebner answered "no" to all three questions. Huebner produced receipts showing he has applied for certification within the past two weeks and contended that the buildings occupied by migrant workers have been repaired

Asks Closing

Altman asked that Judge Levi close the camp in lieu of the testimony that the migrant labor camp has operated without certifications and the camp should have been certified 30 days before the camp was used by migrant workers.

Kaukauna Plans to Offer $4,500 For Contents of OCTC Building

KAUKAUNA — An ad hoc committee appointed by Mayor Robert La Plante to investigate possible uses for the Outagamie County Teachers College building voted Wednesday night to recommend to the council that a bid not to exceed $4,500 be forwarded to the county board for physical assets remaining in the building.

The county had equipment in the building appraised earlier this year and appraisers listed a total value of $8,600 for items. Several committee members felt the appraised value was too high and that much of what was appraised was not worth mentioning.

Two members argued that the city should offer no more than $3,000 for furniture and fixtures in the building, but voted with the majority after it was pointed out that the city could possibly dispose of some equipment at a later date.

The recommendation would include a stipulation that the money be paid at a later date, preferably in 1973 as the city budget has no appropriation for purchase of such equipment this year

Move Offices

The committee also voted to recommend that the health, welfare and recreation offices be moved from city hall into the new building to insure that someone would be in the building at all times.

The meeting was called as a public hearing to hear possible uses of the facility from interested citizens, but only about 10 persons were present and none suggested any new ideas. They did join in discussion of the value of equipment within the building.

Ted Gloudeman, a long-time employee at the college, said he felt much of the equipment in the building could be used by the city. Mayor Robert La Plante said the total figure includes $2,500 for student desks which he felt the city could have no possible use for as many are old and of little value.

Discussion was held on setting a fee for use of the building by special groups or organizations, but no decision was reached.

Some Rooms

Recreation Director James Gertz, who heads the ad hoc committee, felt the recreation department could make immediate use of some rooms for arts and craft classes, dance instruction and baton instruction. He said the auditorium could be used in the summer for little theater work.

The Youth Employment Service is currently using one room and probably will remain there for the balance of the year, according to La Plante. He said librarian Daniel Eckert was studying possible use of the facility for art showings or programs of a cultural nature.

Also expressing interest in using of the building for small club meetings were members of the Business and Professional Women and similar organizations, said La Plante. He said kitchen facilities at the school could be useful for such meetings.

Mrs. Eugene Verhagen suggested the building could be used for showers and other such parties by private individuals who often are looking for a larger room than available in private homes.

"We're in a unique position," said La Plante. "We have a building and don't know how to use it, but I'm sure as time passes we will find plenty of good uses and it will become an asset to the city."

He presented county budget figures for heat, water and light for the building. By employing a maintenance man under the Emergency Employment Act, which pays 90 per cent of such a person's salary and fringe benefits, he estimated it would cost the city about $6,000 per year to make use of the facility.

La Plante agreed that if a fee system is established by the council, money collected should be earmarked for maintenance and improvement of the facility.

Businessmen interpreted Johnson's survey differently than he did, saying that the statistics showing that most persons using a metered or cashier's ramp indicated they preferred that type — not that they became accustomed to it, as Johnson suggested.

Earl Miller of Heckert Shoe Co., 119 E. College Ave., said that by keeping Soldiers Square as cashier parking, the shoppers were given an alternative. They could go to East or West ramps and use meters or to Soldiers Square and use cashier.

The businessmen and LaBrant also warned that parking was important to the vitality of the downtown area and that the commission should keep this in mind when making such changes as were proposed.

billed $600 for the two trucks that responded to the alarm.

Under a city-county contract, signed in 1965 and since updated, Appleton is obligated to send one pumper and a crew of not fewer than four men plus necessary rescue equipment when assistance is requested.

The county must pay the city $300 for the first hour, or fraction thereof, for each piece of equipment and $200 an hour for each succeeding hour the men and equipment are at the port. Other terms of the contract cover such things as chemicals used, food and supplies for the firemen, injuries and equipment repairs

The Appleton Fire Department dispatched a pumper and its big rescue van to the airport last Sunday. The county will be billed for an hour's service on each of the two rigs, Kuehnl said. There will be no charge for two men and a car that also were dispatched.

The $600 does not cover the cost of sending two private ambulances to the airport.

Kuehnl was critical of the lack of preparation for an emergency at the airport. He said there is a lack of enthusiasm in accepting the fire fighting training offered by his department to the volunteers manning the crash truck kept at the airport.

The fire department training officer has expressed his displeasure over the situation to Sagunsky, Kuehnl explained.

Kuehnl also was critical of the volunteers' lack of ability to properly use the crash truck and related equipment and the manner in which the equipment is maintained.

Kuehnl said his men have found the truck's water tank empty, battery dead and piping broken from freezing

Norcutt admitted that it often turns out there was no need to summon the Appleton Fire Department, but under the current arrangement, that's who is to be called by the FAA tower

Off Hours

Supv. R Clayton Van Dyke of Kaukauna wondered how emergency reaction is started between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. when the FAA tower is not manned.

He was told that there are Air Wisconsin employes at the airport around the clock and port traffic is light after 11 p.m.

The $500 that airport committee chairman Supv. Richard Jahnke suggested be added to the tentative 1973 port budget would cover the cost of installing a telephone signal alarm system.

Norcutt recommended that three closed telephone lines be installed, one each to K-C Aviation, Inc., MaxAir, Inc., and Air Wisconsin.

3 Telephones

When the FAA tower is notified of an emergency, Norcutt said, it could activate all three telephones at the strategic airport locations. The ringing would not stop, he said, until all telephones are answered.

The three shifts of emergency volunteers are employes of the three firms located at the airport.

Jahnke felt the Appleton Fire Department should also get one of the airport "hot lines"

The committee also heeded Norcutt's suggestion that an emergency procedure plan be developed for airport personnel.

Jahnke named Dietz and Van Dyke to study development of a plan. Norcutt and Sagunsky were asked to assist.

lar designs and off-site construction, the more extensive use of teacher aides to reduce the number of degree-qualified instructors needed, simplified drivers' education, better organization of support services including those involved in plant operation and maintenance, and cited with approval a new trend for sharing the use of school plant with other local public services as a means of spreading the assessment of costs to other groups than the pupils in the school system

It noted that some collateral services are now needlessly expensive. Much of the school nursing staff is used on purely clerical duty, the account said.

In surveying the factors involved in the explosive rise of the school tax costs of the state which have fueled rebellious taxpayers demonstrations during the last year, the study noted with emphasis that during the last decade the ratio of the tax dollar going into instructional services has risen and other costs have declined in relative sharing of the tax dollar.

In 1960 instruction took 57.5 cents of the tax dollar used by the schools. A decade later the ratio had risen to 61.1 cents

Public to Meet Candidates At Optimists' Forum Aug. 29

An opportunity to meet local candidates seeking Assembly and congressional seats will be provided the public by the Appleton Breakfast Optimists at 7:30 a.m. Aug. 29 at the Conway Motor Inn.

Candidates for the 42nd Assembly District seat who have been invited to speak include Thomas Lonsway, a Democrat, and David Prosser, Neal Wellman, Tobias Roth and Norman Austin, all Republicans Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James Long and Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, who are seeking the 8th Congressional District seat occupied by Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, also have been invited.

In another election-related step, the Breakfast Optimists and volunteers working with them will transport elderly and disabled registered voters in the Appleton area to the polls on Sept. 12 and Nov. 7.

Voters, however, must reserve their rides at least a day in advance of the election by calling 731-3312 or 731-1054 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Vince Edwards' Wife Files Suit for Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Vince Edwards' wife Linda has filed suit to end their five-year marriage. But she said she won't miss the chance to be at her husband's side when they meet President Nixon at the Western White House in San Clemente next Sunday.

"Linda said Vince was going to be her first date after the suit was filed," a spokesman for the couple said Wednesday.

Edwards, best known for his long-running role as TV's "Dr. Ben Casey," and actress Linda Foster were married on Aug. 6, 1967. They have two daughters, Angela, 4, and Nicole, 2½.

Their spokesman said the Edwards are among several celebrities invited to visit the President at his seaside retreat.

Mickey Rooney Seeks Custody of Children

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — While Mickey Rooney told a judge he wants "with all my heart" to have custody of his four children by his fifth marriage, his third wife was filing a petition claiming unpaid alimony from the actor.

Rooney told Superior Court Judge Mario Clinco on Wednesday that he had been living a Christian life" with his seventh wife in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he wants to take the children.

Rooney said he had curbed a violent temper "through Christ. I've been living a Christian life the last five years."

Rooney seeks custody of the children, who range in age from nine to 12, now living with their maternal grandmother in Rolling Hills, Calif. She opposes the move. The children's mother, Barbara Thompson, was shot to death in 1966 while estranged from Rooney.

In another courtroom, Elaine Menkin Davis Rooney claimed in a petition she is owed $14,350 in unpaid alimony. They were married from 1952 to 1960 and she said Rooney has failed on many occasions to pay her $500 monthly alimony.

Saigon Military Leader Arrested After Loss

SAIGON AP — A South Vietnamese regimental commander and at least one of his battalion commanders have been arrested for their part in the loss of the Que Son Valley last weekend military officials reported today.

The loss of the valley, a key access route from the mountains to the populous costal region and Da Nang was the worst setback for Saigon's forces since the fall of Quang Tri on May 1.

U.S. officials including Gen. Frederick C. Weyand the U.S. commander in Vietnam, are known to regard Que Son as a debacle that could and should have been avoided.

Sources at the South Vietnamese army's northern headquarters said as many as 2,500 troops — regulars and militia — were still unaccounted for in the wake of the rout. They were listed as killed, missing or captured, but some troops were still expected to make their way to safety.

An unknown number of civilians also were casualties when they were caught in the fighting after the North Vietnamese attacked from the west and overran Fire Base Ross, a government strongpoint, and the nearby town of Que Son, the district capital.

The regimental commander arrested was Col. Nguyen Van Lu, who commanded the 5th Regiment of the 2nd Division at Fire Base Ross. The battalion commander arrested, who also had been at Ross, was not identified.

Meanwhile, a South Vietnamese task force with fresh reinforcements pressed a counteroffensive into the Que Son Valley and the commander of the operation, Brig. Gen. Pham Hoa Hiep, told Associated Press correspondent Dennis Need: "I hope to recapture Que Son by today or tomorrow."

Shriver Snubbed In Southern Tour

CINCINNATI, Ohio AP — "The biggest spender and waster in the history of this country."

Declaring he and George McGovern probably would be defeated in a landslide if the election were held now, Democratic vice presidential nominee Sargent Shriver has received little encouragement from two Deep South governors.

Ending the southern half of his second campaign trip with an Atlanta rally and a chat with farmers, Shriver headed into Ohio and the industrial North, where he again attacked President Nixon's Vietnam policies.

The President has had 1,402 days in which to end the war," Shriver told a mass rally at Cincinnati's Fountain Square. "And he's only got 75 days left before he gets defeated."

Product Victory

In the antique-filled parlor of the governor's mansion in Baton Rouge, Shriver spoke Wednesday of another possible defeat — that of the Democratic ticket. But he said McGovern has the formula "to turn the figures around" and produce victory.

Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards — seated near his wife whom he appointed recently to the U.S. Senate — told reporters that in his state at least, the job will be difficult if not impossible.

Only massive voter registration and huge turnouts of black and elderly voters, coupled with a McGovern endosement of Louisiana's position on tidelands oil and a serious mistake by the Nixon camp might produce such an upset, Edwards said.

Georgia Governor

In Atlanta later, Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter received Shriver in his office and said that while he will vote for McGovern he does not plan to campaign for him or endorse him formally.

Carter strode away from the microphones when Shriver began to answer questions and told reporters in another part of the room Nixon now holds the winning edge in Georgia by a fat margin.

The visit to Carter was preceded by an Atlanta street rally in which Shriver called Nixon "the biggest deficit-maker in the history of deficits" and said the Republican President has no right to call congressional Democrats wasteful spenders.

With three large deficits in three years, he said Nixon is

Teacher Strike Idea Backed By McGovern

Rare Political Support Expected From Federation

ST. PAUL, Minn. AP — Sen. George McGovern, seeking a presidential endorsement from the American Federation of Teachers and a much needed $250,000 campaign contribution, said today that teachers should have the right to strike.

"Teachers belong in school — or on a picket line, if necessary — but not in jail," McGovern said in a speech prepared for delivery to the national convention of the 500,000-member organization.

The Democratic presidential nominee said teachers should have the right to strike, "not only for your own interests but to lift the quality of education for our children."

Under law in most states teachers are not allowed to strike and face jail sentences if they walk out.

"You should never have to face the choice between a jail term if you strike and educational deterioration if you don't," added McGovern, a former teacher and still a dues paying member of the AFT.

The AFT is an affiliate of the AFL-CIO whose president, George Meany, has urged member unions to remain neutral in this year's election.

But the teacher federation planned to hand McGovern an endorsement and accompanying campaign donation. It would be the first time the organization has endorsed a presidential candidate in its 56-year history.

Church Council Head Says Some Groups Mistrust Organization

UTRECHT, Netherlands AP — Eugene Carson Blake, outgoing secretary-general of the World Council of Churches, says some religious groups are showing increasing distrust and cynicism toward the organization.

But, the American said, "we have not been afraid to speak out to each other."

"It would appear that some want us to go back to the 18th century when people lived on farms and in villages, but today the decisions are made on a world scale, which means a different kind of situation," Dr. Blake told a news conference Wednesday.

He was referring especially to the Council's increased channeling of funds to fight racism. The money is mainly used to aid liberation movements fighting apartheid and colonialism in southern Africa.

The annual meeting of the Council's Central Committee voted to double the fund to $1 million.

Nixon Campaigns For New Majority of protesters who blocked streets, damaged cars, set fires and smashed windows.

Barricades of buses ringed Convention Hall, and some delegates had difficulty getting through.

"McGovern Protesters"

"We fought our way, literally fought our way, six blocks to Convention Hall," South Carolina delegate Sherry Shealy told the convention in casting the state's votes for Agnew. She blamed the trouble on "the McGovern protesters outside."

The tear gas-like fumes had drifted near the hall when helicopters bearing the President's party set down outside. Though moistened towels were handed to some to relieve the discomfort, Nixon and his family walked through the fumes without acknowledging their presence.

A mighty roar greeted the broadly beaming, suntanned President as he stepped to the rostrum of the brightly lit hall, following Agnew's introduction.

His 42-minute speech was punctuated with repeated bursts of applause and chants of "Four more years!" as Nixon rallied his party to battle and appealed to Democrats "to join us as members of a new American majority bound together by our common ideals."

Much of the President's speech was devoted to direct and indirect assaults on the statements, views and actions of McGovern.

Nixon said the South Dakota senator's plan to replace welfare with a flat $1,000 grant per person, a proposal now undergoing revision, "insulted the intelligence of the American voters." And he took a crack at McGovern's replacement of running-mate Thomas F. Eagleton by declaring of Agnew:

"I thought he was the best man for the job four years ago. I believe he is the best man for the job today. And I am not going to change my mind tomorrow."

He hailed his foreign policy initiatives to China and the Soviet Union, vowed he would never abandon U.S. prisoners in Vietnam and urged voters to reject the policies of those who whine and whimper about our frustrations and call on us to turn inward.

"Let us not turn away from greatness," he declared.

At one point in his speech, amidst the cheers and chants of praise, a barely audible note of discord sounded as four members of the militant Vietnam Veterans Against the War chanted "Stop the bombing! Stop the war!" from the back of the hall.

Security guards hustled them out. Few delegates noticed.

Juliette Schweitzer Stabbed at Apartment

PARIS (AP) — Juliette Schweitzer, 19-year-old daughter of the secretary-general of the International Monetary Fund, has been hospitalized with stab wounds.

Juliette opened the door when the bell rang at her apartment Wednesday and was attacked with a knife by Ahmed Snouss, 30, a former mental patient who was soon to undergo further treatment, police reported.

Neighbors heard her cries and called police, who subdued the man. Police said Snouss was a Moroccan.

Juliette, daughter of Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, was reported in good condition with a wound at the base of her back and in the thigh.

Delegate Denied Right to Not Vote for Agnew

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP — Several minutes before the vote as the Republican National Convention Wednesday night that he wanted to abstain, McLaughlin told him: "Do what you want, but it would be very embarrassing for the governor," who had praised Agnew in a speech a day earlier.

McLaughlin quickly huddled with Michigan Gov. William Milliken and another delegate, and then Posthumus was hurried a distance away.

While they were gone, Michigan came up in the roll call and Milliken declared: "Michigan, where the Republican party is the party of all the people, casts 48 votes for Spiro Agnew."

Posthumus, tears filling his eyes, told another delegate: "It's not worth it to make a big fuss over it, but I wanted to vote my conscience." He did not say why he objected to voting for Agnew.

Milliken said later that Posthumus "relinquished his vote to an alternate." The governor said he was unaware that an alternate had not been found.

Little Chute's Value Is Up $505,700

LITTLE CHUTE — Assessed valuation of the village for 1972 was listed at $10,553,100, an increase of $505,700 over the 1971 assessments, according to figures released Wednesday by Assessor Richard J Kilsdonk.

The 5.033 per cent increase represents a $41,472 increase in local taxes at the 1971 rate which netted out to $82.01 per $1,000 assessed value in School District No 1 and to $83 86 for residents in School District No. 2

The largest single increase was in personal property assessment which increased from $568,125 to $795,675, an increase of $227,550.

Mercantile Improvements

Residential land value increased $24,950 to $1,919,400 and residential improvements increased $192,850 to $5,871,775 Mercantile land also showed an increase from $312,900 to $337,275, a $24,375 hike Mercantile improvements declined $21,825 to $1,217,850 from $1,239,675

Manufacturing land value was increased $7,406 to $27,550 and manufacturing improvements showed an increase of $64,000 to $289,050. Agricultural land and improvements both declined. Land value was reduced $11,400 to $77,575 and improvements were down $2,200 to $16,950. Changes of land usage partially account for the decrease in value in one area with a subsequent increase in another.

Kilsdonk and Village Clerk Gerald Locy both indicated the $505,700 increase was a healthy sign for the community and predicted even a better year possible in 1973, due largely to in the village.

5-Year Term In Green Bay Theft Case

Former Director Of Service Center Pleaded Guilty

GREEN BAY, Wis (AP) — Robert Allen, 35, former director of the Green Bay Community Service Center, which served retarded persons in the area, was sentenced to five years in the state prison in Waupun this morning

He had pleaded guilty to grand theft charges involving the taking of more than $56,000 from the center

Circuit Court Judge Donald W. Gleason ordered the five-year prison term in spite of recommendations for probation in a presentence investigation report.

The judge characterized the missing funds as money of a special nature for a special purpose of wide community concern and said the defendant knew of the special purpose of the money

In a daylong hearing Wednesday, 25 character witnesses appeared in Allen's behalf Allen had headed the retarded program since 1963

An audit showed more than $69,000 had been diverted from the center to Allen's personal use between 1967 and 1971.

Allen has returned more than $54,000, center officials said.

Harris Survey

Nixon Gets Benefit of Doubt On His Economic Policies

BY LOUIS HARRIS

For the first time since mid-1970, more Americans believe the country is not in a recession than believe it is: By 43-41 per cent, a slim plurality of the public thinks "there is not a recession in the nation today." A year ago, by 62-24 per cent, a sizable majority was convinced that recession conditions still prevailed, despite the fact that professionnal economists then said the worst was passed.

Nonetheless, the underlying economic issue in this election, which many Democrats still pin their hopes on for an upset victory in November, has far from disappeared. A substantial 60 per cent of the public feels that "prices are rising more rapidly than they were a year ago," sharply up from the minority of 45 per cent who felt this way last November during the wage-price freeze.

At the same time, unemployment fears — the other side of the economic troubles felt by most Americans over the past two years — appear to have abated somewhat. Although 35 per cent still feel "unemployment around here is increasing," this is sharply down from the 58 per cent who felt that way a year ago.

On balance, then, the economic outlook of the American people appears to have improved some in recent days, but it is still too early to say that President Nixon is out of the woods with the voters in terms of vulnerability on his promise to have checked inflation by the end of his first term.

On August 2 and 3, a cross section of 1,635 voters was asked: "Do you feel the country is in a recession today or not?" The response:

	Total Voters	Is One	Is Not
Aug., '72	41	43	16
June	46	41	13
May	48	37	15
Mar.	48	33	19
Nov. '71	56	27	17
June	63	23	14
Nov. '70	62	24	14

The political impact of the recession issue can be seen graphically in the following table, which analyzes the voting intention of people who think there still is a recession and those who do not (all figures are per centages):

Voting for:	Pct. "Is"	Pct. "Isn't"	Not Sure
Nixon	57	46	70
McGovern	34	42	23
Not Sure	9	12	7

These results mean that if a steback between now and election day and the public believes the recession is not past, the outcome could narrow considerably.

Easily the most vulnerable part of Nixon's economic stance lies in the inflation area. Repeatedly, the Harris Survey has asked cross sections of the public: "Do you feel the prices of most things you buy are rising more rapidly than a year ago, about as rapidly as they were then, less rapidly than a year ago, or are they going down?" (All figures are percentages).

	Up Faster	Up As Fast	Up Less Fast	Going Down	Not Sure
Aug., '72	60	30	9	—	1
June	59	30	10	—	1
May	55	31	11	1	2
Mar.	59	28	11	—	2
Dec., '71	47	33	16	1	3
Nov.	45	34	16	1	4
Oct.	69	26	11	—	3
Sept.	64	28	6	—	2
Aug.	69	25	4	—	2
June	70	24	5	—	1
May	72	20	6	—	2
Mar.	73	22	4	—	1
Jan.	65	28	5	1	1

After soaring in early 1971, the number of people who saw the prices of most things they buy going higher tapered off during the period of the wage-price freeze. But recently there has been a steady return to earlier levels under the impetus of rising food prices.

Although the rate of unemployment has not declined appreciably, public concern over this area of the economy has been cut in half since a year ago this past June. Cross sections have been asked: "Compared to a year ago, do you feel the number of people unemployed around here has increased, decreased or stayed the same?"

	Pct. Inc.	Pct. Dec.	Same	Not Sure
Aug., '72	35	12	45	8
June	42	8	43	7
May	41	10	40	9
Mar.	46	8	39	7
Dec., '71	43	9	38	10
Nov.	40	7	45	8
Oct.	54	6	34	6
Aug.	58	6	31	5
June	70	5	22	3
May	65	4	25	6
Jan.	62	5	27	6

In the end, the public still is willing to give the President the benefit of the doubt on the economic issue: for by 52-27 per cent, a majority now believes that his economic policies "are doing more good than harm," rather than "more harm than good." Yet this favorable result for Nixon is offset by the 64-32 per cent negative marks he receives for his "handling of the economy" while in office.

A realistic assessment of the economic issue in the campaign yields the conclusion that the Republicans cannot hope to win on the issue. The question which is still unresolved is whether the current improvement in the economic mood will neutralize the issue or whether it will work as an undertow that could make the outcome next November much closer than today's poll standings show.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, August 24, the 237th day of 1972. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1814, British troops invaded Washington, D.C. and burned the Capitol and White House.

In 79 A.D., an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in Italy buried the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary War army into Philadelphia.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop airplane flight across the U.S., flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours, 5 minutes.

One year ago: Canada decided to abandon the nuclear-tipped Bomarc anti-aircraft missile used in North America's air defense.

Today's birthdays: Liberian diplomat Angie Brooks is 44. Argentine poet Jorge Luis Borges is 73.

Thought for today: In the field of world policy, I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor—President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
Associated Press Writer

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — An erstwhile ambassador in the Pakistan foreign service stepped briskly along an Islamabad street, twirling his walking stick.

"I feel like a retired gentleman," he said.

He was a Bengali from what is now Bangladesh. That day he had received notice from the government of Pakistan that he had been fired because he had opted for service in Bangladesh—whenever Pakistan will permit him to leave.

Not all the Bengalis once in government service in the bureaucracy or the military have reacted so breezily to entering their seventh month as virtual hostages.

According to officials of the International Committee of the Red Cross, deep mental depression has gripped many Bengali military officers and men isolated in about a dozen camps and abandoned cantonments in the border provinces of Baluchistan and Northwest Frontier.

The Red Cross reports the estimated 25,000 men detained in the camps are well treated physically.

Not Much Mail

"They are not getting much mail from Bangladesh," said a Red Cross inspector. "Some officers who used to have their own houses and servants are living three to a room. They are depressed because they now have to go to the toilet under the eyes of guards carrying bayonets."

In one camp, Bengalis were arguing furiously over who was to be the "wet sweeper" or the "dry sweeper" in helping keep living quarters clean. In the caste system which has grown up, dry is more prestigious than wet.

The Pakistan government has refused to permit any Bengalis to leave officially for home since East Pakistan became Bangladesh last December. According to a census by Bengali community leaders, about 200,300 persons, living principally in Islamabad and in Karachi, are stranded.

Pakistan officials have indicated the Bengalis won't be permitted to leave pending a general settlement under which 91,000 Pakistani civilians and military held in India as war prisoners are repatriated.

Option to Serve

In June government employes who are Bengalis were given the option to serve "East or West Pakistan." Most selected East Pakistan and were removed from their jobs. The government announced allowances to its former employes amounting to half salary for married men and one third to single men.

The government has been firm in its policy of refusing exit. President Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto even turned down the application of the student son of one of his best friends.

According to members of the Bengali community, government workers are not as bad off as private Bengalis. About 150,000 live in Pakistan's largest city, Karachi.

Many who have lost jobs in the economic depression since the breakup of the country have little hope of getting new work. Few employes will risk hiring a Bengali who might leave as soon as he gets permission to go to Bangladesh.

The Red Cross has inspected one area, Musa Colony, where an estimated 25,000 Bengalis live jammed together. Officially, the International Red Cross has not interfered in what is considered a domestic problem.

Pool Money

Bengalis in Karachi have tried to help themselves by pooling money and passing it to the needy. One Bengali bank official who every month distributed 5,000 rupees, about $450, reported this month he could collect only 500 rupees. "People are afraid to give their money," he said. "They don't know how long it will have to last them."

Some Bengalis are getting out illegally, using forged papers or buying their way out with bribes.

The son of K. K. Penni, the Bangladesh ambassador to Indonesia, waited six weeks in Afghanistan until his wife and family were spirited to him across the northwest frontier.

Operators run boats which will carry Bengalis to India from the beaches near Karachi.

According to a leader of the Karachi - Bengali community, some boat operators have callously landed their passengers on beaches within Pakistan territory.

Communists in Israel's Parliament Criticize U.S.

BY ARTHUR MAX

TEL AVIV (AP) — "The Israel army is a tool in the hands of U.S. ruling circles. Zionism is serving foreign powers against the progressive Arab regimes."

These words are not from an Arab or Soviet official, but from a member of Israel's parliament.

He is Meir Vilner, who has sat in the Knesset—parliament—since its first session in 1949 as head of the Israeli Communist party.

Last weekend Vilner condemned his own Jewish state again, at the national congress of Rakah, the Communist party. The congress lasted four days.

Delegates from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Cuba and other national parties—who support the Arabs and denounce Israel—were allowed to meet in a movie theater in the Jaffa Arab quarter of Tel Aviv to hammer away at Israel's policies.

First Day Riot

Most Israelis paid little attention to the congress, except for 300 youngsters and some Russian immigrants who broke up the opening meeting with a riot.

Israel, Vilner told the conference, should halt all military action against Arab guerrillas. Guerrilla attacks, he contended, were the fault of the Israeli government for not bowing to Arab wishes.

Vilner's unwavering fervor for the Soviet Union, and its Mideast policy, has made him one of the most unpopular figures in the country, and his party has little public support.

On the first morning of the 1967 war, Vilner decried in the Knesset what he called Israeli agression and demanded that Israel withdraw. He and his Rakah party have maintained that position ever since.

Shortly after the war an Israeli tried to assassinate Vilner and wounded him with a knife.

Vilner is part of a paradox in the Middle East.

Openly Active

Israel is one of the region's few countries with a legal Communist party, and the only state whose Communists have been openly active for the past 25 years.

Some Arab regimes, especially Egypt, have supressed their local Communist parties in the past while wooing support from Moscow. Only recently have some Arab states granted limited freedom to Communist citizens, and Iraq and Syria have invited Communists into the government.

Yet the Soviet Union has backed the Arabs against Israel since 1955, and the entire Soviet bloc, except Romania, broke relations with Israel because of the 1967 war.

Polish-born Vilner and his two Arab Communist colleagues in the Knesset sound more like guest speakers from Cairo than Israeli parliamentarians.

In a recent interview, Vilner said Rakah demands total withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab land, recognition by the Arab states of Israel's sovereignty only within the pre-1967 borders, and recognition of Palestinian Arab rights. But he agreed with Israel that Israeli ships should be permitted passage through the Suez Canal and the Strait of Tiran.

Vilner says he is convinced Israel is being used as a "tool" by the United States against the Arab states.

"The American factor is decisive here, just as in Vietnam," he said. "Israel has no independent strength. In Vietnam Nixon tried to implement so-called Vietnamization.

"We call what happened here Israelization. What Nixon tried to do there, the United States did in the Middle East many years ago."

Freedom of the ~~Press~~ Public it's your right to know

Freedom of the press? Or freedom of the public? It is both. For the fathers of our Constitution were not more worried about freedom of expression than they were about freedom of the right to know. Therefore, any attack on freedom of the press or the freedom of any communications with the public, any restriction of any facility the responsibility of which is to express opinions and disseminate information to the public, is an attack on and a restriction of freedom of the public.

The next time you read or hear about any bureaucratic or governmental attack which, however thinly veiled, is an apparent attack on the freedom of expression—freedom of the press—consider it an attack upon your constitutional right to know. We consider it that, and we shall continue to uphold your freedom—and ours.

Columnist Given Needed Sympathy

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — I am happy to report that Jack Anderson was not all alone during the greatest of his career, when he falsely accused Sen. Thomas Eagleton of being cited for traffic violations while under the influence of.

I have just received the tapes of the first call Anderson received after the story broke that he had no proof to back up the charges. It was from his old friend, ITT lobbyist Dita Beard.

"Jack," she said, "I just wanted you to know that everyone here at ITT is rooting for you."

"It's nice of you to call," Jack said. "You know, it was all a terrible mistake."

"Of course, it was a terrible mistake. I was saying to Geneen yesterday 'Hal, I can't believe Jack would knowingly do something like this. He must have been under great pressure.' Hal agreed and said, 'It broke my heart when I read about it. I didn't sleep a wink all night.'"

"Geneen said that?" Anderson asked.

"I give you my word. He told me to call you and say that everyone in the ITT organization, including the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., is hoping you'll come out of this okay. He didn't talk to Atty. Gen. Kleindienst, but he is sure he feels the same way."

"Gosh, that's really nice of all of you."

"What are friends for? Hal wants to know if you'd like the company plane to go away for a while."

"No, I'm going to stay here in Washington and keep apologizing."

"What about a good hospital in Denver where you could rest up?"

"I'll take the name, but I doubt if I'll need it."

"Would you like to go to San Diego and stay at one of our new Sheraton hotels?"

"It would be nice, but I'd better stay here for the moment."

"Well, could we lend you our paper shredder? You might want to destroy the photostats of Eagleton's drunk driving tickets."

"There are no photostats of Eagleton's tickets," Anderson said sadly.

"No photostats? Everyone here said there had to be photostats or you wouldn't have gone with the story," Dita said.

"It wasn't my fault," Anderson said. "I had this source, a former high official in Missouri, and he told me he had seen them, and I was afraid of being scooped because I knew a lot of reporters were on the same story. So I broke it."

"Well, that makes sense," Dita said. "Anyone would have done the same thing in your shoes. By the way, could you use some shoes? ITT makes nice shoes."

"I don't need anything, Dita. Your call is enough as far as I'm concerned."

"Geneen's been getting a lot of calls from the press asking what he thinks of Anderson now, and you know what he's been saying? He's been saying that his opinion of you is the same as it was before the Eagleton story."

"That's what I call a pal," Anderson said.

"Would you like to go to the Kentucky Derby next year, when this whole thing blows over?" Dita asked.

"It sounds good," Anderson said. "Let me think about it."

"The thing to remember, Jack, is that these things are forgotten in no time. It may be a big story today, but tomorrow people will be wrapping fish in it. Don't get discouraged, and keep in mind that the entire ITT group, including those companies the Justice Department is unfairly forcing us to divest, is behind you 1,000 per cent."

"I don't know what to say," Anderson said, sobbing.

"Don't say anything, Jack. It's the least we can do after all you've done for us."

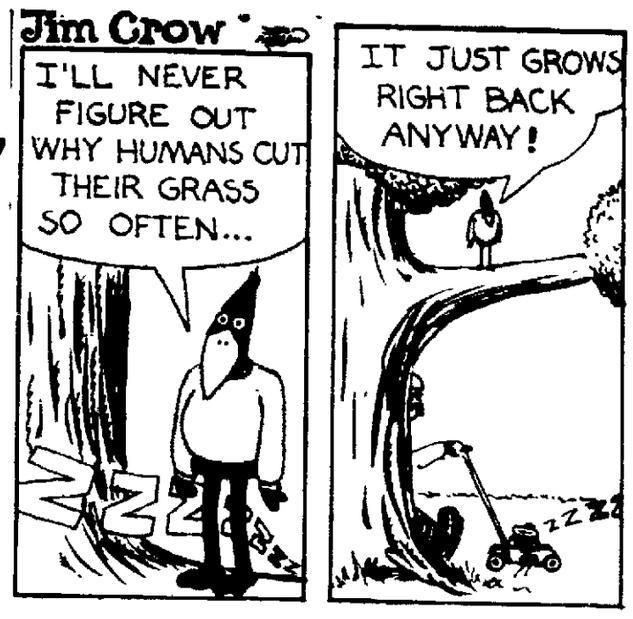
Classes to Begin

KAUKAUNA — All parochial schools in the city have announced that regular class schedules will begin on Monday. Trinity Lutheran School announced an 8:30 a.m. worship service that day preceding class.



Police & Fire Beat

Edward T. Delrow, 54, 3800 E. Broadway St., suffered pains to the right shoulder and elbow after his car struck by another car, driven by Frank P. Kilsdonk, 22, 1820 E. Pershing St., about 8 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Ballard Road and Pershing Street.

According to Appleton police, Delrow's vehicle was southbound on Ballard Road and was struck in the right side by the Kilsdonk car, which was pulling away from a stop sign on Pershing Street. Kilsdonk told police he didn't see the Delrow car because a southbound truck turning from Ballard onto Pershing blocked his vision.

Wendy Witt, 15, 808 E. McKinley St. and William Dafoe, 17, 700 E. Byrd St., complained of stiff necks after the car in which they were riding was struck from behind at the corner of Oneida and Lincoln streets about 5 p.m. Wednesday.

According to Appleton police, the two were passengers in a car driven by Betty J. Witt, 49, 808 E. McKinley St., which was struck by a car driven by Laruel Carini, 32, Brookfield.

The Witt car reportedly slowed to turn left from Oneida onto Lincoln when it was hit.

Appleton firemen were called to the St. Joseph Church rectory, 404 W. Lawrence St., about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday after receiving a report that a davenport was on fire.

Damage was confined to the davenport, which was in a first floor sitting room. The fire was apparently caused by burning cigarette ashes.

An undetermined number of radiators, batteries and tires, valued together at $100, were reported stolen from three stock cars at Gordy's Outagamie Speedway about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

FOREST JUNCTION — Four young men were injured here about 3:35 a.m. today in a two-car crash on U.S. 10 near the intersection with Holmes Road.

According to Calumet police, Leslie Brandt, 24, 128 McKinley St., Kaukauna, was driving west when he lost control of his car and struck a vehicle broadside that was driven by Michael J. Swobda, 18, of Two Rivers.

Brandt reportedly suffered broken ribs and Swobda a fractured nose and injured back in the Swobda vehicle. Mark Bunke, 18, and Erick Press, 18, both of Two Rivers, received a fractured nose and injured back respectively.

All were taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital by private ambulance.

KAUKAUNA — Deputy City Clerk Mrs. Joan Cleveland reminded voters Wednesday of the Aug. 30 deadline for registration to vote in the Sept. 12 primary.

Youth Corps in Area Gets Grant to Provide 224 Part-Time Jobs

An additional $166,880 has been approved for this region of Neighborhood Youth Corps by the U.S. Department of Labor, Manpower Development, to provide part-time jobs for 224 youths.

The announcement was made this morning by Norman Johnson, director for the eight-county project which works with disadvantaged youths.

This is the first time that the labor department has approved a program of this size for this extended period of time, Johnson said.

The money will be used to get jobs for young people in government and other nonprofit agencies for the coming 40 weeks. Up to now, all project funds have been given for 12 and 9 week periods.

The number of students also represents a substantial increase, Johnson said. About 33 youths are usually provided for during the school year.

"While this program does not completely meet the needs of all the disadvantaged, it does provide for a subsantial increase in the number who will be aided," Johnson stated.

"One emphasis of this will be in the area of career development with some special programming being arranged to assist the youths in the evaluation and selection of careers."

The program is designed for people ages 14-21, who are still enrolled in secondary schools. They work in a variety of jobs and spend part of the time with counselors.

The counties included in the district are Outagamie, Waupaca, Calumet, Winnebago, Waushara, Marquette, Green Lake and Fond du Lac.

Additional information is available from Johnson at the youth corps office, 739-3121, or from the local state employment agencies.

Absentee Ballots Are Available at Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Absentee ballots for the Sept. 12 primary are available at the clerk's office, and voters who will be unable to go to the polls in person may write or apply in person at the clerk's office for the ballots.

Written applications must be received by the clerk by 4:30 p.m. Sept. 8. Voters may mark ballots at the clerk's office until 4:30 p.m. the day before the primary election.

Arson Blamed for Camden Fire That Destroyed 40 Houses

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—A fire which officials said was started by arsonists destroyed 40 houses and a vacant warehouse in Camden Wednesday night, leaving at least 40 persons homeless.

The fire started in the block-square warehouse and spread to the houses. "It was definitely set," said Fire Chief Edward Michalak.

It was the seventh blaze attributed to arsonists in Camden this week.

Brezhnev's Gift Car Not Seen in U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I Brezhnev has yet to make a public appearance around Moscow in the Cadillac limousine President Nixon gave the Communist party chief three months ago.

Western diplomats say they have never seen the American car in use A Soviet car buff said he, too, had never seen it or heard of its being spotted

The Soviet enthusiast knew of the Cadillac only through Western contacts The present from Nixon during his visit to Moscow was never reported in the Soviet press.

Brezhnev, a car enthusiast himself, may be enjoying the Cadillac at his vacation retreat on the Black Sea or on restricted roads around his dacha outside Moscow, away from the eyes of foreigners and Muscovites

For driving around Moscow the party's general secretary usually is loyal to home industry and uses a Soviet Z8L which incidentally happens to be designed along the lines of the Cadillac's competitor, the Lincoln Continental

Brezhnev has also been equally careful about being seen in the Citroen-Maserati President Georges Pompidou of France gave him last October

French sources report he is delighted with that speedster

The only foreign car that Brezhnev has been seen using around Moscow is a Rolls Royce, which he appears to like very much and even drives himself

There may be a historical reason. Lenin, the founder of the Soviet Union, rode in Rolls Royces.

Enforcement of Auto-Dealer Codes Stir Up Complaints

MADISON, Wis (AP) — Consumer spokesmen feuded with car dealers Wednesday during a hearing on whether the state Motor Vehicle Division is properly enforcing a new set of auto-dealer codes

Auto salesmen and their representatives appeared to be in the majority in an audience of 360 persons Consumer advocates occasionally were booed and hearing examiner Harold Meyer several times threatened to have the room cleared

Testimony concerning whether to strengthen or weaken the codes was similar to that given in eight hearings last year The codes went into effect in June and the division's enforcement of them has been questioned by the state Justice Department.

Timothy Garrity, an assistant district attorney from Milwaukee County, described the Wisconsin Automotive Trades Association as being "totally self-serving" in its recommendations of amendments to the rules

"Endorse Changes"

"We believe the law should be stronger than it is, and endorse changes proposed by the Wisconsin Justice Department," Garrity said

Steven Epstein, an assistant state attorney general, said a provision proposed by the association would allow dealers to sell unsafe vehicles that would not be allowed on highways under state statutes:

"We contend a higher standard rather than a lower standard should be imposed on dealers with respect to selling safe cars," he said.

The six-page code defines a new car, executive-driven car, demonstrator vehicle and used car, for bids a dealer to advertise one kind of car as another, requires dealers to tell a buyer when his car has been repaired from a wreck and regulates advertising and repair practices

Overdue Delivery

The association objected to a requirement that repair estimates be furnished in writing and that a new-car customer be allowed to cancel his purchase contract if delivery of a car is overdue.

The association also contended the Motor Vehicle Division has no authority to regulate repair practices.

Another Justice Department spokesman said that although dealers do only 25 per cent of their repair work in Wisconsin under their own estimate, they account for 48 per cent of repair complaints received by the department

Epstein described auto sales and repair problems as "the most pressing problems facing consumers today."

Reprehensible Fashion

Dealers in the ghettos, he said, "have discovered they can make money in a most reprehensible fashion They price a car by finding out how much money a customer has."

Garrity said about 35 per cent of the consumer complaints received by his office involve auto sales or repair.

Ken Clark of the state AFL-CIO said rules are especially important now that the state has granted statutory adulthood to persons as young as 18.

Interpretations

The Division of Motor Vehicles was accused of violating state law when it issued a set of interpretations of the rules

Critics have said some of the interpretations unnecessarily favor car dealers

An assistant attorney general, Stephen Nicks, said the division is required to notify the revisor of statutes and the secretary of state when it makes a general policy declaration.

Instead, Nicks said, the division's interpretations "were issued behind a shadow or shield the public cannot pierce."

Warren Stands Behind Aide's News Releases

Attorney General Accused of Attempt At Ethics Breach

MADISON, Wis (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert W Warren says he is ready to take responsibility for his staff's press releases, including those cited in a petition which requests a State Supreme Court censure

Two Milwaukee attorneys have accused Warren of conspiring to breach the canons of ethical conduct by having his executive assistant, former newsman Daniel Hanley, issue statements which Warren's role as an attorney prevents him from issuing.

"Anything released by Dan is approved first by me," Warren said Wednesday in Miami Beach, where he was chairman of the Wisconsin delegation to the Republican National Convention.

Warren said he is "not avoiding any kind of responsibility for any of the releases"

The attorney general said he edits and approves any statement released by his office

Hanley, 40, who is not an attorney, has been with Warren's office since 1969 in an administrative job which Warren created.

Attorneys David Walther and Georgia Felger asked the Supreme Court Tuesday to cite Hanley and Warren for what the petitioners call violations of restrictions against pretrial comments by attorneys.

The State Board of Bar Commissioners has unanimously rejected a similar petition from the attorneys. The Supreme Court petition is an appeal of the board's ruling.

The two attorneys represent a California cosmetics firm saying Warren's office issued press releases which accused the company of 'fast buck' practices.

They accused Warren of using Hanley as an agent to gain publicity from court cases One of the February releases concerning their client, they said, was erroneous as well as prejudicial.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again," Warren said "I will not retract any statement I've made about this operaor or his business"

He said the firm has filed cases against at least 32 other attorneys general too"

The company is accused by the state Justice Department of engaging in an illegal chain-distribution program.

Sturgeon Bay Veteran of Four Conventions Says Her Group Will Zero in on Small Towns for GOP

Special to the Post-Crescent

MIAMI, Fla. — Many of the delegates and alternates to the GOP Convention here are "first-timers." Not so for Sue Stearn, a veteran of not only national gatherings, but state and local party affairs.

Mrs. Richard Stern, a Sturgeon Bay "old pro" of at least Northeastern Wisconsin Republicans, cut her political teeth in 1944 at the age of 14. She's an alternate.

This is her fourth national convention — in addition to more state and district conventions than she cares to recall. Although she exhibits not a bit of hesitation in disclosing her age, which is 42.

Four Conventions

Sue's been in attendance at the Nixon convention in Chicago in 1960, the Goldwater convention in San Francisco in '64, Chicago four years later when the President was nominated, and again now.

"I predicted in 1960 that Sen. Goldwater would be the nominee in '64," said the outgoing, exuberant daughter of the late Leathen Smith, noted Door County shipbuilder.

Sue's a conservative — but then most here are. She's for Spiro Agnew for vice president and would have been, she indicates, even if Nixon had not hand picked him to repeat.

Spiro of '76

And, she's for the elevation of the vice president four years hence. "The Spiro of '76," she says is her slogan.

In addition to her many party duties, She is vice chairman of a "new concept" in GOP politics. It's called the presidential committee — a mass of volunteers aiming at capturing small Wisconsin towns for the GOP cause.

The group, including Green Bay Atty. Richard Boltz, also a vice chairman, will be zeroing in on communities under 10,000 population. "Fifty five per cent of the state's population lives in the small towns, . and the rural areas have been ignored by us long enough," Sue says.

"And, if it works we'll try it for Bob Warren." Asked when and for what office the organization would push for the delegation's chairman and state's attorney general, she added:

Announces for Warren

"Actually I'm announcing that Warren will run for governor in two years. You might say we're practicing. Print that and let Pat Lucey stew," she quipped.

In typical fashion, Warren a Green Bayite who was born and raised in Sturgeon Bay and went to school with Sue, chuckled and remained noncommital.

He gave the distinct impression, however, that the only thing left to do in challenging Gov. Lucey in 1974 is to officially say he will.

Gossip Technique

Sue said the presidential committee will use "the gossip technique," to combat George McGovern's "grassroots" campaign. Lawyers, farmers, businessmen (both sexes) will be sent to fields, coffeeshops, beautyshops, etc. to wage the "counter-attack," she said.

Sue got her initial political training in 1944 when she campaigned for her father in his primary election effort for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Alex Wiley and future Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Wiley won. McCarthy took over later, and her father drowned in a boating mishap.

Sue is accompanied here by her son Eric, a 20 year old UW-Madison student. Both were thrilled when Eric, more liberal than Sue, but still a good deal more "square" that the protesters outside the vast hall, commandeered an alternate's pass and sat on the floor of the hall during the opening session.

Long-time friend Bob Warren engineered the maneuver, frowned upon by arrangement officials.

Sue has spent a few hectic weeks recently. She had to prepare for Miami, tend to son Jonathan's departure Monday for classes at Madison, and get set for the Olympics.

She's not competing, but son Leathem is. He's on the U.S. sailing team, with mother on hand in Munich, cheering him on.

Sue, wife of Richard Stearn, a Sturgeon Bay naval architect, added the presidential committee headquarters will be in Sturgeon Bay "because I won't travel."

For one who doesn't, or at least says she won't, she does

The Mature Woman Leads a Liberated Life

BY ALISON GODDARD

NEW YORK — The average woman once apparently content with being a wife and mother is now becoming increasingly restless and speculative about her role. So says Michigan psychologist Gertrude Zemon Gass. Many observers attribute this to woman's longer life, her smaller family and advances in modern technology.

Today's woman, they say, needs to devote less of her life to rearing her children and taking care of her house. In addition — after her children are grown — she faces what Yale psychiatrist Eugene S. Paykel calls "the problem of how to make the next 30 or 40 years of her life meaningful."

If a married woman — a decade or so ago — decided to follow her star, rather than be a perfect wife and mother, she was made to feel "guilty, defensive and apologetic," says New York sociologist Dr. Alexandra Symonds. If she accomplished something on her own, she adds, she was frequently called unfeminine. Yet various studies find that women of all ages now seem willing to take this risk. No longer content to live in the reflected light of their husbands and children, many want to establish identities of their own. They hear the call to "Liberation," says one observer, and each responds in her own way.

Three Possibilities

Today's woman — in effect — has three choices. She can be an active feminist, working to end restrictions for women in jobs and education, fighting for equal maternity leave rights, more day care centers and special tax deductions for the working mother. Or she can be a full-time homemaker, content to derive her status and her security from her husband. He's the head of the house and she adjusts herself to his needs and his wishes. She can say, "You make the living and I'll make life worth living." Or she can decide that a job doesn't liberate a woman, it merely gets her out of the house.

Or she can be the woman — the majority, up to recently — who tries to resolve the apparent conflict between the aspirations of the feminists and a woman's role as wife and mother. She may wonder if she can be all things to all people — especially to her children — and still be "liberated." She can begin to move toward greater self-knowledge, to find ways to be more free and to fulfill herself. "A lot of women are afraid of being challenged," says a Nebraska mother of four, who recently returned to school. "It's pretty easy to stay home and be a mother, but all of a sudden you're told you can be anything you want. It's a little scary to go out and test yourself."

Husband's Role

For the woman dissatisfied with her present role — but lacking the know-how and courage to change it — a number of colleges (including those in the Fox Valley area) are introducing special study programs considering such fundamental questions as "Who is woman? Who am I? How do I fulfill my potential?"

Many social scientists believe a woman's life can't be changed unless a man's is too. Women can be liberated, they say, only if the distinctions between the traditional male-female roles concerning wage earning, child care and housework become less rigid.

Recent studies show that many couples — through marriage contracts and other means — are trying to redefine these roles. Younger husbands seem more receptive to the idea than older ones.

The latter, brought up to believe that women will automatically perform household chores, view the situation with mixed feelings. In one national magazine survey many expressed considerable hostility to the idea of equality. Yet observers agree that change is in the air. Last year a nationwide poll indicated that the majority of American women opposed efforts to improve their status. This year, the poll found the majority now favors such change.

Many women — and their husbands too — are considering the possibility that motherhood might become a part-time occupation for a short span of a woman's life.

"Then when a woman's children are grown and establish adult lives of their own," says sociologist Alice Rossi of Bal-timere's Goucher College, "the woman will face no retirement 20 years before her husband. Her own independent activities will continue and expand. With her husband, she'll be able to live an independent, purposeful and satisfying third act in life."

Your Problems

New Evidence About Smoking

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How many times has someone asked, "Do you mind if I smoke?" — and even though you'd rather not have smoke blown in your face you say, "That's all right, go ahead." New evidence should be called to the attention of the reading public, Ann, and here it is.

Recent experiments at Texas A & M University indicate that 30 minutes in a smoke-filled room significantly increases the non-smoker's heart rate, blood pressure and the amount of carbon monoxide in his blood. A team of researchers at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center reported that smoke drifting from the burning ends of cigarets, pipes and cigars contains cadmium which could definitely be harmful when inhaled by onlookers. Another research team at Wayne State University in Detroit found that acute illnesses, mostly respiratory, were twice as prevalent among young children whose parents smoked at home than among children whose parents did not.

Please, Ann, urge your readers to say, when asked, "Do you mind if I smoke?" — Yes, I do mind. It's bad for my health." — Charles Kieseweiter, executive director, T.B. and Health Society, Wayne-Oakland Counties

Dear C. K.: Thank you for writing. For those who are too timid to say, "Yes, I do mind," I suggest that you clip this column and have copies made. When asked the question simply hand it over. That should clear a sinus or two.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been reading your column every day for four years hoping to see my problem from someone else. So far it has not appeared and I am getting desperate. I can't sign my name for obvious reasons.

My dad is a prominent man in town. When I was 16 I had an illegitimate child. I gave him up for adoption on the advice of a lawyer and a doctor. It was the best thing to do at the time and I have never regretted it.

At age 19 I married a wonderful man who knew all about my past and has never mentioned it since. We now have two lovely children, ages 4 and 6.

Several people in town knew about my illegitimate child but no one ever threw it up to me. I have conducted myself like a lady since marriage and am considered respectable.

The question: Should I tell my children about their little brother or should I say nothing and hope no one mentions it to them? Please sign me — Sorry and Concerned

Dear S and C: Say nothing. If someone does tell them, explain that you were young and foolish and made a mistake. Then change the subject. No need to attach undue significance to the incident by bringing it up out of the blue and presenting an elaborate defense.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers in care of The Post-Crescent enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

State Law Requires Working Signal Lights

Q: I understand that drivers may signal turning movements with either hand and arm signals or mechanical directional lights. If this is correct, why can a traffic officer issue a ticket when a directional light is not working?

A Your assumption is indeed correct. Motor vehicle operators may signal a turning movement with hand and arm signals, directional lights, or both. The law does not insist that turning signals must be given with the mechanical directional lamps.

However, the law doesc say that motor vehicles operated on Wisconsin streets, roads and highways must be equipped with directional lamps and they must be maintained in good working order

A traffic officer would be right to issue a citation for violation of this equipment requirement. Very often, enforcement officers will issue a warning ticket when they observe an equipment deficiency of this nature. The operator is given a specified time period to show that the equipment problem has been remedied. usually acknowledged by a return card and verified by a mechanic. This procedure is not mandatory, however, and is intended as a courtesy to motorists since it is quite possible that the driver might not be immediately aware of directional or brake lights that are not working. The traffic officer could, of course, issue a ticket for equipment violation initially and be in agreement with the law Policy such as this varies among municipalities.

The important factor with signaling is safety -- for yourself and other motorists The reason law requires mechanical directional signals on motor vehicles is that they are much more easily observed than hand and arm signals In fact, the law specified visibility distance for directional signals, headlamps and tail lights The importance of another driver knowing of your intention to deviate from a straight line of traffic, such as turning or stopping, is obvious.

A person with normal vision will notice the lighted directional signal sooner than the hand and arm signal Weather conditions would affect visibility It is also rather doubtful whether a driver would roll down his window during severe rain or snow to use hand signals We suggest you keep your directional signals in working order and use them, for your safety and that of your fellow motorists

Pythians Conclude Convention

NEENAH — The Ramada Inn was a hub of activity as members of the Knights of Pythias Lodges and Pythian Sister Temples in the state met for a three-day convention, Sunday through Tuesday.

Sunday afternoon's session began with an official welcome by Mrs. Russell Peterson, Appleton, grand chief of the Pythian Sisters. After the presentation of colors by grand temple officers, Rolland Nock, director of special education in the Appleton Public Schools addressed the gathering about his work with handicapped children, including in the presentation slides and a report of the use being made of equipment donated to Highlands School by the Pythians.

Closing out the afternoon session was a report of the Pythian home backers by Mrs. Oscar Carlson, past grand chief, Watertown.

Busy Schedule

Mrs. Harold Nitze of Sheboygan and Mrs. William Zemke of West Allis were in charge of the past grand chief's dinner while the Nomads met with their representatives for their dinner.

Waupaca's Mrs. Lloyd Matheson, past grand chief, presided over a joint ritualistic memorial service in the Gold Room.

Presentation and retiring of colors was handled by members of Appleton Lodge 113 and the Bible was carried to the altar by Past Grand Chief Mrs. Henry Staedt of Appleton. The invocation was given by Past Grand Chancellor Carl Krause of Milwaukee and Kaaren Miles, Appleton, served as soloist. Past Chief Mrs. Harda Dinkel, Eau Claire, gave the eulogy.

Presenting the memorial address was Ralph Freeze, supreme representative of La Farge, and a tribute was made by Past Chiefs Mrs. Fred Kingsley and Mrs. Robert Maves, Appleton. Grand Chancellor Norman Nyre, Mondovi, and grand temple officers joined in the memorial service. A reception was handled by members of Zenith Temple 31, Appleton, and Appleton Lodge 113 with Past Chief Mrs. Dean Koletzke as chairman.

Install Officers

Separate business meetings were conducted Monday and Tuesday. Past Chief Mrs. Leonard Wiese, Appleton, presented the morning welcoming address for the Pythian Sister session with Grand Chief Mrs. Peterson giving the report. Officers were elected Monday afternoon prior to a joint evening banquet. Earl D. Miller, Supreme Representative, Appleton, was toastmaster. The invocation was given by Robert Maves, Appleton, and guest speaker was Victor C. Jorgensen, supreme representative, Corson, S.D.

Pythian conventioneers found that their donations were being put to good use in Appleton. Through an informal talk and slide presentation Rolland Nock, director of education for Appleton public schools, showed how special equipment is being utilized at Highlands School. Flanking him are Mrs. Lloyd Matheson, Waupaca, left, and Mrs. Henry Staedt, Appleton, right.

First Female GOP Delegate Remembers 1920 Convention

BY JACKI KING
Associated Press Writer

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Her wrinkled face becomes animated as she remembers the sizzling, smoke-filled Chicago auditorium where she cast one-half vote in the selection of the Republican presidential nominee.

Mrs. Byron Coon, 91, was an Iowa delegate to the first Republican National Convention that admitted women.

Mementos from that 1920 convention include patched newspaper clippings with faded headlines like "Women get taste of real politics," a brittle black book personally inscribed by the vice-presidential nominee Calvin Coolidge, worn banners and buttons which picture candidates with tightly-slicked hair, stiff collars and bow ties.

Vivid Memories

Mrs. Coon is confined to a wheelchair now with a slow-mending broken hip and she is partially blind, but her memories of that convention are vivid.

"The men looked at us askance, they really did," she recalls. "But, the women delegates didn't go into that smokefilled room where the men were. You could hardly breathe in there. We didn't have to do any of that drinking and sweating to make a decision."

The 25 women delegates each were given one-half vote.

"Can you imagine that?" Mrs. Coon asks indignantly. "It took two of us women to make up a full vote. That half-vote really didn't amount to much."

Warren Harding became the darkhorse Republican nominee in 1920, and Coolidge, almost a political unknown when the convention started, was chosen as Harding's running mate.

Mrs. Coon says she thinks she was selected as a delegate to the 1920 convention "because my husband and I had been very active in the suffrage movement."

"We would go around Iowa, giving speeches, telling women to get out and vote," she recalls. "But, if they didn't want to or if their husbands wouldn't let them, we just went quietly away. We weren't hell-raisers like that foolish Carrie Nation who used to smash up places."

Wed 67 Years

The couple, who now live here with their son, celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary this year.

Mrs. Coon says she has voted Republican in every election since women were given the vote.

"I will be at the polls this time too, voting for both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Angew. I like them both. They both tend to business. I just don't know how they keep their minds with all the problems they have."

Sweet Adelines Gather for Picnic

Appleton's chapter of Sweet Adelines was host to a silver anniversary interchapter "picnic" at the regular meeting place, the Northern State Bank, Tuesday evening.

Among the 70 guests attending were the Paca-Belles from Waupaca, the Kimberlaires from Neenah-Menasha and the Green Bay chapter.

Typical picnic fare, including brats, preceded entertainment in barbershop harmony by each of the chrouses and quartets present. A recently formed Appleton octet gave its first performance and the entire gathering sang songs they have in common in their repertoires.

Season Fondue Pot

Before using a fondue pot for the first time, wash thoroughly, then "season" the interior surface by rubbing with cooking oil or shortening.

Mrs. Byron Coon, 91, was a delegate to the first Republican convention that admitted women. At the 1920 convention, she remembered the sizzling, smoke-filled Chicago auidtorium where she cast one half vote for the Harding-Coolidge ticket. (AP Wirephoto)

In the match Ace Mike Lawrence decided to pass to six clubs, an unfortunate close to the fine start made in finding a fit in both diamonds and spades. Undoubtedly Lawrence hoped to score his club queen and spade ace which made him reluctant to sacrifice. A doubtful decision at best since North's Bobby Goldman, bidding surely placed South with the club queen.

At the other table the Italians saved at six diamonds and a razzle-dazzle defense by Jim Jacoby got an extra trick. He led spades after cashing the heart ace and declarer played the ace to avoid a possible ruff. All went for naught as the Italians gained 870 points and 13 international match points (IMPs).

In the match the Italians scored another heavy gain. After a similar auction, the Italian South led a heart and declarer could manage only eight tricks. Jim Jacoby led the spade ten and lost the hand. Declarer won the jack in dummy and was then able to lead to dummy's heart king for his ninth trick. Both declarers, Goldman for The Aces and Georgio Belladonna of Italy, brought the diamond suit in with no losers (two finesses against North).

Helping Your Son or Daughter Get Ready for College

During the next few weeks the first trek from home to college will begin for thousands of this year's high-school graduates. You can help your son or daughter ease the transition from home to relative independence. Colleges are not what they used to be. They no longer stand "in loco pjarentis." Even first year students are pretty much on their own. Many are puzzled, and some can't cope with all this freedom.

Find out how much it will cost your child to live, whether he stays in a dorm or in other lodging. He may need more money than what is made available to him or he may have to go to work to supplement his funds. Try to help him - with cash, with obtaining a student loan, with finding a job, and with working out his budget so that he will have time for studies and for social life.

Courses Standard

First year courses in most colleges are pretty standard. Discuss which of the optional subjects might advance his interests. College advisors are not always helpful, especially with first-year students. Many drop out after a year. They must first prove themselves before the authorities take them seriously.

Make your child's departure from home something of an occasion. He may not want a party or a fuss made over him. But he or she will appreciate the gift of a typewriter or other useful equipment to mark the occasion. Clothes in all colleges are very informal now. Don't urge a "Joe College" outfit or a bundle of "co-ed" pretties on your child. He or she will find a good assortment of blue-jeans and sweaters more useful.

Don't take your child to school unless you are asked. It's difficult enough to get settled, make friends, register for classes, get the right books, and find time for all the other essentials, without having parents hang around during the first few days. Visit you child later, when he is well established.

Write Frequently

Be prepared to write your child frequent letters and don't expect regular answers. Your letters are the only way to keep in touch and maintain family unity. Your child will appreciate lots of mail, though he or she doesn't answer you as often as you would like. Pick up the phone from time to time and call him or her up. This will make the separation from home easier, and you'll find yourself less estranged from your son or daughter in the years ahead.

Student work, study, travel and scholarship programs — Does your teen-or college-age son or daughter want to work, travel or study in the U.S. or abroad this summer or next? Would you like to help him or her get the right information or a scholarship? Arnold Arnold has prepared a booklet especially for readers of this column. It lists the best and most reliable books, and private and government sources of information in the U.S. and abroad. Send 20 cents and a large(No. 10), stamped, self-addressed envelope to Arnold Arnold, Dept. C, in care of the newspaper.

Professor Says Organic Foods Offer Little Benefit

MENOMONIE — Organic foods sold in health stores offer little benefit for the average individual, a university dietitian has warned Dr. Mercedes Kainski, director of the dietetics major at University of Wisconsin-Stout, said that although organic foods may be priced higher than products found in the supermarket they offer no more nutrition, are no safer and are of no more benefit than ordinary food.

"Organically grown food is not any better than other food bought in the supermarket because a plant cannot absorb any more nutrients than it needs for its own life and reproduction," she said. Dr. Kainski explained that organic food cannot be produced at a higher nutritional level than foods using chemical supplements.

She also said that plants grown with man-made chemicals are identical to organically grown plants if the proper chemicals are used. "Nitrogen added from organically grown food is the same thing as nitrogen added by the chemist," she said.

On the claim that organically grown food is grown without the use of pesticides and is therefore safer, Dr. Kainski stated that properly handled pesticides have no adverse effect on man. "If the farmer follows the directions set up by the chemical companies or by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and if the food is handled in recommended procedures, there should be no evidence of residues of insecticides," she said. "If the pesticides are handled properly, it really won't make that much difference."

As for the use of vitamin subsidized foods sold in health stores, Dr. Kainski said they are unnecessary for the average, healthy individual. A well-balanced diet of market food is sufficient for good health, she noted. "If an individual is a normal, healthy person and is eating a well-rounded balanced diet, there should be no reason for supplementing diet with ironized yeast or pills," she said.

"If the person is not healthy, then the diet becomes restricted and a physician should recommend a dietary change with the help of a dietitian, she added.

Jobs are scarce — whether you get one, may depend on how you go about it!

In a recent column, business columnist Sylvia Porter presented the views of a personnel director towards job interviews and we reprint it here as an aid to job-seekers.

The job interview is your first and best single chance to land — or lose — the job you are seeking. It's where you and the prospective employer get the chance to get any feel about working together in that company.

Do your homework on the company before the interview: the goods and services it sells, its business philosophy, its size and financial standing, its markets, competition, problems.

Decide which of your skills and talents you will stress . . . what you can contribute. Be able to tell the interviewer why you want to work for his company.

Take with you extra copies of your resume and, if you are an artist, writer or photographer, examples of your work. Also take along copies of any letters of recommendation you may find useful.

Present a neat appearance. And be punctual. Remember, no matter what your generation, your would-be employer probably belongs to an older, more conservative era than yours.

Do not bring friends, relatives or ANYBODY along.

Do not boast. Understate rather than overstate your qualifications, but, of course, don't downgrade yourself.

Let the interviewer set the pace and direction; answer questions briefly and naturally.

Have a fairly solid idea of what salary you want, but don't bring it up until the interviewer asks you. Remember to count in the value of fringe benefits . . . which average an extra 25 cents for every dollar you receive in basic pay.

Don't hesitate to ask questions about the company or about the job for which you are applying. Good questions indicate interest and enthusiasm.

Don't make promises you can't keep. This includes dates for further interviews which you know you might have to break.

If you are asked to submit to some type of test — intelligence, aptitude, etc. — leave plenty of time for this procedure. And listen carefully to instructions regarding the tests.

Finally, don't panic. Your world won't come to an end if you flunk the interview or the tests and miss out on this particular job. Just learn from this failure how to win the next time . . . and good luck!

Permits for Dams Harder To Acquire

DNR May Clamp Down on Developers Of Recreation Areas

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A more cautious policy on the issuance of state permits for the creation of artificial water impoundments as the basis of commercial recreation and residential development appears to be in the making.

Officials of the state Department of Natural Resources have rebuffed the state's leading developer in that field under circumstances that suggest more careful examination of such projects in a period when there appears to be a huge market for such properties.

N. E. Isaacson was denied a permit to dam an Adams County stream as a means of selling lots because the state agency said he had not shown that adequate sewage management would be provided for the area that would be downstream from two existing developments on Fourteen Mile Creek, about 15 miles south of Wisconsin Rapids. The DNR dismissed as unfounded objections of some environmentalists about the damage to eagles reported to nest nearby and the destruction of botanical values in the neighborhood.

But it bore down hard on the pollution risks arising out of sewage disposal.

The planned flowage would have been about 300 acres in size.

The regulatory department's finding conceded that the new lake may provide more recreational opportunities for the public than does the stream in its present condition and that the lake and its related developments may have a greater economic value to the district than the stream and lands in their present state.

But it said the new impoundment added to two existing dams which have created Lakes Sherwood and Camelot nearby probably would create a nutrient concentration in the water that would degrade environmental quality.

"Environmental pollution will occur unless there are adequately financed units of government with pollution abatement authority to implement an areawide program which can provide the means to preserve ecological values and prevent pollution," said the agency in denying the permit.

The Adams County Board had joined with Isaacson in asking for the authorization of the dam.

Nuclear Plant Cooling Tower Faults Described

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cooling towers at the Point Beach nuclear power plant could cause problems, one of the scientists who drafted the environmental impact statement concerning the facility said Tuesday.

Charles Coutant of Oak Ridge, Tenn., told an Atomic Energy Commission licensing hearing that the towers could concentrate pesticides and corrosion inhibitors in the water which is returned to Lake Michigan from the plant near Two Rivers.

Cooling towers might also produce fog, Coutant noted, and he said they are ugly.

Environmental groups have favored use of the towers to cool water heated during plant processes before returning it to the lake.

Gordon Dicker of Washington, D.C., a commission engineer who also helped write the environmental impact statement, testified that no specific plans for decommissioning the plant were included in the report.

This was the case, he said, because the land is "irreversibly committed" to use by power plant of the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. and the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

Testimonial for Froehlich Slated Tuesday Night

Three prominent Republicans will highlight a testimonial dinner Tuesday for State Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Appleton.

Serving as master of ceremonies for the 7:15 p.m. dinner at the Country Aire will be Rep. Earl F. McEssy, Fond du Lac.

Keynote speakers for the event will be former speaker and majority leader Paul R. Alfonsi of Minocqua and former Assembly majority leader J. Curtis McKay of Mequon.

Froehlich is being honored for his 10 years of legislative service. Tickets are $12.50 per person. Reservations can be made by writing "Friends for Froehlich," P.O. Box 2008, Appleton, Wis. 54911.

Court Petitioned to Rule on Warren Ethics

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The Wisconsin Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to find Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren and his executive assistant, Daniel P. Hanley, guilty of conspiring to violate the legal code of ethics.

Attorneys Georgia Felger and David Walther contend in their petition that Warren uses his $24,000 per year executive assistant to make statements in news releases that Warren himself cannot make because he is an attorney.

The lawyers appealed to the high court after the State Board of Bar Commissioners voted unanimously not to file a complaint as they had requested against Warren and Hanley.

The code of ethics prohibits attorneysc from making statements about pending civil cases.

The attorneys for Holiday Magic, Inc., a California-based cosmetics firm, said Warren, through Hanley, had issued several news releases accusing the firm of "fast buck" practices while a civil case was still pending against it.

One of the releases, the petition alleged, turned out to be incorrect.

Holiday Magic asked the high court to declare Warren's "publicity system" illegal, and to rule that the bar commissioners violated their statutory duty in refusing May 26 to issue a complaint.

The firm, which has been charged by the state with engaging in an illegal chain distributor scheme, called the new releases a "flagrant violation" of the judicial code which "irreparably harmed" Holiday Magic's business.

"The attorney general has engaged in a course of conduct calculated to prejudice pretrial procedures in which the attorney general has used the power and prestige of his office to gain publicity," the attorneys said in their petition.

Paper Cup Required For Target Game

BY CAPPY DICK

The target game illustrated in the adjoining sketch requires a paper cup, two chairs and four different colors of yarn.

To prepare the equipment, cut two panels from the sides of the paper cup, which should be a large one. Figure one shows what the cup will look like after the cuts have been made.

String four different colors of yarn between two chairs as shown in figure three.

Two Chairs

The object of the game is to stand between the chairs and drop the cup, attempting to land it astraddle one of the yarn colors (figure two). This looks easy, but you can never be sure how the cup is going to land nor can you be sure it will remain on the yarn.

Contestants take turns dropping the cup. The first player to earn a total of 200 points wins the game.

Scoring is done this way:

If the cup lands and stays on the red yarn it earns 25 points.

Green yarn: 15 points.

Blue yarn: 10 points.

Brown yarn: 5 points.

Glad You Asked That!

Q: In "The Godfather," how did they get those terrifying scenes so realistic — Sonny being gunned down? The policeman being shot in the head and throat? And the man shot through the eyeglasses? — Gerhard S., Columbus, Ohio.

A: By rigging up a special pair of eyeglasses with a squib of artificial blood. And activated by a powder cap that shattered the glass and the squib simultaneously. Since plastic protected his eyes and the charge blew outward, there was no danger to the eyes. The other illusions were realistically created by putting small charges of gun powder in the area of the shots, then exploding them by remote control. Critics' consensus: To special effects man A.D. Flowers — a special bouquet.

Q: Now that Frank Sinatra has retired, who does he consider to be the best singer around today? Helene Wolf, Astoria, N.Y.

A: Tony Bennett. Sinatra even taped an introduction to his friend's act calling Tony "the world's best singer." Which Bennett uses in his personal appearances.

Q: I've heard that Humphrey Bogart was confined to a wheelchair the last few months of his life. And that he had a special way of getting from his bedroom upstairs to the kitchen downstairs, then back again. Was it by elevator? — Mrs. Molly T.H. (a loyal Bogey buff), Denver.

A: No. It was by dumbwaiter. With the top removed to give the sick man more headroom. Perched on a small stool, he was transported by a hand-propelled pulley. Bogey hated the 20-second ride in the dark and dank shaft, recalls his friend Joe Hyams.

Q: Who said, "I don't know which is worse — death, taxes or getting up in the morning?" — L.F. Gardner, Jackson, Miss.

A: The source of the witty remark is obscure. The original quotation, "Nothing is certain but death and taxes," is credited to Benjamin Franklin, discussing the probable permanence of the newly-adopted U.S. Constitution.

Q: Have there been any incidents of counterfeiting in connection with the N.Y. State Lottery? — Diane T., Phoenix, Ariz.

A: "Various security features have been incorporated into the state lottery tickets," says Deputy Director William M. Ham, "and have proved satisfactory." (No further information of the subject is given, presumably, I suspect, not to tip off would-be counterfeiters.)

Q: Not long ago it was reported that actor Albert Decker died of involuntary strangulation. Isn't this a common fatality? — Overill, San Jacinto, Cal.

Q: We've heard that actor Ross Martin of "Wild, Wild West" will turn up as Charlie Chan. The question is: when? — C. D. Revis, Asheville, N. C.

A: As soon as NBC is ready to release a feature film under the title, "The Return of Charlie Chan." Which should be real soon since the late author Earl Derr Biggers' detective character is enjoying a revival that will dwarf the original popularity of his Confucius-quoting sleuth. Possibly because of the acceptance of Communist China into the UN and friendly relations with the U. S. since the visit of President Nixon.

The Crispins, twisting, twirling teeter-board artists, will be among the star performers at the 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. shows Tuesday, Aug. 29, of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus. The Big Top tent will be the scene of the two shows; it will be set up on the circus grounds on West College Avenue Extension. Sponsors are the Y's Men's Clubs of Appleton YMCA.

'Julie' About Star Singer, Her Life

8-9 Channels 11-9—Julie . . . is a fascinating documentary. It is a look at Julie Andrews as she accepts a TV series, prepares for it and still tries to lead the life she has been living for the last three years as wife and mother. Her husband, Blake Edwards, directed this memorable look at the "glamorous" life his wife leads, glamor here being made up of equal parts of sweat and back-breaking physical work. You'll see just enough bits from the preview show of Julie's series to make you anxious to see the rest. You'll empathize completely with this magical performer and see that the magic comes from hard work.

7-7:30 Channel 11 — Bespectacled Oliver sets out to wipe out prejudice and intolerance among his friends on Kid Power, a special preview of a new fall Saturday morning animated children's program. Based on the nationally syndicated strip "Wee Pals" by Morrie Turner, the show deals amiably with the loves of children of various ethnic backgrounds

7:30-8 Channel 11 — Three Dog Night features the group which has, in four years, grossed $30 million on records alone. Produced by Dick Clark, this was filmed at NBC (ABC didn't have the facilities available with an audience of 600 [illegible] screaming fans. Roberta Flack is the guest, singing "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face" and with the group's three lead singers, "Where Is The Love?" After that, Three Dog Night sang for a solid hour. That was edited down to what you see and hear, which includes "Eli's Coming," "Black and White," "Joy to the World" and a medley of '50s rock hits.

9-10 Channel 5 — Dean Martin Presents the Bobby Darin Amusement Company has Carl Reiner and whispering Claudine Longet as guests. Bobby does Groucho with Reiner in the show's opening, and other "regulars," include Dusty, the hippie poet.

8-9 Channel 5 — The Ironside gang is trying to find a major dope pusher and, by extreme coincidence, Ironside's (Raymond Burr) poker buddy gets involved because his wife is an addict. Nico Minardos is the friend and Anne Francis is his wife. R

9-10 Channels 11-9 — Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law has a strong scene about a rapist and the difficulty a victim has in proving she was indeed a victim. Rick Nelson is the accused and Stefanie Powers is the one woman who agrees to [illegible] against the man. R

Plastic Surgeon's Artistry Appealing to Men

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

In the eternal quest for beauty and youth, increasing numbers of men are seeking help from the surgeon's scalpel.

Face lifts, nose alterations, hair transplants and other types of plastic surgery for men have doubled in the last five years.

"While it's still more common to see women asking for cosmetic surgery, men now comprise about 15 to 20 per cent of our patients," says Dr. Eugene Courtiss, secretary of the American Society for Aesthetic Plastic Surgery.

Surgeons in New York, Miami, and Los Angeles attribute this increase to the continued emphasis on youth and youthful appearance, the competition among men for jobs—and for women—and the growing acceptance of plastic surgery as a cosmetic aid.

Look Better

"Any man who wants to look better and younger, who cares about self-improvement and can afford the luxury, is considering plastic surgery as he never would have a few years ago," says Dr. John Williams, a plastic surgeon from Century City, Calif.

What Phyllis Diller did for women thinking about a face lift, Sen. William Proxmire no doubt accomplished for men worrying about their baldness. When Proxmire showed up in the Senate one day with a turban of bandages, he candidly admitted he was beginning hair transplants. Bobby Hull, the hockey player, is another prominent figure who brought the subject of hair transplants out in the open.

Because it speaks of vanity, many men still seem reluctant to discuss their face lifts as freely as they would a gall bladder operation. But the word gets around. Plastic surgeons report that more and more men come to them referred by other male patients.

Psychiatric Team

A study made by a team of psychiatrists and plastic surgeons at the Johns Hopkins University in 1960 indicated that men asking for cosmetic surgery showed more psychopathology and emotional problems than did women seeking similar operations. But several plastic surgeons feel the situation is different today.

"A few years ago, only effeminate men thought to have very narcistic needs came in for face lifts. Most of our male patients were artists and models. But now, normal, business executive types are asking for the operation," says Dr. Dicran Goulian, director of plastic surgery at New York Hospital.

Nevertheless, plastic surgeons are careful to determine what motivates a man for such surgery. An operation is often refused if the man has unrealistic expectations of surgical results. A face lift, they caution, cannot save a marriage, or get a promotion, or assure romantic success with young women.

"The man cannot be too dependent on the postoperative self," says Dr. Thomas Baker of Miami. "A face lift is not like some magic wand that will make a man step back in time and be 25 instead of 50."

Surgeons say a face lift is more complicated for men than for women. It works best on men with longer hair to hide the scars.

The operation can last about two hours and costs about $5,000. (Prices for all types of cosmetic surgery are generally lower on the West Coast.) Depending on the man's age, a good face lift can last about seven to 10 years.

The most common operation men ask for today is the removal of baggy eyelids and crow's feet and costs about $750.

Body contour operations which are complicated and often leave extensive scars are relatively rare for men, though some men have asked to have droopy buttocks lifted, or fatty deposits in hips and breasts removed.

Hair transplants are gaining in popularity but are only successful on men with an adequate supply of their own hair—at least in the back. Small plugs of about 15 growing hairs from the man's head are implanted in the bald areas. To cover a two-inch receding hairline might take six treatments of one hour each and would cost from $1,500 to $2,500. Final results are obtained only after about 18 months when the hair is fully grown out.

Potted Plants

Some plastic surgeons are skeptical about the results. "A hair transplant looks exactly like what it is . . . like potted plants on a veranda," says Williams. "It's difficult to recreate the natural hairline. I think a man is much better off wearing a hair piece."

While some men look to cosmetic surgery to recapture at least the illusion of youth, others see it as a remedy for physical defects. Surgeons report marked increases in men seeking alteration of a crooked nose, or protruding ears, or a receding chin.

'Sometimes surgery is more helpful than many hours on the psychiatrist's couch, says Goulian. "It's amazing how a small change in someone's face can help their attitude toward life."

Bill, who asked that his real name not be used, is 44, father of four, and an office manager. All his life he had been self-conscious about the bags under his eyes.

A year ago, he had them removed surgically.

"I guess I don't look that much different," he says now." It hasn't changed me or made me more handsome. But it did remove a feature that I was very unhappy with and that's all that mattered."

Last Thing to Die in An Actor Is His Ego

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK(AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Poetry and passion aren't restricted to the young, but it is hard to name offhand three great sonnets or three immortal love affairs created by men after the onset of arthritis.

At least one out of every three detectives has a secret desire to be an actor.

When an overweight executive and his overweight secretary both go on the same diet the same week, you don't have to put a notice on the office bulletin board for everyone to figure out what's going on.

The first thing to go in a veteran ballplayer is his legs. The first thing to go in a show business performer is his talent—the last thing to go, his ego.

It is usually pleasant to meet a pleasant-faced person, but one who invariably smiles can get to be a bigger annoyance than one who goes about invariably scowling. We can at least suspect the scowler of being a pessimist who has had a hard life and now no longer trusts his fortune to be any better.

But what about the guy who goes about with the grin that positively never will wear off?

How can we avoid coming to the conclusion that he is either too dotic to care what happens to him or too punch drunk from disaster to recognize it any longer?

My idea of a blind optimist is the retired widower who arranged a first date with a girl half his age for the evening of the same day he got his new false teeth.

My idea of a realistic cynic is a fat man who has just split the seam of his pants bending down to retrieve a lost penny which he felt would bring him good fortune.

There are no worse enemies in the world than two pretty red-haired girls living in the same block.

The day of the red-faced, table-thumping, tantrum-indulging business executive is about over. You hardly ever see anymore the picturesque, arm-waving big bosses of yesterday, who left echoes and a trail of storms and shattered underlings wherever they went.

The modern boss no longer roars or shouts orders. He merely purrs or sends incisive notes. He goes through life without any major sound effects. In any situation, above all, he prides himself on "keeping his cool," just as college sophomores do.

What is the difference in working for these vastly different types of employers?

"Well, life is a little easier from day to day under one of the new bosses," said one veteran office subordinate. "But at least with the old kind of dinosaur you always knew exactly where you stood. Today when you talk to a new boss he may silently hold out a large object to take out as you leave, and it to take as ou leave, and it isn't until you are outside his office that you realize the object he put in your hands is your own head."

Sex is getting to be such a boring subject of discussion today that it is a relief, now and then at cocktail parties, to listen to a guest who has a few suggestive remarks to make about tennis.

It's getting harder, too, to make any new eyebrow-raising comments about the weather in this season of unexpected national dampness. Even the most hardened professional oldtimer admits he hasn't seen any weather quite like this since the last time we had weather like this.

Turtle Comes Home After 6 Year Trip

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — Touche Turtle, after a six-year road trip, has returned to the home of the Joe Sloan family.

Touche broke a cord tied to a hole in his shell in 1966. He returned from his wanderings last week. He was identified by the hole and flecks of red paint on his shell.

Oregon State University zoologists said the return of the box turtle was not unusual because the reptile normally lives its life within a half-mile of its birthplace.

Youthful Petitioning Rebuffed

Supporters of Senator McGovern who believe that North Vietnam will release our prisoners once we have ceased military operations against that country should heed what happened to two Green Bay high school students in Paris.

The students were leaders of a movement which gathered over five million signatures of students across the country on petitions asking North Vietnam to abide by the Geneva convention in their treatment of American prisoners. They took 16 boxes containing the petitions to Paris in the hopes of delivering them to Hanoi's delegates to the peace talks. After the better part of a week in Paris, during which every effort to meet with the North Vietnamese was rejected, the students returned home.

It is understandable that Hanoi's representatives did not wish to expose themselves to a situation in which they might have been embarrassed. But is it any more understandable that the North Vietnamese will suddenly become honorable people if we end all support of South Vietnam?

Fancy Cheeses Prosper

A Boston newspaper the other day published a dispatch from Vermont relating the rapid increase in the number of "caseophiles" in the northeastern region of the country, and went on to observe that the trend is a hopeful one for the dairymen of the country.

The caseophile is the Sunday word that a professor of linguistics might use to describe the cheese lover, and especially if he wanted to express pleasure about the increasing evidence that the people of America are overtaking the peoples of other parts of the world and notably European cousins in appreciating and consuming cheese. Cheese is one of the big stories in the American food industry. Americans now are snacking at the rate of about 13 pounds per person a year, which is not only a record for the country, but good news for dairymen everywhere and especially in this premier cheese producing state of America.

Cheese fans who have sought the reasons ascribe several causes. In the country as a whole more cheeses of high quality are being produced than ever before. There are more of them, or more precisely, the cheesemakers are producing more varieties as Americans learn to enjoy some of the exotic ones that have been common in other parts of the world for centuries. The cheese trade journals relate that there are now more than 400 distinctively named varieties available in the United States. They are derivatives of 18 basic varieties, several of which provided a secure foundation for the vast Wisconsin dairying enterprise long ago.

The cheering cheese trade news about the growing sophistication of the American palate coincided with the arrival at the editorial desk of the comprehensive index of Wisconsin agriculture published by the state agricultural administration.

Last year Wisconsin produced nearly a billion pounds of cheese and this year doubtless will pass the billion pound mark. In its major categories of American, Muenster, brick, limburger Italian and blue mold cheeses, it ranked first in the nation as usual, and in Swiss cheese it was second.

Everywhere in the country cheese is becoming a gourmet item. Cheese is "in" as a conversation piece. The gift cheese market has boomed. Fancy cheese shops dot the vacation routes of the nation. Some are even called "boutiques", cheese men report with perhaps a slight tone of deprecation, but yet with visible pride.

Legend relates that cheese was invented in Arabia in ancient times when a traveler had journeyed on his donkey for hours through hot and mountainous country and thirst led him to dismount for a drink of milk he carried in a packet made of sheep's stomach which was used for such purposes in those times. He had not washed the container, with the result that the rennin (from rennet) in the stomach combined with the heat of the sun and the movement of his pack animal, turned the milk into a type of cheddar cheese. The happy wanderer drank the whey and then had the first cheese meal in history. Next day the remaining portion tasted even better. The fussy historian may smile at the tale, but we like it.

Elderly Eligible for Food Stamps

A mailing with August Social Security checks dealing with eligibility for federal food programs is in error as far as residents of Wisconsin are concerned.

The leaflet was mailed as part of Project Find, a multi-agency effort to inform the elderly of their possible eligibility for federal food stamp and surplus commodity programs and to locate those who may be eligible. The mailing did not take into account eight states, including Wisconsin, which have slightly more liberal rules for eligibility.

In Wisconsin, individuals whose income is less than $210 a month or couples whose income is less than $255 a month are eligible for food stamps in counties which have this program.

Project Find is an outgrowth of last year's White House Conference on the Aging. The project is using the resources of the Social Security Administration, the Department of Agriculture, the Office of Economic Opportunity, ACTION, the volunteer student agency, and the American Red Cross, which plans to recruit 50,000 volunteers in the effort to reach the eligible elderly.

Dr. Arthur Flemming, former secretary of health, education and welfare, who is co-chairman with Mrs. Richard Nixon for the project, has noted that "many older persons, lost to society, are eligible for federal assistance programs but are not aware of it."

Volunteer civic agencies concerned with the problems of the elderly should join in the governmental search for those who are eligible. It is a cruel irony that some who have supported these programs with their taxes over decades now may not be receiving help for which they are eligible.

Fishing License Sales

A report released by the federal Department of the Interior carries a statistic of special interest to Wisconsin residents. Covering fiscal 1971, and totalling the "non-resident fishing licenses, tags, permits and stamps issued," the department states that almost half a million, 461,418, to be exact, such non-resident permits were sold to out of state fishing enthusiasts last year.

That's almost 200,000 more than the next state, and most of us would have a hard time guessing which one that is. Would you say Tennessee? That's right. Tennessee had 261,536. Minnesota was third with 250,924, followed by Oregon with 278,057 and then a substantial drop down to 221,437 for number five, Michigan.

Our state has no close competitors when you compare out of staters coming in to fish in our waters.

That fact ought to make us appreciate what we have.

It should also make us more aware of the growing factor which tourism is very rapidly becoming in our state's activity and economy. Fishing, of course, is only a portion of that picture.

The next time you bait the hook, or make the cast, or fillet the pike, take a moment or two to reflect on the goodness of God which has supplied us with such an abundance of fishing opportunity. We ought to appreciate it. People who come from long distances every year do.

Dale Has New Railroad Depot

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Aug. 31, 1872.

The Wisconsin Central has built a convenient and handsome depot building about a mile from the Corners in the Town of Dale.

It looks probable that a little village may grow up around the depot, which may interfere somewhat with the Corners. It is evident that the depot has been located too far from the Corners to benefit all people concerned.

However, we think that the citizens of Dale will look out for their own interests in the matter.

Guests included Serena Peterson, Donna, Gloria and Nelson Greely, Karen Jones, Nancy Nelson, Carol and Barbara Koismo, LaVerne and Daniel Rasmussen, Everett and Carol Olson, Marilyn Sherbeck, Carol Roblee, David and Lois Olson.

The Kaukauna Traveling Club made plans for its year's program at a dinner meeting in Little Chute. Members at the meeting were Mrs. George Kailhofer Jr., Mrs. William Glasheen, Mrs. Henry Hoffman, Mrs. Ted Wittman, Mrs. Dick Wenzel, Mrs. William Jansen, Mrs. Melvin Mainville, all of Kaukauna, and Mrs. John Hamilton, Appleton.

Barbershoppers met for rehearsal at the Fred Clark cottage at Waverly Beach. A Word Edgewise

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

As you may have noticed over the years, I have devoted almost no space to gossip. This is not because I don't enjoy a titillating morsel as much as the next man; rather it is an outgrowth of my professional training as a constitutional and political historian. I have a passion for probative evidence, that is, for pieces of paper with a date and a signature. For instance, a couple of years or so ago during the famous "Battle of Johnson's Speech" the American public was exposed to an orgy of gossip.

Ex-President Johnson, in an interview with Walter Cronkite, said he had sent a memo to his principal foreign policy advisers asking them for a total review of our options in Vietnam. Townsend Hoopes, a former middle level official in the Pentagon, wrote an article accusing Johnson of lying, stating flatly that the Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford had never received such a memo.

Signed Receipts Given

Now there was a simple way of discovering whether Johnson or Hoopes was correct. Any "Top Secret" memorandum of this order is delivered personally by an officer courier who does not depart until he has received a signed receipt for the document – a personally signed receipt. The secretary's or administrative assistant's signature won't do. So the question was this: Did Clifford sign a receipt for this particular memo? A check of the President's files indicated that he did. That settled that.

At that moment we are off on another gossip carnival launched when the Democratic vice presidential nominee, R. Sargent Shriver, told the press that in the winter of 1969 President Nixon "blew" a golden opportunity for peace in Vietnam. Shriver, who was then Ambassador to France, was not plugged in to the Paris negotiations. They were conducted on a separate diplomatic track. However, he undoubtedly engaged in private conversations with Ambassadors Harriman and Vance.

When pushed for documentation by Secretary of State William Rogers, Shriver took refuge behind this jurisdictional division. He allowed that he had not reported this alleged bungling of the negotiations, but that his views were reflected in the cables sent by Harriman and Vance. Since he remained in Paris for another year as President Nixon's representative, we can assume that the matter did not keep him awake nights.

For openers then, Shriver has no document to back his charge. Let us then turn to Ambassadors Harriman and Vance, who rushed to support Shriver's allegation. Recall that, owing to arguments over the shape of the table, agreement on substantive talks was not reached until January 16, 1969 – four days before Mr. Nixon assumed office. Harriman departed shortly thereafter; Vance roughly a month later. At some time between January and March, 1969, then, it is contended that the North Vietnamese signaled their willingness for peace. The alleged signal was that Hanoi withdrew a substantial number of its troops from I Corps.

Johnson Skeptical

It is true that Hanoi did pull out some 20-odd regiments, but not in January. This was done in August and September, 1968, and it was then interpreted by Ambassadors Harriman and Vance as a signal that, if we reciprocated, peace might be in the offing. President Johnson was impressed, but skeptical. He insisted on taking our insurance – the "reservations" that Hanoi would not shell the cities, would respect the DMZ, and permit American aerial surveillance. In return he offered a total halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. Hanoi balked at the "reservations," but eventually, at the end of October, informed us through Soviet intermediaries that they would accept the package. The bombing was stopped.

My memory tells me that nothing remarkable occurred in January, 1969, but almost four years have passed since I saw the Harriman-Vance reports. So before we go any further into this hearsay frolic, I would urge President Nixon to declassify the cables from the Paris negotiators. Let's substitute pieces of paper for memories (including mine) – which are frequently and quite unintentionally self-serving.

State Campaign Will be Old Story: Spending vs. Taxes

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON – Nothing that has developed in state politics thus far this year suggests that the issues in the campaigns for the legislature will be significantly different from the monotonous recriminations about state finance and taxation that have dominated such contests for a decade and more.

Indeed, if there is a carefully critical listener in the electorate here and there who is disposed to make comparisons of what he hears from Republican and Democratic legislative nominees and their respective state party campaign publicists, he will conclude that he has heard it all before and that he has heard it so often from both sides that he sees little reason to choose between them.

Republicans have had handed to them – although no other Democratic administration probably could have done better and the Lucey regime probably did better than could reasonably have been forecast – the issue that they prefer to exploit above all others in state politics.

Taxes Continue to Rise

State taxation has again increased substantially, as they said it would when they appealed to the electorate in the fall of 1970. (Politicians never feel it necessary to add that if their losing party had won, taxes probably would have risen also. What the voters doesn't remember won't hurt the politicians.)

They will say that the price to be paid for giving Democrats the complete control of the legislature for which the governor devoutly hopes during the second half of his term will be an invitation to another rise in the collective tax burden.

They will have some unusual supporting testimony for their old refrain, in fact if not in intent. Published studies by a University of Wisconsin business school professor show, indeed, that what the business community tends to regard as a vaguely unfriendly "climate" in Wisconsin government is a hindrance to business growth in Wisconsin to some degree and that taxation is very likely involved in that general response of business managers.

They won't feel it necessary to add that Prof. Udell was not talking about a two year period, or even of the eight years in the last 40 that a Democratic governor has called signals in Madison, but about the whole modern political life of the state.

Nor will they find it expedient to recollect, even if some of their freshman nominees know the facts, that Republican and Democratic administrations in historical review don't much differ in the rate of spending increase. In that respect Wisconsin is ruled in a nonpartisan way. There were expenditure rises and tax increases in the Thomson and Knowles administrations also.

Spending Remains Keynote

Nevertheless, the question of spending and taxing, however the sincerity of the disputants is judged, will again keynote the voter courtship. In part, indeed, it may be encouraged on the part of the Republicans by a discernibly defensive attitude of their foes. Principal Democratic administration figures are now talking about feeling the pressure of tax resistance, with reassurances about better days ahead.

Two years ago Gov. Lucey exploited more heavily than any other question what he called the inequities in the distribution to localities of state-levied taxes. Skillfully he popularized an issue that had been building for many years. The drama of the struggle exaggerated its importance in measurable and individual gains to local taxpayers. He won. But the help to the average householder did not come, in spite of high expectations.

Similarly, the universities merger issue was dramatic, bitterly fought, and a fertile generator of publicity in his favor. But merger has not been attained, except in the spirit of the law. Nothing much has changed in higher education, as far as the naked eye can discern. "Implementation" is now the code word for measurable results that may be a decade in the future.

Football Is Combat; Baseball a Contest

Our increased national appetite for violence is less demonstrable by crime figures than by the indisputable fact that the "combat" of football is replacing the "contest" of baseball as our favorite spectator sport. (Baseball released few vicarious aggressions; football lives on them.)

Any fool can be grateful for what he has, but it takes some sense to be grateful for what you've escaped.

Crooked men can be bought by money; honest men can be bought by flattering their integrity.

What we commonly call a "good sermon" is one that seems to apply to the people we dislike much more than it applies to us.

The same people who indignantly deplore all the "technicalities" in the law that permit the accused to wriggle out of punishment are the ones who would employ every such device if a member of the family should happen to get into the toils of the law.

Of all laughs, the laughter of self-assumed superiority is the most odious; just as the laughter at sheer nonsense is the most soul nourishing.

It is only right that we observe "a concern for the decent opinion of mankind" – but too often our concern is with the appearance we make, not with the conduct we engage in.

The mortal sin of technology is its implicit conviction that everything that can be done should be done.

The only real purpose in being educated is to be able to distinguish between what you know and what you don't know – and you can't know what you don't know until you know one thing superbly well, and can use that to judge your lack of knowledge in other things.

A reformer is somebody who wants you to be happy in his way.

Men talk about the "dignity in work" only because they haven't yet learned how to elicit the dignity in leisure. (In fact, they don't know what "leisure" is, confusing it with "recreation.")

"What is bad?" asked Nietzsche, and answered himself, "All that proceeds from weakness" – the truest statement in the world if you understand what "weakness" really is, and the most dangerous if you don't.

Only when the term "treason" is broadened to include "treason against mankind" will that word become naturalized and mean more than merely an action disapproved of by an existing government.

County Seeks End to Required Ad Duplication

$500 to $5,000 in Savings Predicted For Communities

Outagamie County may challenge the state law that requires all municipalities to annually advertise for the destruction of noxious weeds.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, who raised the issue at a coordinating committee meeting Tuesday, estimated that a savings of $500 a year could be realized if the newspaper notices could be done under authority of the county instead of the many separate municipalities.

Supv. Josen DeBruin of rural Kaukauna predicted savings of up to $5,000 annually.

Chapter 94.20 of Wisconsin statutes now demands that the chairman of each town, the president of each village and the mayor or manager of each city must annually, before May 15, publish notice that every person is required to destroy all noxious weeks on lands he owns, occupies or controls.

"It Looks Silly"

"It looks silly to see the same ad for every municipality," Supv. George Schroeder of Freedom said.

Supervisors agreed it would be far less costly and would serve the same purpose to run one advertisement, perhaps naming the municipalities.

DeLaHunt suggested that the county could push for a change in the statute, which would take considerable time, or it could openly challenge the law. Supervisors doubted if enforcement action would be taken against the municipalities that agreed to a block ad.

DeLaHunt said he would bring the issue up at the Wisconsin County Boards Association convention in Racine next month and will include it for discussion in the next urban-rural cooperation meeting Sept. 27.

County Planner

In other business Tuesday, the committee:

—Was told by Supv. Marvin Babbitt, chairman of the personnel committee, that the list of candidates for county planner has been narrowed to two and a selection will be made by the end of the month. County Executive Alvin Woehler is expected to seek confirmation of an appointment at the September board meeting. The planner post was recently authorized by the County board.

—Was told by Babbitt that a county buildings superintendent has been hired. That also is a new county position.

—Was informed by Supv. Herman Ripp, chairman of the Board of Social Services, that Welfare Director James Stampp's one year probationary period ends soon and the State Department of Health and Social Services has inquired what action the county intends to take. There was no further discussion.

—Heard Supv. Nick Karras complain that some individuals and business places, his included, are having difficulty getting reimbursement from some youths who, when appearing in juvenile court, are ordered to pay for damage they caused or items they stole. Some people, Karras complained, do not know how to go about collecting what is owed to them. Ripp said his social services board will investigate.

Rain Cuts Session Short

Columbia '9' Ousts Tulsa

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
PC Sports Editor

KIMBERLY — The International Softball Congress moved the world tournament eastward this year but has failed to escape the rain that harassed and curtailed 1971 action in Tulsa, Okla.

Despite herculean efforts by ISC officials, tourney director Jack Grafmeier and the Bernie Van Rooy-led ground crew to play a full, 4-game slate Wednesday night, all they had to show for 5 hours and 20 minutes of work and patience was one completed contest.

Rain has forced postponements or major delays on three of the first six days of the tourney at Sunset Park. And, there was at least some rain to contend with on the other three.

In the opening game that started 2 hours, 20 minutes late, Columbia, S. Car., nipped Tulsa, Okla., 1-0, with a final-inning run.

Rock Island, Ill., took a 2-0 lead over Logan, W. Va., in the first three innings of the second game, which was interrupted once for a 23-minute delay and finally called at 11:20 p.m.

If all goes well today, weatherwise, six games, plus the completion of the Logan-Rock Island contest, are on the docket.

Action was due to start at 1 p.m., with Rock Island batting in the top of the fourth, with the bases loaded and one out.

Then, at around 1:45 p.m., Lakewood, Calif. was to take on Sterling, Colo., in a winners' bracket game. And, at 3 p.m., or there abouts, Jack's Rose Hill faces Burbank, Calif., in another battle of the unbeatens.

The evening session starts at 6 p.m. with the Clovis, Calif., game against the loser of Lakewood-Sterling.

If Jack's, the host team, loses the afternoon game, it will play at 8 tonight against Phoenix, Ariz. If Jack's wins in the afternoon, it plays again at 7:30 p.m. Friday against the winner of the Lakewood-Sterling contest.

An amazingly large crowd — considering the elements — of around 3,000 turned out for last night's session.

Tulsa which tripled Columbia's hit production (6 to 2) but couldn't capitalize on its offense, was the 11th team of the original 22 starters eliminated from the tourney.

Tulsa threatened in the bottom of the seventh on a 1-out double by Don Landers. But Jim McGuirt settled down to get the final two outs.

Len Wade had hit an inning-opening triple for Tulsa in the second but he was picked off by catcher Bill Watkins.

Losing pitcher Jack Neely retired the first 14 batters before Watkins singled in the fifth.

Rock Island got off to a 2-run start in the second game on a double, a sacrifice, an infield-out, a walk, a single and a wild pitch.

World Softball Scoreboard

This afternoon's games:
1 p.m. — Completion of Rock Island-Logan contest.
1:45 p.m. — Lakewood, Calif., vs. Sterling Colo.
3 p.m. — Jack's Rose Hill vs. Burbank, Calif.
Tonight's Games:
6 p.m. — Clovis, Calif., vs. loser of Lakewood-Sterling contest.
7 p.m. — Long Beach, Calif., vs. winner of Rock Island-Logan, game.
8 p.m. — Phoenix, Ariz. vs. loser of Jack's-Burbank contest.
9 p.m. — Rock Falls, Ill., vs. loser of Logan-Rock Island game.
Wednesday's result:

Umpire Stops Liner

Tourney Ground Crew Stars

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KIMBERLY — One of the busiest men at the ISC world softball tournament has been Bernes Van Roy, of Kimberly who heads up the slick-working ground crew.

Bernie and his "boys" have been called on a number of times to wheel out huge sheets of plastic to protect the diamond from soaking rains, the likes of which finally curtailed action again Wednesday night.

"I'll be ready for a good home-cooked meal by next week. I'll tell you," Bernie said eek. I'll tell you." Bernie said while munching on a bratwurst sandwich during a rain delay last night.

During actual timing by people in the press box, the ground crew has been able to cover the diamond in a swift three minutes. However, Bernie was already making plans during last night's rain to have the field in playing shape for the afternoon and evening sessions today. He was planning to get a helicopter in from Green Bay to hover over the field and dry it off and also was going to check on a larger tarpaulin from Green Bay which would be even more effective than the plastic they have been using for the field.

Umpires and officials of the International Softball Congress have been praising the work of the ground crew all week. It was evident last night as to the respect Van Roy and his workers have earned when some fans were shouting for play to be resumed and the head umpire turned to another official in

Former Giant Signs With Canadian Team

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Defensive tackle Jerry Shay, formerly of New York Giants of the National Football League, signed Wednesday with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

Shay was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings in 1966 before being traded to the Atlanta Falcons and then to the Giants.

Ex-Packer Was on Cardinal Plane

Heart Attack Claims Chuck Drulis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Holloway, coach of the St. Louis football Cardinals described the death Wednesday afternoon of Charles "Chuck" Drulis, team defensive coach, "a tremendous loss to our operation."

Drulis died of an apparent heart attack aboard the Big Red's flight to Houston for an exhibition game against the Oilers tonight. He was 54.

"He was a man who gave so much time to the Cardinals Well, you can't evaluate a loss 'hat great," said Holloway who took over as head coach last year.

Drulis, who coached the Cardinals for the past 16 of his 22 years in the NFL, began his pro career as a guard with the Chicago Bears in 1942 after being named to the all-East team at Temple University.

Rejoined Bears

After serving three years in the Army, he rejoined the Bears in 1945 and went to Green Bay in 1948.

He served as a playing coach there during 1950 and became a full-time coach with the Packers in 1951. Before joining the Cardinals in Chicago in 1956, he coached defensive backs at Philadelphia for two years beginning in 1954.

An attempt to revive the veteran coach was made by Dr. Fred Reynolds, team physician who was aboard the plane.

Drulis, who suffered a previous heart attack about ten years ago, was dead as the charter flight made an unscheduled stop at Little Rock Ark.

He is survived by his wife, Dale, and two sons. Funeral arrangements were not yet completed.

Bart Johnson Impressive On Mound as Foxes Win

QUINCY, Ill. — Bart Johnson made an impressive showing in his first starting assignment on the mound for the Appleton Foxes Wednesday night as he worked the first five innings of a 15-0 victory the Foxes posted over Quincy.

With the win, the Foxes added another half-game to their second-half Northern Division lead in the Midwest League and now have a 3-game margin over Waterloo, which divided a twin bill with Danville last night.

The Foxes return to Goodland Field tonight, meeting Cedar Rapids at Goodland Field, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Bart Johnson, who started the season with the Chicago White Sox and was returned to Appleton to be groomed as an outfielder, went back to the mound and stopped Quincy on three hits, two of which were of the scratch variety, in the first five innings.

In fact, Johnson was so effective that the Cubs did not hit a ball to the outfield until two were out in the fifth. Jeff Holly and Glen Gregson shared the mopping up duties in the last four frames for the Foxes and kept the shutout going.

Sixth Loss

The loss was Quincy's sixth in the last seven games after the Cubs had been leading the Southern Division just one week ago. They now trail Danville by 3½ games.

The Foxes got off to a flying start by scoring four runs in the first inning, three of which were walked home on base loaded situations and Bart Johnson singled the fourth across.

LaMar Johnson socked his 23rd home run of the season in the second inning after Dan Rourke had slammed a double. Rourke's second double helped homer for the Foxes in the score two more in the third for seventh and Appleton added two the Foxes and Appleton added a more in the eighth and another single tally in the fourth when in the ninth before the marathon finally ended.

Marty Morrison had a 2-run Fred Norton slammed a homer. Quincy manager Dick LeMay, who finished his major league career with the San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs in 1970, finally took the mound for the last two innings in an effort to give his beleaguered pitching staff a rest.

In addition to scoring 15 runs, the Foxes stranded 15 runners during the game. There were only two innings in which Quincy had more than one base runner and none got beyond second base.

Chisox Jump Into Lead Behind Allen and Wood

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox are meticulous baseball players, so it's entirely possible that they closed the door behind them when they stepped into first place in the American League's West Division.

Now, if Manager Chuck Tanner can only find the key to locking it.

The White Sox used Dick Allen's lively bat and Wilbur Wood's rubber arm for a 5-2 victory over New York Wednesday and then hopped into first place in the West a few hours later when Detroit whipped Oakland 7-5.

That was a vital victory for the Tigers since it enabled them to remain one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the East. The Orioles rapped California 7-1 [illegible] the American League Wednesday. Cleveland dropped Minnesota 5-1 and Kansas City blanked Boston 3-0. Texas at M[illegible] was rained out.

Allen hit [illegible] of the year, a [illegible] in the seventh inning to help Wood beat the Yankees. It was the 22nd victory [illegible] the knuckleballer.

The homer [illegible] centerfield bleachers at White Sox park—420 feet from home plate—an area Allen has hit three times before. The four homer gave Wood a working margin and increased Allen's runs batted in total to 91.

Tanner, reaching into his managerial bag of adjectives, called Allen, "Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby and Ty Cobb, all put together."

Brawls in Last 2 Games

Monsters of the Midway' More Pugnacious Than Ever

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The Chicago Bears, who have come by their "Monsters of the Midway" sobriquet honestly, have never been Little Lord Fauntleroy types.

But, newly cast in the two-fisted image of portly Abe Gibron, they have been particularly pugnacious of late.

Just how pugnacious the Packers will ascertain at first hand in Milwaukee County Stadium Sunday night, the occasion of their annual Midwest Shrine imbroglio with the Bears.

In their last two ventures, at Houston and New England, the Bruins have been involved in bench-emptying brawls with both the Oilers and Patriots, a somewhat unusual occurrence on the pro football scene.

Brace Themselves

Which suggests that Dan Devine's troops, intent upon rebounding from a 20-3 misstep in Houston last time out, may have to brace themselves for a [illegible] lusty, old-fashioned street [illegible]

Dan Desmond, the Bears veteran publicity director, blandly intimates the Monsters brawling image is traceable to a "misunderstanding."

"When he took over as head coach last winter, Abe said he wanted to develop a physical team and the officials may have read that in the papers and been watching us a little more closely," he volunteered.

The Patriots' Lennie St. Jean offered a slightly different view in the wake of last weekend's roughhouse in Foxboro, Mass., where New England surprised the Bears 27-17.

Two Penalties

"I could see right in the first period, when they had [illegible] penalties for unnecessary roughness that there was [illegible] one way this game was going to end," the New England guard said. "I predicted an all-out brawl and that's what happened."

In this connection, Boston scribe Leigh Montville noted, "Shoot, I'll take any shot about complaining in a good, clean game," quarterback Jim Plunkett said. "But that wasn't what these guys were out to play. They were doing an awful lot of unnecessary stuff."

Wide receiver Randy Vataha said, "There's nothing wrong with playing aggressively, but playing aggressively means playing hard until the whistle blows. After the whistle blows, it's not being aggressive anymore."

Charitable Approach

Desmond, understandably, takes a more charitable approach.

Athletes Take Spotlight

MUNICH (AP) — Finally the young, the strong, the graceful and the swift are being thrust into prominence at Munich's Olympic Games.

Politics disappeared into the Bavarian fog as Avery Brundage and the entire Rhodesian team were consigned to sports' pasture within 24 hours.

"The game is on," said trackman Lee Evans of San Jose, Calif.

U.S. and Kenyan runners galloped through a blistering preview of Olympic track and field on Wednesday night. Black speedsters who earlier threatened a walkout at the Games were among the most impressive.

Evans, the 400-meter gold medalist in the 1968 Olympics, anchored the U.S. 1,600-meter relay team to a rapid closing of 3:00.69, fastest in the world this year.

Larry Black of Miami, Fla., back from leg injuries, did 20.24 in the 200-meter sprint and was leadoff man on the American 400-meter relay that blazed around Olympic Stadium in 38.89 seconds — seven-tenths seconds off the world mark.

Evans and his three running mates, Vince Matthews of New York, Wayne Collett of Santa Monica, Calif., and John Smith of Los Angeles, were among the American blacks who vowed to leave Munich if white-controlled Rhodesia had been allowed to compete.

Rhodesia was kicked out by the International Olympic Committee over a passport technicality, a bitter setback for retiring IOC President Avery Brundage.

His pride still openly wounded, Brundage presided Wednesay over the election of Lor Killanin of Ireland as the new IOC president, and there was a scent of change in the air. "We have to realize we are about to enter the last quarter of the 20th century," the Irish peer said.

While the few U.S. track stars who entered the pre-Olympic meet were impressive, the Yank women's swimming team suffered at least a temporary setback.

Denna Deadruff of Cincinnati injured her ankle in a fall at Olympic Village, and the butterfly specialist was hobbling Wednesday on crutches.

In the track and field preview, Kenya's fabled Kip Keino, who may retire after the Munich Olympics, ran the fastest 800 meters of his career with a 1:46.41 clocking.

Keino will not run the 800 in the Games but will concentrate on the 1,500 in which he is defending Olympic champion, along with the relays.

Robert Ouko of Kenya timed a creditable 1:48.11 in another 800 meters heat. He is a teammate of Black's in the United States at North Carolina Central College.

Black had been timed in 20.0 for 200 meters prior to suffering leg injuries. He has been slowly regaining speed, but barely qualified for Munich by finishing third in the U.S. Trials at Eugene, Ore.

Dash Event

Valery Borzov of Russia, who has run 20.2, is the likely favorite in the spectacular dash event when Olympic track and field competition begins Aug. 31.

Bill Bowrman of Oregon, the head track coach of the American men, removed 19-year-old Rey Robinson of Lakeland, Fla., from the 400-meter relay team and placed the more experienced Black on the No. 1 leg.

Black's mates will be Robert Taylor of Houston, Tex., Gerald Tinker of Miami and Eddie Hart of Pittsburg, Calif. The 38.89 was equal to the year's fastest time.

In the shot put, it was strictly an American show with a 1-2-3 sweep. George Woods of Warden, Ill., throwing the best of his career, hit 70 feet 1¾ inches. Al Feuerbach of San Jose, Calif., was second at 68½ and Brian Oldfield of South Elgin, Ill., third at 68¼.

Those in charge of pomp and ceremony for the German Olympic Committee continued practicing toward the colorful, nationalistic opening ceremonies scheduled Saturday afternoon.

On Sunday, the athletes hit center stage.

6 Top WIR Drivers Enter 'Blue' Race

The top six drivers in the "Red, White and Blue" state championship stock series at Wisconsin International Raceway, have already filed entries for the Sept. 3 finale.

A 100-lap event will be the highlight of the "Blue" race and will feature the top 30 qualifiers.

Wisconsin Rapids' Dick Trickle, the series point leader, will drive a 1970 Mustang. The next five in the point race are Necedah's Jim Sauter, 1972 Camaro; Nekoosa's Marv Marzofka, 1972 Camaro; Joe Shear, of S. Beloit, Ill., in a '72 Camaro, Milwaukee's John Rank, '72 Camaro; and Rudolph's Tom Reffner, 1970 Mustang.

One of the latest to enter is New London's Roger Paul, who will drive a 1968 Chevelle. Paul drove to a 12th-place finish in the "White" race, which was his first try on WIR's paved oval. He usually competes on dirt tracks.

KAC Wins Title In Second Round

KAUKAUNA — Kaukauna Athletic Club finished with a 6-1 record to take second half honors in the recreation department sponsored Class A League. A playoff is set between KAC and Joyce and Tuggy's Bar, first-round winners.

The playoff for the city title has been scheduled for Aug. 31.

Cavs Acquire Lenny Wilkens

Also Get Clemens, Give Up Beard In Sonics' Trade

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "He'll help us in so many ways that I can't begin to list them," said coach Bill Fitch after the Cleveland Cavaliers acquired all-pro guard Lenny Wilkens from the Seattle Supersonics Wednesday.

Wilkens, 34, was traded to the Cavs along with forward Barry Clemens for third-year guard Butch Beard, a former Louisville All-American.

On paper, the trade appears lopsided in Cleveland's favor as Wilkens is the National Basketball Association's 16th all-time scorer with 14,611 points and ranks fourth in career assists and second among active players with a total of 5,825. Wilkens also coached the Sonics the last three years before stepping down at the end of the past season.

Beard, 25, played sparingly with the Atlanta Hawks in 1969-70, then spent 1½ years in the military before joining the Cavs last November and averaged 15.4 points and 6.7 assists in 68 games. Clemens, a 6-foot-7, 220-pounder, has been a substitute during most of his seven-year NBA career, averaging 7.5 points a game.

Bruno Hurls No-Hit Game For Waterloo

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Tom Bruno pitched a no-hitter Wednesday as Waterloo beat Danville 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader in the Midwest League.

Bruno (3-1) struck out 10 batters and walked one. He is a farm hand of the Kansas City Royals.

In the first game, Danville beat Waterloo 8-6 in a 13-inning marathon.

Bobby Brue Breezes To Fifth State Title

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Bobby Brue's reliable putting carried him to a fifth championship Wednesday in the annual Wisconsin Open golf tournament.

The 37-year-old Milwaukeean, a pro at Mequon's Ozaukee Club, carded a 13-under-par total of 175 at Blackhawk Country Club.

Brue didn't have even a three-putt green as he compiled rounds of 68, 67, 69 and 71. He was 30 under putt par.

He joins Francis Gallett of Milwaukee and Manuel de la Torre of Milwaukee as five-time winners of the open.

Schlicht Limps

Defending champion Ralph "Butch" Schlicht of Milwaukee was second, 12 strokes behind at 287. Despite an ankle injury, he limped his way through Wednesday's 36 holes in rounds of 72 and 73.

Alex Antonio of Milwaukee finished with a 69 for 288 and third place, edging out by one stroke Dennis Tiziani of Madison, who had a final 72.

Bill Giese of Fond du Lac had a closing 68, low round of the day, for a 290.

Hull Files Suit Against Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — Superstar Bobby Hull has filed suit against his former team, the Chicago Black Hawks, perhaps forcing a legal showdown between the long-established National Hockey League and the new World Hockey Association.

The suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, challenges the NHL's "reserve clause," contending that it violates the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and monopolizes professional hockey.

Hull, who jumped from the NHL's Black Hawks to the Winnipeg Jets of the WHL, said the reserve clause would prevent him from playing with the team of his choice, the Jets, which gave him a $2.75 million contract for signing.

Hull's action followed a suit filed Friday by the Hawks charging Hull with violating his NHL contract by signing with the Jets. When the Hawk suit was filed, Hawk President William Wirtz said the action not only sought the return of Hull but was done for the good of the NHL.

The Hawk suit was filed in Circuit Court but was transferred Wednesday to the federal court, which handles anti-trust cases.

The two suits now will be dovetailed in a hearing before Judge William J. Lynch, prob-

Hull's countersuit asks unspecified triple monetary damages and requests the court to declare the NHL reserve clause a violation of the Sherman Act.

In a statement about the matter, Hull said: "I just want to play hockey, and I am disappointed that the Black Hawks have chosen to take their action against me and my family."

Hull's suit asserts that the veteran NHL scoring great was under exclusive control of the Hawks since he was a 12-year-old Canadian amateur player.

Chisox Take Division Lead

He neglected, however, to compare Wood with Cy Young. If the knuckler captures the award named for the legendary pitcher, that'll be good enough for Tanner. It might even mean that the manager will locate that key to the first place door.

Detroit boosted the Sox into the West lead and stayed in front in the East by knocking off Oakland. The Tigers did it with a seven-run explosion in the second inning, four of the runs scoring on Bill Freehan's second grand slam homer of the season.

That should have made it easy for Joe Coleman, who won his first game since June 22. And it was easy until the ninth when Coleman, coasting along on a three-hitter, was suddenly strafed for four runs. Chuck Selbach came on to get the last out.

Ted Kubiak drove in four of the A's runs, three with a bases-loaded double in the ninth.

Baltimore stayed one-half game off Detroit's pace by pounding California for Jim Palmer's 17th victory of the season.

The Orioles also used a big inning for their victory, bunching six runs in the fourth inning, three of them on a homer by Paul Blair

Roger Nelson carried a no-hitter until two were out in the eighth inning against Boston when Ben Agilvie spoiled the Kansas City pitcher's bid with a clean single on a 3-2 pitch.

"I just threw it right down the pipe and he hit it cleanly," said the Royals' right-hander of the Red Sox' lone hit.

Ed Kirkpatrick accounted for all the KC runs with a three-run homer in the sixth inning against loser Sonny Siebert.

Buddy Bell drilled a bases-loaded double for three runs as Cleveland stopped Minnesota.

The Indians snapped a scoreless tie in the sixth, scoring two runs on Alex Johnson's sacrifice fly and an error. Rich Reese's seventh-inning homer cut that lead in half but Bell's double gave Steve Dunning a comfortable edge.

That's something the Division leaders, Chicago, and Detroit, wish they had.

Ground Crew Kept Busy

the press box and said: "Don't worry about it. Bernie will let us know when it looks okay."

"Rain checks" from last night's session were to be honored for the afternoon games today, but the stands will be cleared before the evening set of four games begins.

Softball players from Green Bay have been busy around the Sunset Park layout selling tickets to a special benefit game which will be played Monday night

The benefit is for Bill Sundell, popular Green Bay hurler who has been taken ill. Some of the umpires who are officiating in the world tourney have agreed to go to Green Bay and work the benefit Monday.

While talking about umpires — Wayne Evans of Tulsa, Okla. took a line shot on the calf of the leg in the first game Wednesday night while he was umpiring down the third base line.

"It was a stinger," Wayne said. "That's not the first time I've been hit. It's happened two or three times before, but that was a hard one. There's nothing you can do, I'm just happy I was standing in foul territory because there was a man on base at the time and it could have made the difference in the ball game," Evans added.

Wayne operates a dental lab in Tulsa and the umpiring is a hobby with him. He has worked in 10 consecutive world tournaments and had nothing but praise for the operation of the tournament at Kimberly.

"I hope they bid again," he said "this is an excellent setup and the fans are just tremendous."

For people people who do not want to bother with parking problems at the tournament, Jerry Kamp's Bar in Combined Locks is furnishing bus service to and from the park. For the slim fee of 30 cents for the round trip, the bus will take you right near the main entrance and be there to pick people up after each game.

While the Clovis, Calif. team has three brothers on the squad, the Shad's Lounge team of Sterling, Col. has topped that by putting the four Gentry brothers and their cousin on the field.

The Gentry's include Wayne, Bruce, Rock and Keith while their cousin does the catching.

Gene Peerenboom, ha hitting first baseman for the Jack's Rose Hill team from Little Chute, had a long night at work after the Jack's victory Saturday night. His brother Jim was sitting next to him when Jim Steger unloaded his game winning homer.

"There she goes." Jim shouted as he jumped up and his hand popped Gene right in the nose bringing on a profuse nose-bleed.

"That thing bled all night at work." Gene said "and it was puffed up like a balloon."

Bears Still Pugnacious

proach to the Bears' indiscretions. "There's just a different attitude on this team," he told the Mike & Pen Sports Club at a Beaumont Motor Inn luncheon Wednesday. "Abe's just got across the idea that he wants guys who want to play football."

"The main good thing about the club this year is that the offense is moving the ball." Desmond said, appending an illustration of his point.

"In our first game against Kansas City at Notre Dame stadium, we took the opening kickoff and went down for a score. It's the first time in a long time that that has happened. We drove 72 yards in 14 plays In fact, we had the ball 13½ minutes in the first quarter"

Desmond facetiously added, "We have a streak going now, though. We've fumbled the ball eight consecutive times in the last two games — and lost it eight consecutive times. We were 5-for-5 against Houston and then 3-for-3 against the Patriots."

Even without the recalcitrant Dick Gordon, still at liberty after playing out his option, the Bears also have flashed long ball potential.

Last week, we scored on the opening play against the Patriots. 92 yards," the Monsters' advance man said, "It was a pass of 17 or 18 yards to our tight end, Earl Thomas, who took it the rest of the way.

"I must say Abe has got that offense moving well. He's got the defense believing that it won't have to put in a good job out there, watch the offense run a couple of plays and then have to come back on the field."

Harrison 'Arrives'

Two salutary developments here have been the "arrival" of Jim Harrison, who two years ago was carrying the mail for Dan Devine at the University of Missouri, and the surprise showing of fellow running back Roger Lawson, a 15th round draftee from Western Michigan.

"This kid Lawson has been a real find." Desmond said. "He scored what was our tying touchdown against Houston a week ago

"Harrison is a much improved football player. Last year, he fell down anytime anybody touched him. And as a result, he spent the season on the taxi squad. . This year, he has become a good, hard runner."

Although, he has carried the ball less than half as often, Lawson shares second place among Bear rushers with Joe Moore, like Harrison a former Devine disciple at Missouri. Both have amassed 83 yards, Lawson in 12 attempts, Moore in 28

The 6-foot-4, 235-pound Harrison is tight on their heels with 82 in 24.

Bear buffs for some time have envisioned quarterback Bobby Douglass as a running back and he, ironically, is the team's rushing leader. Douglass, a strapping 6-foot-4 and 225 pounds, has a plush 6.4-yard average with 89 yards in 14 carries.

Bobby, whose quarterbacking has left more than a little to be desired in the past, may have found himself at long last, Desmond says.

The future of oft-injured super star Gale Sayers is still clouded Desmond said. "He's listed on our depth chart for this game, but I don't know if he's going to play. . He still moves kind of stiffly."

Bowa Irked by Benching in 9-6 Loss

'Nobody Appreciates Anything I Do'

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Play me or trade me, insists shortstop Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies. Don't press your luck, says Manager Paul Owens.

The player and his boss took verbal swings at each other following Wednesday night's 9-6 loss to the Atlanta Braves.

"I think I'm going to be traded," said Bowa, who claims he's in Owens' dog house. "Nobody appreciates anything I do."

Would Owens trade possibly the best fielding shortstop in baseball?

"Certainly I would," said Owens. "If I could help the club, I would. Nobody's untouchable here. But I wouldn't trade anybody just to make a trade."

Bowa was particularly irked after Owens pulled him out of Wednesday night's game in the sixth inning in favor of Terry Harmon.

"He told me I needed a rest," said the 26-year-old defensive star who set a major league fielding record for shortstops last season. "There's no way I can buy that. Who needs a rest when there is a day off coming up tomorrow?"

Owens responded to Bowa's caid remarks with fire.

"Tell him to go bleep in his at," said the manager. "Some people aren't smart enough to understand anything. His rouble is that he's happy when he gets two hits and we lose but he's burned up when he gets shut out and we win."

While tempers exploded in Philadelphia, bats went beserk in Montreal as the Expos crushed the West-leading Cincinnati Reds 11-0 behind a 14-hit attack in another National League baseball game.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants clobbered the East-leading Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0; the Houston Astros defeated the New York Mets 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 and the Chicago Cubs clipped the San Diego Padres 7-5.

The clash between Bowa and Owens apparently reflected the pressures of a losing team. Felix Millan banged three hits and Dusty Baker ripped a home run as the Braves handed the Phillies their 74th loss in 117 games, the worst record in baseball.

Ron Woods, making a rare start against a right-handed pitcher, responded with two three-run homers to help Montreal bury Cincinnati.

"It's unusual for me to hit one home run, let alone two," said Woods, shaking his head in disbelief over his performance. "I'm not trying to do anything different—I'm just trying to make contact when I go up."

Jim Barr pitched a one-hitter for his first major league shutout and Willie McCovey blasted a two-run homer to lead San Francisco over Pittsburgh.

Tommy Helms' two-run single highlighted a five-run fourth inning that carried Houston over New York. Larry Dierker scattered six hits and struck out nine Mets to notch his 12th victory in 19 decisions this year.

Willie Davis had three singles and knocked in a run to back the four-hit pitching of Bill Singer as Los Angeles defeated St. Louis. Billy Williams drove in three runs and Joe Pepitone and Paul Popovich had two RBI apiece to pace Chicago over San Diego.

Joins Cobb in Record Book

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lou Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' speedster, stepped alongside the fabled Ty Cobb Tuesday night with his 50th stolen base of the season.

When asked if it was his greatest thrill he shook his head and said, "Nah, the greatest thrill for me was the day I put on that big league uniform. I'd like to see anyone top that."

It was the eighth time Brock has stolen 50 or more bases. Cobb is the only other player to do it eight times.

Billy C. Officially Done

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Billy Conigliaro has formally shed the last-place Milwaukee Brewers.

The club said Tuesday it transferred Conigliaro's name from the disqualified list to the voluntary retired list after filing a signed retirement letter from the outfielder.

Robin Ristau had three doubles and winning pitcher Gene Loiselle had two hits for Mr. Roberts in the win over Allis Chalmers. The winners scored four runs in the top of the first inning and never trailed.

Appleton Papers trailed, 13-10 after four innings and then came up with eight runs in the last of the fifth to beat out the Gay Spot. Ron Barr had a double and homer for the Argonauts. Mike Hungerford had four hits and Jeske added three in the 19-hit attack. For the Gay Spot, Ken Schroeder and Jim Wilz each had three safeties.

Rich DeBroux pitched the shutout for Rail Inn over Ed's Inn and allowed six hits. Dave Fritsch and Roger Boese had two hits each for the winners with one of Boese's hits being a triple.

'Politics Inevitable'

Hint of New Ideas for Future IOC

MUNICH (AP) — They're changing guard in the Olympic movement and a hint of new ideas is in the air.

Lord Killanin, elected Wednesday to succeed Avery

Lord Killanin

Brundage as president of the International Olympic Committee, indicates he will not be a diehard champion of amateurism during his eight-year term

"I don't believe in open Olympics," he said in an interview "I don't believe in professional Olympics. But I do think we have to realize that we are about to enter the last quarter of the 20th Century."

Killanin, 59-year-old Irish nobleman who has been a journalist, author and movie producer, does not take over as president until the end of the Munich Games Sept. 10 Until the Olympic torch is extinguished, Brundage, who has refused to budge an inch on amateurism and the eligibility rule for the last 20 years remains in office

"I will make no policy statements for the moment" Killanin said "I do not wish to say anything which might be interpreted as being in conflict with the president—not that there is any conflict between us."

But Killanin's remarks on amateurism followed significantly on those of Willi Daume, 59-year-old president of the West German National Olympic Committee, at the formal opening of the IOC session last weekend

Daume said then that the high Olympic standards of today "can no longer be achieved by amateurism in the usual sense of the word"

Killanin made it clear he does not agree with Brundage's wish to see the Winter Olympics concluded But he shares Brundage's resistance to political interference with the Olympics

The president-elect — a man with a mischievous sense of humor — said: "In my country of Ireland, when it starts to snow I run indoors. So I'm completely neutral on the subject of winter sports"

Then he added seriously "I have no basic objection to the Winter Games but I think it is essential, if they continue, that they put their house in order"

Killanin said the Olympic movement had always had its political problems ever since he first became a member of the IOC in 1952

"Politics in Sport are inevitable and we shall always have them What I don't like is being pressurized by political groups into making decisions

"Our decisions in the IOC should be sportsmen's decisions, not politicans' decisions"

Invite 22 Players

Brewers Slate Clinic

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers said Monday 22 of their best prospects, including their top six draftees of last June, will attend a special minor league clinic at County Stadium Sept. 6 through 17.

Daily workouts, open to the public, will be held from 10 a m until 1 or 2 p m. except on Sept 16 and 17, when they will be scheduled around the parent club's afternoon games with the Detroit Tigers.

Jim Wilson, Brewers' head of scouting and player development, said the clinic "will give us an excellent opportunity to work on basics with these boys."

Question Value

"In the past, we had a team in the Instructional League in Arizona in the fall, but we have had some misgivings about the amount and quality of instruction actually given," Wilson said "We will be able to work these players day after day on fundamentals and this should be of much more value to their progress."

Brewers' Manager Del Crandall, Wilson and minor league instructors Al Widmar, Jim Walton, Joe Nossek and Sandy Johnson will conduct the sessions. Top prospects scheduled to attend include infielder Danny Thomas, catcher Jerry Mantlo, first baseman - outfielder James Richardson and pitchers Tom Deidel and Roger Alexander.

Can-Am Series Visits Road America

ELKHART LAKE, Wis (AP) — Standings could be further scrambled this weekend when the surprisingly close Canadian-American Challenge Cup series pays its annual visit to Road America

A $91,000 purse has been accumulated, but most of the attention will focus on the unexpected argument which one-dominant Team McLaren has been getting this year from Roger Penske's Porsche team

Only 10 points separate the top three contenders First place Sunday will be worth 20 points

Denis Hulme of the McLarens has finished first twice and third once and leads with 50 points

Two points behind in second place is George Follmer, who has rolled to two victories and a fourth-place finish in his 12-cylinder turbocharged Porsche

Milt Minter, piloting a Vasek Porsche is third with 40 points while defending champion Peter Revson, Hulme's teammate is fourth with 27

Other threats could come from David Hobbs, a Lola-Chevy driver tied with Charlie Kemp with 20 points, or Jackie Oliver, whose Shadow Chevy ran second to Follmer earlier this month at Mid-Ohio Oliver has finished second in four Can-Am races since 1969

Follmer, who got his chance when a knee injury shelved Mark Donohue for the season, averaged 92 876 miles per hour at Mid-Ohio. He drove a Lotus-Porsche to the 1965 U S Road Racing title and won this year's Trans-American championship in an American Motors Javelin

A second-place finish over the twisting, four-mile eastern Wisconsin course will be worth 15 points, with 12 points for third, 10 for fourth and eight for fifth

The 200-mile Can-Am is scheduled for 1:45 p m. Sunday, preceded by practice and qualifying from noon to 5 30 p m Friday.

Two supporting events are slated: an 80-miler for Formula B machines at 3:30 pm. Saturday and a 60-miler for Formula Super Vee cars at 11 15 a m Sunday.

New London Has 10 Lettermen

Air Game to be Bulldogs' Strength

BY JOHN LEE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEW LONDON — Bulldog football coach Jack Wohlt says, "his toughest problem this year will be winning some games in the East Central Conference," where his squads have lost 10 straight conference matches in the past two seasons

Coming off a dismal 1-7 overall record, with a 0-7 conference slate last season, Wohlt says, "the defensive secondary is the team's strongest point, but is lacking in size and speed at other positions. The receiver corps has fair speed but overall, we're not exceptionally quick"

If a young, inexperienced line gives good protection, the Bulldogs could have a strong passing game.

Passing Attack

In the 1971 season, passing was the strong point of the squad, and some key players' return this year.

Senior Mark Egland (6-1, 185) earned all-ECC honors last year as a wide receiver, and is back to catch tosses from either senior quarterback Rick Kaepernick (6-1, 175) or junior Jim Snyder (5-10 150) Kaepernick earned honorable mention in the conference last year at QB, even though he was injured in the fourth game Snyder replaced him, and one of Wohlt's major decisions this year will be choosing between the experienced play-callers.

In his fourth year, Wohlt has 10 returning lettermen that will anchor the squad

Ralph Linke, at 6-feet and 180 pounds, is the only returning letterman in the offensive line.

For help in the line, Wohlt will turn to a group of non-letterwinners, including senior center Steve McFaul, senior guards Thor Hanson, Bruce Kloehn and Mark Egan Added blocking could come from tight end Mark Sullivan, senior

"I've got to get a lot out of these guys — they didn't letter last year but they have to step up and pull their load this year," he said

Three senior award winners and a junior will be vying for the running back slots Rick Kamke, a 5-8, 145 pound offensive and defensive halfback, will challenge Dick McClone, 5-9, 165, for the starting nod Junior Bill Rohan is also fighting the letterwinners.

Of the fullbacks, Jim Ott, 5-11, 175, is the only returning letterman

Joining Egland at end will be Lenny Markman, a 5-10, 165 senior who also plays linebacker, and Dave Crain, a 5-9, 145 pounder

Senior Randy Scheid could also help out at linebacker.

NL opens it season at home against Wautoma Sept 1, and begins conference action Sept 8 at Hortonville

Has to Face 'Reality'

Frustrated Howard Hopes to End Slump, Continue in Baseball

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Frank Howard hasn't known such frustration since his last years in Los Angeles, but the Texas Rangers' slumping slugger isn't thinking—yet—of ending his major league baseball career

"Next year will be pivotal," the huge first baseman and off-season resident of Green Bay, Wis, said Wednesday night before the Rangers-Milwaukee Brewers game was rained out.

"If you put two bad years together, you've got to face reality and not kid yourself," Howard said "I really don't know yet I hope it's not the end. There's a month and a half to go yet this year, and maybe I can still put it together"

The former American League All-Star's 1972 totals of eight home runs, 30 runs batted in and 238 batting average aren't the only factors against him So are his 36 years and $100,000-plus salary or a club already financially pinched.

'Hasn't Helped'

Platooning hasn't helped." Howard said "And then I had no spring training at all. I started the season cold turkey Then, too, our ball park in Texas just isn't a hitters' park"

Howard signed his 1972 contract the day before the major league players went on strike. He worked out on his own at a junior college in Florida during the strike, but running in itself couldn't hone his hitting eye.

Howard dismisses as "just conjecture" reports he had considered not moving with the franchise from Washington to Texas this year

Still, he remembers his seasons in Washington with fondness He had his best years, including 48 home runs in 1969, with the old Senators, who had acquired him from the Los Angeles Dodgers after the 1964 season

"I wasn't playing every day in Los Angeles and I had reached a point where I really didn't know if I could," he said "Going to Washington gave me a chance to make some money and prolonged my career.

"When the franchise moved, well, it's harder for an older player to make an adjustment," he said. "But the only reason I didn't report right away this year was I had to fight for money, and I did. There was a principle involved—money and a principle"

Now Howard has regressed to the situation he had grown to hate with the Dodgers—being platooned At 6-feet-7 and 255 pounds he is no defensive asset, and his silent bat has forced Manager Ted Williams to shuttle him between first base left field and the bench

Bears' Holman May Miss Game Against Packers

CHICAGO (AP) — Defensive end Willie Holman, who suffered a sprained foot in Sunday's 27-17 loss to the New England Patriots, probably will miss one exhibition game, the Chicago Bears announced Monday.

Holman could miss the Green Bay National Football League exhibition this weekend and be ready for the Sept. 3 contest against Buffalo

Lord Killanin To Succeed Brundage

MUNICH (AP) — Lord Killanin of Ireland today was elected president of the International Olympic Committee, succeeding Avery Brundage.

Killanin, 58, was chosen in a straight contest with Count Jean de Beaumont of France

Brundage, announcing the result of the vote, said the voting figures will never be disclosed.

The announcement was made at the head of the main staircase of the Maximilianeum, the Bavarian parliament building where the IOC is in session

You don't know how badly your car handles

If you've only owned rear-wheel drive cars, you probably don't know there is something better: front-wheel drive. Discover the difference, test drive a Renault, from the world's leading manufacturer of f.w.d. cars (over 5,000 per day, over 1,000,000 a year). Along with the superb handling of f.w.d., all Renaults come with rack-and-pinion steering and front disc brakes. Top speed 93 miles per hour.

So test drive a Renault and find out how a car should handle.

Nixon Campaigns For New Majority

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — In the first appearance of his campaign for a second White House term, President Nixon today pictured critics of his defense spending plans as gambling with world peace.

Nixon, in a speech prepared for the annual American Legion convention, made no direct mention of his Democratic opponent, Sen. George McGovern, who spoke from the same platform Wednesday.

However, the President cited military programs that McGovern would curb or scrap and described defense policy as "one of the major issues of this election year."

He said that if some of these economies were adopted "America would become the second strongest power in the world."

He said: "We have economized and will continue to economize on military spending whenever and wherever it is safe to do so. But I never have gambled — and I never will gamble — with the safety of the American people under a false banner of economy. Lasting peace is built only on strength."

First Stop

For Nixon, it was the first stop on a cross-country tour taking him into Illinois, Michigan and California on the day after accepting the Republican nomination for another four years in the presidency.

The President told jubilantly cheering Republicans at the closing session of their national convention Wednesday night that he seeks "a new American majority" that will win the election and build peace "the world can enjoy for generations to come."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew remained behind in the convention city of Miami Beach, Fla., to answer newsmen's questions before heading to Minneapolis for an address before the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He won the GOP renomination Wednesday night with one dissenting vote and two abstentions and got a boost for the 1976 presidential nomination from Mrs. Nixon.

Head for Michigan

Nixon planned to head next for Utica, Mich., to dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School before flying on to a welcome home from his San Clemente, Calif., neighbors.

Before the legionnaires, Nixon reported that on his history-making journeys to Peking and Moscow earlier in the year, "I found a desire for peace."

He added that hopes for peace "will not become a reality if we heed the honest but misguided voices of those who say we should weaken America today and naively hope for peace tomorrow."

Nixon concluded by saying:

"Let us join together, not as Democrats and Republicans, but as Americans, to keep America strong."

McGovern frequently has urged sharp cutbacks in military spending, but in his appearance before the legionnaires he told his polite but subdued audience that, if elected, the United States would never become a second-rate power.

Nixon cited some of the economies called for by his critics and declared that if they were adopted, "America would become the second strongest power in the world."

He said that "most important of all" unilateral abandonment of development of the B1 bomber and multiple-warhead offensive missiles would mean "we can never hope to make further progress in arms limitations with the Soviet Union."

"The Soviet Union faced with an America stripping its military strength unilaterally would have no incentive whatever to cut back its own programs," he said.

Never No. 2

"My guiding principle has been, and will continue to be, that America will never be the second strongest nation in the world," Nixon declared.

As the confident Republicans headed home from a convention marked by three days of harmony with barely a discordant note, anti-war protesters also began to leave after taking in their effort to stop the GOP proceedings.

More than 900 demonstrators were arrested Wednesday night, 300 outside the Doral Beach Hotel headquarters of the Committee for the Re-election of the President. Police used a crowd-control gas known as CS to disperse roving bands

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — And so it was done.

Delegation Chairman Robert Warren gave out a deep throaty cheer as he swung Wisconsin's banner on the convention floor. Richard Nixon stood 50 yards away, an armful of Spiro Agnew at his side. Then Pat Nixon came to the podium, glaring pink suit even brighter under the quartz lights.

Rep. Glenn Davis of Waukesha cheered with Warren as the vice president introduced Nixon. He threw to the floor the unfinished crossword puzzle, 40 minutes of ink stains splotched upon it.

Strange Convention

"I'm stumped," Davis had been saying as Nixon's introduction burst upon the floor. "What's a four-letter-word for 'rush with gall through ire'?"

"Strange convention," state Nixon re-election Chairman John MacIver of Milwaukee had been saying.

"No one is in the aisles."

"How did I first meet Richard Nixon?" MacIver had said earlier. "Well, it wasn't until 1967. I'd never been involved in a presidential campaign; I'd run Warren Knowles' campaigns, but I'd never become involved in a presidential campaign.

"Then a couple of friends suggested that I ought to meet him, at least. His apartment was in the same building as Nelson Rockefeller's.

Elevator Stuck

"On the way upstairs, the elevator stuck. Someone reached for the phone, but then somebody else stopped him, said he shouldn't. What would happen if the fire department was called. What kind of 'non-candidate' would that make Nixon?

"So we finally got through to the janitor, and he got the elevator up to about three feet of the next floor, and we climbed out. We walked through an apartment and up to Nixon's place.

"We found out later that the apartment belonged to the William Randolph Hearsts. The people were very nice about it, though.

Out of such fragile contracts are strong political ties formed.

Capitol Steps

"The only time I have ever really met him, face to face, to talk to was on the state Capitol steps in 1959," said Assembly minority leader Harold Froehlich of Appleton, as he sat on the floor as a delegate, listening to Agnew's nomination.

"It was very early, before the campaign had even started. I was in college, and I got a couple of friends, and we went down to have a look.

"He walked right by and shook my hand and all I could think of to say was, 'we're with you all the way.'"

Davis, the veteran 9th District congressman is perhaps the only member of the Wisconsin delegation here who knows Nixon well. He is one of the few whose commitment is built on more than a genuinely sincere handshake with him. It is built on a philosophical agreement.

"When did I first meet him?" says Davis, chomping the unlighted butt of a cigar.

"It was either on the fifth of May, 1947, or the next day. That's when I was sworn in after my special election. I really got to know him when Don Jackson — he was a congressman from California — and I formed the Chowder and Marching Society," he says of the classic and most powerful of the secret social and political fraternities of Congress.

"In 1949, I knew we had to do something to kill the ranking veteran's pension bill that would have given everybody whoever served a pension for life.

"It was on a Monday, and I talked to Jackson on the floor of the House. We picked up and went out into the speaker's lobby and right then and there we picked the other 13 charter members of the society.

Other Members

"Dick Nixon was one of them, so was John Byrnes from the class of '45, and Gerry Ford from the class of '47.

"We were looking for younger guys with some guts. Most of the fellows we picked were fellows who had actually been in the service. We wanted good guys, the ones who we knew could stand up under pressure and who we thought would have some influence.

Nixon was already becoming

Consumers Paying More Than Ever Before for Meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef and pork cost more than ever before in July while overall supermarket food prices rose 1.8 per cent, the Agriculture Department said today.

Supermarket prices for the year are running 4.5 per cent more than in 1971, the department said.

Most of the gain was attributed to higher prices paid farmers and mark-ups by retailers.

The overall retail-food-price increase was slightly more than the 1.2 per cent reported Tuesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The department explained its meat index was for the entire month while BLS covered prices only in the first week of July, meaning prices rose through July.

Beef Price

In all, a "market basket" list of farm-produced food, theoretically enough to feed an average family for an entire year, cost $23 more than in June—a record of $1,322.

Average beef prices for all cuts soared to more than $1.17 per pound in July, compared with $1.13½ in June and the previous record of slightly less than $1.16 last February and March. A year ago beef was about $1.05 per pound.

Pork averaged a record 85.6 cents per pound, compared with 82.0 in June. The previous high was 82.1 cents in January 1970.

Compared with a year earlier, consumers in July paid 12.9 per cent more for beef and 19.9 per cent more for pork.

The July report showed the price spread for beef rose the most between wholesalers and retailers. Farmers received the same as in June, and wholesalers who sell carcass beef actually received a little less.

Prices of live beef cattle have dropped from recent high marks and the wholesale beef price also has edged down. Much of that reduction, however, was not reflected in the July figures.

More Cattle

Many administration officials predict retail beef prices also will begin to drop, but many expect them to remain higher than last year despite the large supply of cattle being marketed.

The farm share of the market basket was 77.5 cents, increased from June, the report said. But the spread between the farm and retail prices was 18 cents, the same as in June.

The farm share is not the price producers get for live cattle, but it is the share of what a consumer spends for a pound of beef. It takes almost 2.3 pounds of steer on the hoof to make one pound of beef at the meat counter.

Farmers got 5.6 of the market-basket increase mainly because of higher prices for eggs, chickens, eggs and some vegetables. Middlemen who transport, process and sell food accounted for 87 of the rise.

Compared with $528 in June, the farmers' share of the market basket in July was $541. The middlemen received $771 in June and $778 last month.

A dozen eggs averaged 49.6 cents per dozen, up from 45.8 cents in June. However, they were 3.1 per cent cheaper than a year earlier.

Compared with June, lower prices also were reported for milk, bread, tomatoes and lettuce.

New Indictments Filed in Slaying Of Yablonskis

WASHINGTON (AP) — New indictments in connection with the murder of Joseph A. Yablonski have been returned against four officials of the United Mine Workers union.

The indictments, handed down by a Cleveland grand jury Wednesday, allege that the four encouraged false testimony before a grand jury.

They are Albert E. Pass, secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19; William Prater, 55, Chester Pelfrey, 56, of Straight Creek, Ky., and Ernest Stults, 60, of Grimsley, Tenn.

Pass also is a member of the union's international executive board. Prater, Pelfrey and Stults are union representatives in District 19, which covers parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Pass and Prater already are being held in a Pittsburgh jail on other charges in connection with the murder of Yablonski, his wife and daughter, who were found dead in their Western Pennsylvania home on Jan. 5, 1970.

A total of eight persons now have been charged in connection with the slayings.

Yablonski was defeated on Dec. 9, 1969 by incumbent W. A. "Tony" Boyle in an election for the union presidency. A new election has since been ordered by the courts.

Assessment by U.S. Military

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — High Air Force officials believe North Vietnam still is importing considerable amounts of vital military supplies despite the U.S. bombing, and say American involvement in the war [illegible] the next several more years.

They also say they foresee trouble that if efforts to negotiate a settlement to the war fail, the American bombing from bases in Thailand and Navy aircraft carriers will last for some time possibly three or more years.

Small Groups

This assessment comes to a small group of newsmen. Whatever might was perhaps one of the more sobering reports on the situation since the [illegible] anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent of North's petroleum ammunition and other war goods—as compared with pre-bombing amounts—are getting past the American bombing and mine blockade.

They said it is obvious to sustain, on a limited basis at least, Hanoi's war effort.

And they say it is conceivable that if efforts to negotiate a settlement to the war fail, the American bombing from bases in Thailand and Navy aircraft carriers will last for some time possibly three or more years.

Small Groups

This assessment comes to a small group of newsmen. Whatever might was perhaps one of the more sobering reports on the situation since the North Vietnamese Easter offensive began.

Although the Pentagon repeatedly has asserted that the bombing would shut off the flow of war goods to North Vietnam, administration and military officials have claimed that the flow had been reduced to a trickle.

It was stated at Wednesday night's assessment that the amount of supplies getting to communist forces in the south has been drastically reduced.

Before the U.S. bombing of the North began in April, Hanoi received 20,000 tons of supplies a month by sea and thousands more by truck, railroad and pipeline from China.

Now the communists have only one petroleum pipeline from the Chinese border and are working on a second. U.S. planes have bombed pumping stations along the route but the North Vietnamese quickly rebuild the officials say.

Supplies are also coming in by sea from Chinese ships anchored offshore which are safe from U.S. air attacks. The goods are then transferred to small North Vietnamese ships and barges able to slip through the Vietnam minefields but unable to U.S. planes. Because of the difficulty in finding these boats, officials say enough get through to keep up a small but steady flow of war material.

Nevertheless, they say the bombing has put heavy pressure on the North and believe that this, coupled with Saigon's ability to hold its ground and force Hanoi into [illegible] of three options:

—Call off the offensive and withdraw its forces.

—Continue the attacks until losses of manpower and supplies become too severe, forcing a return to guerrilla warfare.

—Push the attacks even harder for a few weeks until after the U.S. presidential election in November and then press for a negotiated settlement.

Mrs. Maier Nearly Ousted By Democrats

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee County Democratic organization restrained an attempt Wednesday night by Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier's supporters to withdraw from the party because of the endorsement of President Nixon.

Mary Ann Maier, having complained about hospitality at the Democratic National Convention, made a seconding speech for Nixon's nomination at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.

She has said she intends to remain a member of the Democratic party.

Angry Milwaukee Democrats at a county council meeting fell one vote short of the necessary two-thirds to suspend rules and get a vote on an expulsion resolution. The vote to suspend was 36-19.

The resolution sponsors said they will try again at a September meeting.

Eight years ago, the council expelled an alderman who had endorsed Barry Goldwater as the GOP presidential nominee.

Is Laird the One for '76?

Convention Rumors Point to Potential Presidential Bid

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The talking on the floor is that the hidden story of the 1972 Republican National Convention may be the emergence of Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird as a prospective candidate for the GOP's presidential nod in 1976.

Some delegates talking with a number of other delegations during the course of the convention found a marked interest in Laird as possible alternative to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in four years.

One ranking national political editor told a top Wisconsin delegate — in the presence of a Wisconsin reporter — that Laird's possibilities were strongly propelled by the convention events.

Another Wisconsin delegate spent more than two hours deep in the restricted headquarters of President Nixon's campaign organization talking about prospects for Laird in 1976 — at the suggestion of a top Washington aide to Nixon.

Towns to Fight Floodplain Rule

SHIOCTON — Chastising the state Department of Natural Resources and federal governmental bureaucracy, a group of 400-450 people from four unincorporated towns in Outagamie County voted unanimously Wednesday night to join together, draft a resolution and present it to the state Board of Governmental Operations, seeking immediate relief from enforcement of the county floodplain zoning ordinance.

The ordinance was adopted in 1968 and says, among other things, that residences must be set back 75 feet from the water. It defines shorelines as any land within 300 feet of a stream or 1,000 feet of a lake, including areas subject to flooding from those streams.

The group also voted to have its county board supervisor bring a resolution to the Outagamie County Board, asking the immediate "cease and desist" of enforcement of the ordinance until the state and county get new benchmarks and floodplain maps drawn up for the four towns.

The meeting with state, county and local officials in the high school gymnasium here was called by Jay Kleiner, Town of Bovina building inspector, to protest the ordinance and to call for the resurveying of the area. Besides Bovina and the Village of Shiocton, other municipalities included the towns of Maine, Liberty and Ellington.

The resolution asking for help from the Board of Governmental Operations was suggested by State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, and State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton. They said they would "see that there is some action," and invited other area municipalities to join the protest.

Main Protest

While many speakers criticized the DNR during the three-hour meeting, the main protest concerned the outdated benchmarks and maps, which determine the boundaries of floodplain and floodway areas.

Another section of the ordinance criticized by speakers, including Conradt and Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler, was the length of time and expense needed to get a conditioned building permit, which is required to build in flood-zoned areas. Conradt said, "I agree that every time we want to build something, we have to fight, and it shouldn't be that way."

Woehler told the group that the meeting "is where we start — and I will do everything I can to support legislative changes at the county level."

People said benchmarks are often "four miles up the road." Lorge pointed out a major problem — the floodplain for the Wolf River, near these communities, is two or three miles wide in parts.

"Bad to Worse"

Kleiner cited the economic impacts of the large areas of floodplain: In Bovina, he said 82 per cent of the tax base is in a zoned floodplain. In Liberty, 71 per cent of the land is in floodplain, with 41 per cent of Maine's land in a plain, 19 per cent of Ellington and 70 per cent of Bovina.

Thanking the crowd for "showing concern for a situation that has gone from bad to worse," Kleiner said the four towns raised $704,500 in taxes last year, with $321,000 coming from areas in a floodplain.

If no new buildings can be built, he reasoned, the existing people couldn't afford to pay property taxes in the area. He cited, as an example, the $800,000 left to pay off on the high school.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the county zoning committee, told the group, "The map lines (for the floodplain zoning) are not anywhere near where they should be." He said they should ask the state to help get better maps, benchmarks and elevation lines. He added, "I can see a couple of points in the zoning ordinance that we can change — and I hope we [illegible] the DNR coming [illegible]."

He also mentioned the possibility of deleting the required public hearing from the ordinance and said, "We're going to look into this."

DNR Can't Budget

Al Shane from the DNR Green Bay office said the agency has no legal authority to set benchmarks or maps for floodplain or water shoreline purposes. The DNR can't budget for it, he said.

Dick Singler, Bovina town chairman, recommended that the towns finance new maps and benchmarks since the state is enforcing incorrect maps."

He added, "I definitely feel that the people (DNR) who imposed this map on us are the same people who should take it back and get it fixed."

He admitted that Bovina was not following the law all the way. "Our building in Bovina is really bad right now, and that's not fair to anybody. We're not going by law — but we're not going with a law we can't live by."

Ralph Gehring, a Bovina board member, recommended

Migrant Workers' Camp Near Waupaca Is Ordered Closed

BY FERN SMITH
Post Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — "Cucumber heights," the migrant workers camp owned and operated by Roland and William Huebner, Town of Dayton, must be closed by Noon Friday, Circuit Judge James H. Levi has ordered.

The order was handed down at 12:30 p.m., Wednesday, following a hearing on the temporary restraining order to close the camp which has been operating without certification since July 19.

As a result, 15 families, including 50 adult workers and 18 children must leave. They will lose an estimated $4,500 in wages. The Huebners stated that they will lose most of their profit on this year's cucumber harvest, with only two-thirds of the crop in, an estimated $10,000.

Appearing for the State of Wisconsin was James P. Altman, assistant attorney general. The defendants were represented by Atty. Sidney Meartz, Oshkosh.

To establish that migrants were living in the camp on July 19, Aug. 7, Aug. 18 and Aug. 22, the State called John Kostishack, migrant specialist for the Wisconsin Employment Service, and Henry Hoffman, safety specialist on migrant housing for the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations. Hoffman testified that a series of orders to make the camp suitable for certification had not been met.

Repairs Noted

Thomas Schirz, route 2, Rosholt, a limited term employe who was a migrant housing inspector for the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations and, who inspected the Huebner camp a number of times during the summer of 1969 and 1971 was a subpoened witness by the defendant.

He attested to a number of improvement orders he had written on the camp. In interim visits to the camp, he said, there was evidence of repairs made from time to time. "Most of the order were complied with eventually," Schirz stated under oath. "During that time I was also ordered to write up certain orders that some of the units would have to be replaced. I am not sure if they were officially condemned."

Roland Huebner testified that he and his brother William have operated the camp since 1966. Ten buildings on the grounds are now occupied. Repairs on the buildings, as set forth in a Sept. 8, 1971, inspection order withholding certification of the camp, Huebner said were delayed until May of this year when the Huebners received a pickle contract.

Upon receipt of the contract, the Huebners talked with inspector Hoffman, discussed the problems at the camp and what needed to be done to comply and be certified.

Work Reported

"We cleaned up, checked out screen doors, roof leaks, repaired plumbing and closed the worst units," Huebner testified. The brothers went to the Production Credit Assoc. for funds and started minor repairs listed in the 1971 reports, plus installing clothes hanging space and shelving.

Two recommendations by Inspector Hoffman, to make heating available and to change the foundation of the ground bearing walls were not followed, Huebner to [illegible].

Altman asked Huebner, "Is your camp certified? Is your camp certifiable and was it certified as of Aug. 17, 1972?" Huebner answered "no" to all three questions. Huebner produced receipts showing he has applied for certification within the past two weeks and contended that the buildings occupied by migrant workers have been repaired.

Asks Closing

Altman asked that Judge Levi close the camp in lieu of the testimony that the migrant labor camp has operated without certifications and the camp should have been certified 30 days before the camp was used by migrant workers.

Meartz told the court that the Department of Labor, Industry and Human Relations had permitted the camp to operate until "the 11th hour," that it made no effort to prevent occupancy, sat by and let the conditions exist and "scurried into court to disrupt the defendant's economic operation and almost gleefully take the homes of the migrant workers who will lose money if deprived of their homes." He further contended that the department should have been concerned prior to occupancy of the camp, not in the middle of the harvest.

Judge Levi said that other issues in the complaint, which includes the assessment of $100 per day fine, since July 19 to Aug. 25, for operating the camp without a certificate, will be

Plaisted Receivership Judgement Due

Claimants' Attorneys Expect Results by End of September

CHILTON — A final judgment in the matter of the Kenneth Plaisted receivership can be expected by the end of September, it was learned Wednesday after a conference between attorneys representing claimants when they met with Calumet County Judge William E. Crane.

The conference was held mostly to advise attorneys when they could expect the final claim from the internal revenue department. In the interim, the attorneys will prepare and file briefs on three legal issues: How much will be due the federal government in taxes; what claims to allow, and the final accounting by Lyman Precourt, attorney as receiver of the Plaisted matter.

According to Crane, no claim for income tax due has been filed with the court by the Department of Internal Revenue. However, he has been informed that it can be ready in mid-September.

Plaisted was reported missing by his wife, Priscilla, on Nov. 16, 1971, when they were on a shopping trip in Milwaukee. His car later was found abandoned on a street near his daughter's apartment.

Claims against the receivership total $139,000, of which $69,000 allegedly is missing from the Irvin Heus trust estate of which Plaisted was a trustee.

Calumet Hotline Looks for Members; Bylaws Adopted

CHILTON — The membership drive for the Calumet County Hotline, Inc., began this week when interested persons met at the Ebenezer United Church of Christ to adopt bylaws.

The group's main objective is to prepare an adequate number of volunteers to serve in the program. The program was formed to establish and operate a call-in telephone center to provide qualified listening, informational and referral service to persons in crisis situations; to stimulate public awareness of local needs concerning crisis situations through educational and informational services; and to search out and provide complementary services to further alleviate crisis.

Membership is free, voluntary and open to anyone from 14 years of age. However, parental consent is required for young members. All members automatically will become members of a committee and will be eligible to vote.

Officers include president, vice president, recording corresponding secretary, treasurer and five directors. Officers will be elected by ballot and serve one-year terms. Voting will take place on the third Monday of September. All annual meetings, except election meeting, will be open to the public. Regular meetings will be held quarterly.

$200 Grant

The membership committee consists of Karen Strassman and Lynn Dorn, Chilton; Mary Jo Shaver and Kim Bercherm, New Holstein; and Peggy Dorn, Kiel.

The group has received a $200 grant from the Calumet County Mental Health Association and is accepting donations to aid the program. Donations may be made by contacting John Sa[illegible], route 1, or Mrs. Joseph Schlaet[illegible], 302 E. Chestnut St.

Brock Brownrigg, coordinator of the Sheboygan Reach Program; Mrs. Janet Esler, a backup supervisor and Miss Jane Lubbers, an operator, demonstrated how to handle calls from an alcoholic or suicidal person at the meeting. They also explained how the Sheboygan telephone service works.

Brownrigg said Reach had answered 330 calls from Feb. 25 to Aug. 1 with largest percentage from people who were lonely and depressed. About 17 per cent of the calls were from persons using alcohol and drugs.

Increases

Venereal disease and pregnancy calls are increasing, according to Brownrigg.

He said that basic goal for the Reach program is to listen to the caller and get him to a referral center.

The Sheboygan program has 17 operators and is planning to increase that number to 45. Brownrigg pointed out that the operators were trained by the mental health center staff. Present operators are training new operators now.

The biggest problem encountered only one chronic caller to date. Normally the operator aids the caller in seeing other alternatives to his problem.

Fourteen county residents recently were awarded Crisis Intervention and Suicide Prevention Certificates at a luncheon which signified the close of a six-week seminar.

Lorge Has Threats for State Agencies

SHIOCTON — A Republican state senator Wednesday night claimed that the state Department of Natural Resources and the Motor Vehicle Department are playing political football with their positions and promised that "heads will roll."

Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, a 20-year veteran of state politics and presently serving as chairman of the Committee on Committees, echoed the attacks while attending a meeting of 450 persons, who were protesting DNR policies concerning floodplain zoning and shoreline management.

"Ninety per cent of those rules made by the agencies are illegal. They're not based on laws at all.

"But why do they (agencies) do it? They don't want the senators like Lorge and Reuben LaFave, who have fought on the senate floor for the little people, back in office.

"I didn't come here to make a political speech, but I'll tell you [illegible]," he said. "If I'm reelected, there's going to be some heads rolling in Madison. And [illegible] the state agencies, [illegible] the DNR."

He said the agencies work against senior legislators because they want to see the little guys who [illegible] where [illegible] elected."

Lorge's opponent in the Senate [illegible] Gerald McFarren [illegible] also attended the meeting and criticized the DNR and [illegible].

State School Head Criticizes Rising Costs of Education

Post Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — In an extraordinary publication, the state Department of Public Instruction has [illegible] critical [illegible] costs of the public schools [illegible] supported [illegible] taxpayers.

Vacation Conflict

[illegible] vacation schedules of the families of children and of school [illegible] vacation schedules of the families of children and of school staffs have provided the fatal obstacles to legislative consideration of an adjustment of the historic pattern of the school pattern in the past. The implication was that such a conflict will be a fatal obstacle again, as some oblique overtures among legislators with a total lack of public response have shown in recent times.

The study pointedly explained that some of the new cost increases of substantial impact in the last 10 years, such as sharply enlarged spending for school employe fringe benefits, resulted from new factors in school policymaking such as the extension of collective bargaining to the public employment sector and especially to local teachers. The evident implication was that such costs are not likely to be altered.

Ways to Cut

But it urged or cited as possible alterations more work toward cooperative purchasing of supplies and services, more efficient building through modular designs and off-site construction, the more extensive use of teacher aides to reduce the number of degree-qualified teachers needed, simplified [illegible], better organized support services [illegible] plant [illegible] and maintenance, and cited with approval a new trend [illegible] sharing the use of school plants with other local public [illegible] as a means of spreading the assessment of costs to other groups than the pupils in the school system.

It noted that some collateral services are now needlessly expensive. Much of the school nursing staff is used on purely clerical duty, the account said.

In surveying the factors involved in the explosive rise of the school tax costs of the state which have fueled rebellious taxpayers demonstrations during the last year, the study noted with emphasis that during the last decade the ratio of the tax dollar going into instructional services has risen and other costs have declined in relative sharing of the tax dollar.

In 1960 instruction took 57.5 cents of the tax dollar used by the schools. A decade later the ratio had risen to 61.1 cents.

Chilton Board Hits Proposed Athletic Code

CHILTON — The proposed athletic code for the public school system [illegible] more opposition and delay this week [illegible]

The committee which has been working on the new code for the past two years attended the board meeting to discuss the proposals. Differences of opinion [illegible] heated at times.

The most controversial provision of the entire code seems to be the policy of due process regarding penalties and violations.

First Offense

The proposed code states that the athlete must abstain totally from smoking, drinking of alcoholic beverages and illegal use of drugs while participating in a sport.

On the first offense the athlete would be suspended from the contest but he must attend all practice sessions. The second offense brings automatic suspension from the squad and forfeiture of any and all awards or honors that might be bestowed on him during the season of the team.

The [illegible] also becomes [illegible] other sports [illegible] concurrent with the one he was associated with when the violation occurred. Full eligibility would be restored for all sports in the session which follows the season of suspension.

The third offense carries automatic suspension from the squad, the loss of all honors and awards and ineligibility from all sports during the remainder of the year.

Heated exchanges about the procedure for informing athletes of their alleged violations were held between Michae Fitzpatrick, assistant football coach and chairman of the code committee, and board members, especially A. W. Larson, Mrs. J. W. Kraut and Supt. A. W. Gorder.

The proposed procedure calls for any reported incident or witnessed violation be brought to the attention of the entire squad by the coach. No pressure will be brought, but the squad will be reminded of its responsibility to the code.

The responsible individual is expected to voluntarily admit his guilt by reporting it to the coach and accepting the penalty. This action would waive his right to appear before an athletic council.

If the accused [illegible]

Face Accuser

Mrs. Kraut expressed her feeling that the accused should be able to face the accuser — that this is his constitutional right. She said violations should not be based on rumors or other sources unless the accused and coach know who filed the complaint.

Fitzpatrick disagreed, saying he feels it is the responsibility of the athlete to come forward.

Two committee members also felt that the accused should be named. They cited two instances in which they were involved with an athlete who was penalized because of a rumor and later the accuser did not appear to present evidence on which the athlete was penalized.

Mrs. Kraut also objected to the permanent expulsion from all sports and to taking away the awards the student had earned.

After considerable discussion Larson pointed out that the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association (WIAA) will be meeting with the Wisconsin School Board Association on Aug. 28 at Stevens Point to study the WIAA code and its legal ties. He suggested that the board await the outcome of this meeting to determine how involved school boards should get with the endorsement of athletic codes.

Student Insurance Okayed at Chilton

CHILTON — The high school's injury ratio under the WIAA insurance program is again below the state average, according to a report Tuesday to the school board by Schools Supt. A. W. Gordon.

Gordon explained that the report from WIAA indicated that during 1970-71 a total of $1,309 in fees were paid for a return of $1,126 in grades 7 through 12; and $1,787 in fees were paid for a return of $1,217 in grades kindergarten through 8. This is the third year in a row that Chilton has been below the state average.

The board approved the participation in the W.I.A.A. insurance program for another year for a total amount of $3,026. This is paid by the school district. Grades kindergargarten through 8 the total cost is $1.10 per student with 5 per cent for the summer coverage or a total of $814; in grades 9 through 12 it is $1.50 per student and 5 per cent for summer coverage, or a total of $976.

Three new teachers were hired to replace the three who resigned, the board announced. They are Jean Renk, who will teach 8th grade English, replacing Mrs. Pat Camera; Fred Klaser, who will teach high school English, replacing David Thompson; and Daniel Hartman, who will teach commercial education, replacing Mary Wepner. Miss Wepner and Thompson are furthering their education, and Mrs. Camera has moved from the district.

In other action, the board delayed renewal of the lease contracts with St. Marys and St. Augustines Schools because it felt the increase too high. A special committee will meet with school officials to see if a more satisfactory rental can be achieved. Rental at St. Marys went from $2,250 in 1969 to $3,500 for 1972. This year the school is asking $4,600, which includes three rooms, janitorial services and hot lunch program.

St. Augustines asked for $3,500 this year for three rooms and storage room without janitorial service. In 1971 $2,950 was paid. The St. Augustines rooms are used for kindergarten, and the St. Marys rooms are used for first grade.

The board also approved temporary borrowing of up to $500,000 for this school year because tax money owed to the district will not be available until after this year.

False ID Cards Lead to Fine in Waupaca Court

WAUPACA — Three Green Bay youths, charged with using false ID cards and off-premises possession of beer, had that charge [illegible] to disorderly conduct. His fine was $50, plus $9 cost, or [illegible] days in the county jail.

State Senate Candidate Walks Into Calumet to Hear Voter Views

HILBERT — Candidate Gary D. Dilweg walked into the village Wednesday morning on the campaign trail of the 2nd state senatorial district which started in Kewaskum Aug. 17. He plans to walk up the more than 200-mile route by Sept. 11.

The 200-pound, 6-foot-5-inch senatorial hopeful from DePere is quick to point out that walking is not the end. [illegible] years to the end. When [illegible] is spared, or the [illegible] is unkind, the former [illegible] climbs into a camper [illegible] by Arnold Bur and rides a while. The camper also serves as his overnight shelter. Tuesday night they stayed at the Hedrich Construction site in Hilbert.

Dilweg says he walks about 10 miles a day, and has lost about 20 pounds during the campaign. He says he has worn out one pair of shoes and believes that elevating his feet is the best therapy for them.

During the tour of the second district, which includes all of Calumet County, the only complete county in the district, Dilweg walks into all the businesses, up and down streets making himself known. He says he's too tired for partying at night. Tonight he will be at Brillion then will go on to Greenleaf, Wrightstown, Kaukauna, Little Chute, Combined Locks, Kimberly and Appleton.

Firearms Registration

Asked what people are concerned about Dilweg mentioned registration of firearms first. Men are constantly telling him that registration won't accomplish anything, he says.

Other concerns are property tax and the large chunks of it that go for schools. Dilweg believes that there is a lack of information and suggests a 12-month school year and vocational training the last two years along with a lack of [illegible] for some students. Regional planning also is a local concern in Calumet County. "They are not sure they will benefit," the 35-year-old Dilweg says.

Dilweg sees a need in Madison "for people who are not intimidated."

Along the tour Dilweg also is listening to those concerned about meat inspection. "In every town there's a meat market and this is their concern."

As he travels, Bur who is retired and friend of the Dilweg family, offers philosophy, encouragement and serves as cook, with his specialty being baked turbot, while Delwig prepares lettuce and tomato salads. Bur also is caretaker of the "curealls" for sore feet.

Airport to Get Alarm System, Updated Emergency Policy

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Disturbed by slow response during recent emergencies and prompted by its Federal Aviation Administration tower chief, the Outagamie County Board's Airport Committee Wednesday night agreed to include $500 in its 1973 budget for a port alarm system and named a subcommittee to update emergency procedures.

It was revealed that although there is a $30,000 crash truck and a 21-man volunteer fire fighting crew at the airport, it has taken up to 15 minutes to get emergency assistance, which often must come from the Appleton Fire Department.

And it was learned today, through Appleton Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl, that there have been times when, apparently because of equipment neglect, airport crash equipment probably could not have been used.

Kuehnl also was upset over the lack of training or desire for training on the part of airport volunteers.

Better Protection

Supv. John Dietz of Appleton, senior airport panel member and its past chairman, said he has been seeking better port protection for some time.

He made the statement after a reporter asked why so much time had passed with apparently inadequate emergency protection at the airport.

Dietz said expenditures for some emergency measures and equipment had been included in earlier port budgets.

He admitted that the gaps in the protection setup at the airport were potentially serious.

James Norcutt, FAA tower chief at the airport, was critical of the lack of proper emergency procedures. Tower operators are responsible for initiating emergency reaction at the port.

Norcutt recalled a recent emergency where a small private plane came in with a landing gear problem. It was 15 minutes before anyone responded, Norcutt explained, and then aid came from an Air Wisconsin employe in a truck.

Long Delay

With a 10-to 15-minute delay in getting the first crash truck to the scene, Norcutt warned about all anyone can do is "... just go stand outside and watch."

Dietz was upset over an incident last Sunday wherein two Appleton Fire Department units and at least two ambulances were summoned to the airport for a reported emergency that turned out to be nothing more than a collapsed front wheel that caused a small craft to stop nose down on the runway, with no injury to its student pilot.

The volunteer airport crash crew was not notified.

Norcutt explained that under terms of an agreement between the FAA and the county, the tower, when notified of an emergency — usually by a pilot — first calls the Appleton Fire Department, then tries to contact Airport Manager Max Sagunsky or some other port official, which might include an airport committee member.

Hard to Reach

Norcutt said that, partly because Sagunsky is employed only as part-time port manager, it often is difficult and sometimes is impossible to reach someone with authority to get intra-airport protection moving.

"You need some type of system where you can get right to the people who will respond to an emergency," Norcutt said. "We have to have one place to call and give the information," he added, on behalf of the tower operators. "We can't make a lot of calls after an emergency is declared."

Norcutt said the problem with relying on the Appleton Fire Department as the first line of protection is that it takes firemen at least nine minutes to get to the airport.

The cost of summoning the city fire department also was discussed Wednesday.

Sagunsky said the city had not yet submitted a bill for last Sunday's services at the airport.

$600 Bill

Kuehnl told The Post-Crescent today that the county would be billed $600 for the two trucks that responded to the alarm.

Under a city-county contract, signed in 1965 and since updated, Appleton is obligated to send one pumper and a crew of not fewer than four men plus necessary rescue equipment when assistance is requested.

The county must pay the city $300 for the first hour or fraction thereof, for each piece of equipment and $200 an hour for each succeeding hour the men and equipment are at the port. Other terms of the contract cover such things as the pilot's meal, food and supplies for the firemen, injuries and equipment repairs.

The Appleton Fire Department dispatched a pumper and its big rescue van to the airport last Sunday. The county will be billed for an hour's service on each of the two rigs, Kuehnl said. There will be no charge for two men and a car that also were dispatched.

The $600 does not cover the cost of sending two private ambulances to the airport.

Lack of Preparation

Kuehnl was critical of the lack of preparation for an emergency at the airport. He said there is a lack of enthusiasm in accepting the fire fighting training offered by his department to the volunteers manning the crash truck kept at the airport.

The fire department training officer has expressed his displeasure over the situation to Sagunsky, Kuehnl explained.

Kuehnl also was critical of the volunteers' lack of ability to properly use the crash truck and related equipment and the manner in which the equipment is maintained.

Kuehnl said his men have found the truck's water tank empty, battery dead and piping broken from freezing.

Norcutt admitted that it often turns out there was no need to summon the Appleton Fire Department, but under the current arrangement, that's who is to be called by the FAA tower.

Off Hours

Supv. R. Clayton Van Dyke of Kaukauna wondered how emergency reaction is started between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. when the FAA tower is not manned.

He was told that there are Air Wisconsin employes at the airport around the clock and port traffic is light after 11 p.m.

The $500 that airport committee chairman Supv. Richard Jahnke suggested be added to the tentative 1973 port budget would cover the cost of installing a telephone signal alarm system.

Norcutt recommended that three closed telephone lines be installed, one each to K-C Aviation, Inc., MaxAir, Inc., and Air Wisconsin.

3 Telephones

When the FAA tower is notified of an emergency, Norcutt said, it could activate all three telephones at the strategic airport locations. The ringing would not stop, he said, until all telephones are answered.

The three shifts of emergency volunteers are employes of the three firms located at the airport.

Jahnke felt the Appleton Fire Department should also get one of the airport "hot lines."

The committee also heeded Norcutt's suggestion that an emergency procedure plan be developed for airport personnel. Jahnke named Dietz and Van Dyke to study development of a plan. Norcutt and Sagunsky were asked to assist.

Mrs. Larry Riehl, Shiocton, captured all four top honors when she recently graduated from the city College of Cosmetology, Appleton. The large trophy on the elft combines three awards — outstanding student, best thesis and highest scholastic average. The other is the "Best Loved" award, voted to Mrs. Riehl by her fellow students. She is the first student ever to receive all four awards.

Migrant Facilities Termed Too Crowded

Migrant workers from Texas are living in overcrowded conditions at the Stokely Van Camp Co. housing camp near Appleton and it could mean some families will have to return to Texas.

Inspectors today checked the green-painted plywood houses provided by the company to find out if they met state codes.

The inspection was part of a statewide sweep spurred by complaints by the United Migrant Opportunity Service.

After a brief meeting with Gene Appleton, plant manager, inspectors Henry Hoffman and Wendell N. Lee, of the Department of Labor, Industry and Human Relations, checked the camp and the families with [illegible] an alleged [illegible]

But Appleton said such a use would be token compliance with the law because it is not realistic for children to stay away from their parent's home. State inspectors agreed but said this may be the only way [illegible] with rules can be met.

heard at a later date.

Following the court order, Roland Huebner reported that another 10 days will be needed to harvest the cucumber crop. "This represents about one-third of our harvest and we are just beginning to make a profit for our work," Huebner said. "It means that all of our work has been for nothing. This loss has been forced on us by pressures from Madison. We were not using the buildings which the orders were issued on."

The order will work a hardship on the 15 families now living at the migrant camp. These families include 50 adult workers and 18 children. Five of the families have been coming to "cucumber heights" since the camp opened in 1966.

All of the families had planned to work another week or 10 days and about half of them have plans to move on to another crop area. The others will return to their homes in Texas to get their children in school.

In dollars and cents it means that each family will lose an average of $300 for the next week, or approximately $4,500. For those scheduled to go to another crop area, it will mean finding housing for that period or another job.

Special Hours Listed For Voter Registration

LITTLE CHUTE — Village Clerk Gerald Lucy announced Wednesday that he would hold special evening hours from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday for persons desiring to register to vote in the Sept. 12 primary but who are unable to report for registration during normal office hours.

Deadline to register for the Primary is 4:30 p.m. Aug. 30. Lucy reported that he also has absentee ballots available for the primary for persons who [illegible] will be out of the village or that [illegible] day.

Absentee ballot application must be made in writing to the clerk. Persons also may cast ballots at his office up to the day before the election.

Steiger Not Interested In Governor's Office

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Rep. William Steiger appears anxious to scotch rumors he might seek the Wisconsin Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1974.

"I like what I'm doing and I want to stay in the House of Representatives," the 34-year-old congressman said in an interview Wednesday.

Steiger, a delegate to the GOP national convention, is considered by some Republicans as a possible candidate to the state's top office when Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's term expires in two years.

Two other delegates, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, and former Lt. Gov. Jack Olson also loom as potential candidates for the GOP nomination.

Steiger, a candidate for reelection this fall, said he thought he would prefer to serve in Congress rather than try for a state office. He served in the state assembly before his election to Congress.

"You make that break when you leave the legislature and run for national office," Steiger said. "It's very hard to go back."

Nixon Won't Let Anti-Labor Plank Stand in Way of Nov. 7 Landslide

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

MIAMI BEACH — When President Nixon learned last Friday that Sen. John Tower of Texas was mobilizing to add a "right-to-work" anti-labor union plank to the platform, he cracked his whip for the first and perhaps the last time to discipline the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Nixon, at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., instructed top domestic policy aide John Ehrlichman in Miami Beach to send word to the Platform Committee, using Rogers Morton, secretary of the interior and former Republican national chairman, as a conduit. Morton's instructions: Tell the committee's conservatives — particularly Tower — that the President insists on the strongest pro-labor plank in Republican history and certainly no right-to-work nonsense.

Moreover, Nixon ordered Ehrlichman to leave the definite impression, without stating it flatly, that the President would publicly repudiate any right-to-work plank that was adopted — perhaps in his Wednesday night acceptance speech, perhaps some other way. Tower promptly subsided, dooming right-to-work chances.

Greater Contrast

What makes this presidential intervention so remarkable is that the White House at the same time was letting the Platform Committee move rightward on busing, amnesty and other issues. In greater contrast, the Nixon political operation was extricating itself from the fight over shaping the 1976 convention, while the President cracked the whip on the labor plank.

The reason: As of this momentous week, Nixon is interested neither in ideology nor the future Republican succession. His sole interest is a landslide re-election, his new coalition of Jews, organized labor and other disaffected Democrats added to his 1968 support. Thus, the convention must do nothing to offend this new support.

That's why Nixon was so upset when he heard of Tower's efforts to endorse Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley law, permitting state right-to-work laws prohibiting compulsory unionism. Nixon staffers vigorously lobbied Platform Committee members, particularly members of Congress.

Expresses Sympathy

So, when state Republican Vice Chairman John (Slim) Wells of West Virginia introduced the 14(b) amendment behind closed doors Friday night, the congressional members descended on him. Rep. Bob Michel, a downstate Illinois Bourbon conservative, expressed sympathy with right-to-work but stressed that this was no time for the GOP to indulge itself in labor-baiting. Wells lost badly.

The labor plank adopted was a panegyric ("we salute the statesmanship of the labor union movement") written weeks ago at the White House. "It made me just a little bit sick," a Southern platform member told us. "But who's going to buck the President?"

As we reported earlier, the White House last week seemed to be supporting the drive by conservative party leaders from the South and West to maintain their disproportionate delegate strength for 1976. Nixon campaign aide Harry Flemming had been working secretly with the conservatives for weeks. He was much in evidence a week ago as the rules deliberations began at the Eden Roc Hotel.

Bars Intervention

Suddenly, Flemming was gone — called off by an Ehrlichman order barring any intervention on either side in the struggle for 1976 power. Since then, the President's agents have indicated they would like a compromise but have not insisted on it.

So Gov. Nelson Rockefeller got a sympathetic hearing but no promises when he telephoned Nixon campaign manager Clark MacGregor, replied only that he would be available for negotiations. But he did not press for a compromise or even inform Nixon of Rockefeller's call.

To further minimize White House connections in the fight, there were plans afoot Monday for the three Cabinet members who are convention delegates — John Volpe and Elliot Richardson (Massachusetts) and Rogers Morton (Maryland) — to resign as delegates and thereby avoid taking sides in a floor fight over delegate allocation.

All this greatly disappoints those conservative state party leaders, particularly Southerners, who expected Nixon's support in perpetuating their power in future conventions and his passivity in their plans for an ultra-conservative platform. This week they discovered just how narrowly Nixon's interests are focused on Nov. 7.

Lost Brother Found Too Late

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The two brothers lost track of each other in 1918.

Charles Brooks, the older accompanied their father from the family home in Healdton, Okla., to New Mexico to look for work. Henderson Brooks, the younger, stayed home.

The father died and Charles never returned home.

Henderson Brooks moved to Ventura County in 1941 and now owns a restaurant.

Over the years he tried to locate his brother, but never succeeded until last week — too late.

Henderson's wife came across the name Charles Herbert Brooks in the obituary column and began checking. She learned that the older brother moved to Ventura County eight years after Henderson and settled about 35 miles away from Ventura in the Simi Valley.

Henderson Brooks is in a hospital because of illness and wasn't able to attend his brother's funeral.

Nixon the Campaigner Is 'Running Scared'

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla (AP) — President Nixon, leaning over the wide desk in his White House office, set the tone for his re-election campaign strategy.

"Regardless of what the polls show, whether we are ahead or behind, this will be a close, hard-fought election right down to the wire," he told a group of newsmen three weeks before his renomination at the Republican National Convention.

"People who make predictions now could look very, very bad later. We are going to assume throughout this election that we have a very hard fight on our hands . . . We think it will be close and we hope to win."

Translated, the message Nixon is flashing to his political lieutenants is this: We're running scared. We're ahead now, but we expect that lead to slip. We're taking nothing for granted.

The Nixon strategy is keyed to combining victory in large, electoral vote rich states with sweeps in the smaller Midwestern and Southern states.

If he carries four big states — California, New York, Texas and Illinois — Nixon will have more than half the electoral vote total he needs. But his advisers say he should run so well in the South and Midwest that he could afford to lose one or two of the bigger states and still ride to an easy victory.

Nixon himself has indicated to aides that he considers California crucial to his re-election chances. That is one reason why Clark MacGregor has made two trips to California since taking over as campaign chief July 1.

Not All States

The President won't campaign in all 50 states, but instead will concentrate on the larger states with fatter electoral vote prizes. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Cabinet members and other administration officials will carry the campaign load to smaller states.

Ten days before the GOP convention began, a Louis Harris poll showed Nixon with a 57-34 per cent lead over Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee.

But this didn't budge the Nixon camp from its avowed caution.

"We were way ahead of Hubert Humphrey in '68, but we almost got beat," said one Republican strategist who, like most Nixon associates, remembers well the fast-closing Democratic campaign four years ago.

"Running scared is a good phrase . . . it's always a good idea to run scared," said MacGregor. "We are running as if President Nixon were one vote behind."

Good Campaign

Nixon himself has decreed that he wants the campaign to be a good, hard, clean fight on the issues.

A key factor in the decision to focus on the issues is the recognition that Nixon's policies seem more popular than Nixon the man.

"Let's face it," said one GOP strategist, "our man is not the political charmer that Eisenhower was."

But he ticked off polls which show strong public approval of Nixon's actions, especially in foreign affairs, and said: "We've got a good record. We're proud of it. And we're going to run on it."

The centerpiece of that record is what Republicans view as Nixon-initiated steps toward a new era of peace. Specifically, the campaign will make heavy use of the President's breakthrough trip to China and his follow-up journey to the Soviet Union.

Democrats see Vietnam as a flaw in Nixon's image as a peacemaker. McGovern, in his early campaigning, criticized him for failing to keep his 1968 promise to end the war and he seemed to place Nixon spokesmen on the defensive.

Initial Response

The initial Republican response and the track Nixon is likely to follow in the campaign was voiced by MacGregor when he said the President has "done monumentally well" in achieving his Vietnam objective. He cited the withdrawal of more than a half million troops from Vietnam, the drop in casualties and the reduced costs.

"I find the American people are understanding when they see that a candidate, once elected, does his level best to achieve each and every objective he outlined as a pledge or promise in the campaign," MacGregor said.

The campaign plea for understanding on Vietnam likely will be coupled with a sharp attack on those McGovern especially, whose statements on Vietnam are viewed by Republicans as undercutting Nixon's negotiating position.

Even before Nixon's formal renomination, the President's forces were striving to put McGovern on the defensive over his economic proposals.

Campaign Attacks

In a harbinger of full-fledged campaign attacks, MacGregor resurrected McGovern's $1,000 per person income grant suggestion and charged it "would split America permanently into a welfare class and a working class."

Nixon is expected to charge that McGovern's economic proposals would result in massive tax increases or require major, inflation-spurring budget deficits.

At the same time, Nixon will recite favorable economic indicators to contend that his administration is winning the war against inflation.

MacGregor indicated how Republicans will package peace and prosperity issues during the campaign when he said: "President Nixon has achieved the ultimate objective that every president strives for — more jobs without war and without inflation."

Nixon also has signaled his intention to make a campaign issue of the Democratic-controlled Congress' lack of action on major administration proposals such as welfare reform and of its tendency to vote more funds than he requested.

Different Congress

One Republican goal is to give Nixon a more tractable Congress if he wins a second term. As part of this effort, the campaign's radio-television advertising budget was cut by $3.5 million a few weeks before the convention and the money shifted to grass roots organizing where it can have more impact on congressional races.

Total GOP spending on the presidential race is estimated in the $30-million to $35-million range, including $10 million raised before a new law took effect April 7 requiring detailed listings of campaign contributors.

McGovern has challenged Nixon to divulge names of pre-April 7 contributors. The GOP campaign has refused, saying it has complied with the law.

The Democratic nominee also has been hurling Republican links to the attempted bugging of Democratic headquarters in Washington. It has become a source of embarrassment to GOP officials.

MacGregor's response to the Democratic charges has been that Republican campaigns are conducted [illegible] campaigning until after Congress adjourns in the fall.

Meanwhile, he will be tending to his White House duties. "The best politics for the President," says MacGregor, "is continued performance at the very high level of competence he has demonstrated in office."

Delegates Disappointed By Absence of Laird

Post-Crescent News Service

MIAMI BEACH — The Wisconsin delegation has been disappointed at the absence of Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who is reliably reported to be bridling under flat orders from President Nixon not to attend the convention.

Wisconsinite Laird and Secretary of State William Rogers have been told by the President not to become involved in partisan politics while in these sensitive posts.

Jerris Leonard, former state senator and head of the law enforcement assistance administration, is expected to attend the convention before it ends, however.

There is no report on State Department official Curtis Tarr, however, which puzzles some eighth district delegates. Tarr formerly headed Lawrence University and the Selective Service System.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pfeifer of Green Bay, the new national committeewoman from Wisconsin, found herself the subject of an accidental interview by Hugh Sidey, the White House correspondent for Time-Life Publications.

Sitting in the Wisconsin delegation on the convention floor, she was joined in an adjacent seat by Sidey, who thought he was in the Pennsylvonia delagation.

She corrected him, they began talking, and she found herself being interviewed.

He is writing a story on the workings and character of the "average delegate," and she "average delegate," and she was interviewed in detail about her background and beliefs.

Sidey reported, she says, that the Republican delegates here "are the people who make the country run."

Delegates to the Democratic convention last month, Sidey said, via Mrs. Pfeifer, were "dilettantes and drifters."

A cabinet wife may be on her way to Wisconsin to help in a special Republican state senate campaign.

She is Lenore Romney, wife of the secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Her target, if she makes the trip, will be Democratic Senate Minority Leader Fred Risser of Madison. Risser is being opposed by Mrs. Barry Smith of Madison, an active Republican in Dane County and a leader in the Wisconsin women's political caucus. She is picking up surprising strength from women's rights workers in the Madison area who normally vote Democratic.

Mrs. Romney ran into some Wisconsinites on the convention floor and told them that Mrs. Smith has been after me to come on there."

And it looks like she's going to be there, too, her husband said.

The publicity about the well-trained Miami area police force was widespread and generally accurate. But on at least one occasion, police stirred up protest response at the convention.

A platoon beat its nightsticks in cadence on the floor of a riot bus for several minutes in a potential confrontations situation, threatening to stir an even deeper reaction from the demonstrators nearby.

Alternates are not seated with delegates on the floor of the convention and Wisconsin alternates may have been a little upset by their seats far to the edge of the convention hall.

The first session proved that their location might be the best on the floor, however. It is immediately under the Presidential box, and the Wisconsin alternates found themselves sitting directly beneath Mrs. Pat Nixon, daughters Tricia and Julie, sons-in-law David Eisenhower and Edward Cox.

The Wisconsin delegates trapped in their rooms fronting on the course were treated to sights of beautiful birds blown onto the estate from the nearby Everglades, however. Monkeys roam trees on the grounds and taxi drivers warn, perhaps facetiously, of alligators in the larger waterholes of the roughest of the five courses at the club.

Despite the holiday atmosphere prevailing in the Wisconsin delegation, enforced by its entrapment at the club 20 miles from the convention hall and political excitement, the state delegation is leading a staid life.

There is less drinking going on, for instance, than can be seen in a comparable week in state government circles in Madison.

The security worries mounted as the convention week wore on. The driver of the chartered bus hauling Wisconsin delegates to the hall turned out the bus lights several blocks from the building and warned passengers to duck their heads and to keep them down, in case rocks were thrown at the vehicle.

Big brother is watching, dept.:

Television commentators sit in glass booths above the convention floor, giving them a clear view — and delegates a clear view of them.

A Florida delegate delivered a blistering protest one night that Walter Cronkite did not stand during the national anthem.

Delegates saw him spring to attention during opening ceremonies from then on.

Warren Optimistic About GOP Campaign

Post-Crescent News Service

MIAMI — With the GOP national convention at an end, first time delegate Robert W. Warren, Wisconsin's attorney general and delegation chairman, is looking ahead.

"With McGovern's 'polar' position on the far left of the political spectrum" he anticipates a big Democratic vote for Richard Nixon in November.

A landslide? "It's always dangerous to talk that way. But we can't hide the fact that we're ahead," he responded.

The Democratic candidate's "indeciveness in recent weeks," and the capturing of noted Democrats is forcing many Democrats to switch. He referred here to Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier's wife delivering a Nixon seconding speech. Milwaukee Ald. Orville Pitts being a "guest," and also of efforts by John Connally, LBJ Democrat turned Nixonite, to pull votes and personalities away from McGovern.

What is the veteran politician's reaction to his first convention? Exciting but perhaps not as enthralling an experience coming to an untested convention as it would be if we had a brand new race for president," he said. "I'd love to be in this spot in a real fight."

Warren, however, is not blase about the whole affair. "Nobody can come here without getting a thrill out of being part of the history of America," he said.

He admitted that he has not been overburdened with work. "I would imagine I would be really busy if there were fights," he added.

"I suppose you could say the chairmanship this time is sort of honorary. John Hough (state party chairman) and Stan York (administrative assistant) have done all the 'housekeeping'," he said.

State Delegates Show Deep Loyalty to Nixon

pretty well known through his work on the Education and Labor Committee, and through the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

"Twenty years later we had our anniversary in March of '69 and the President and Mrs. Nixon had us all down to the White House with our wives. Everyone of the 40 living members of the society came to the dinner.

What lifted Nixon from the Chowder and Marching Society to the White House Davis was asked.

Breaks of Game

"A lot of this business is just the breaks of the game and the timing of them", he said. There are other members of the chowder and marching society who had the same talent capacities, said Davis.

"Dick Nixon happened to be on the House Un-American Activities Committee at the time of Alger Hiss.

"Now if that same combination of circumstances had hit any one of a half dozen members of our group, I'm sure it could have happened to them, and I'm sure they could have developed into the same capacity that he has demonstrated.

"He was from a big state, of course, but take a look at John Byrnes. There is nobody in the Congress who has demonstrated a greater ability than John Byrnes, and that includes a number who have gone on to the Senate — and one who has gone on to be President," said Davis.

Nixon stood at the podium, voice breaking slightly, reminding the nation of his Moscow speech centered on a little girl who died in the seige of Leningrad in World War II.

"I ask you, my fellow Americans, to join our new majority, not just in the cause of winning an election but in working together to achieve a goal that has been the dream of mankind since the beginning of civilization. Let us build a peace which our children and all the children of the world can enjoy for generations to come," Nixon concluded.

In the Wisconsin delegation, the memories stretched back.

Davis reached into his pocket, and brought forth a shiny new cigar. He stripped away the band, peeled back the cellophane that drifted gently to the floor.

He twirled it between his fingers, then settled it unlighted into the side of his mouth with a swift bite.

And so it was done.

Byrnes Couldn't Pass Up Meeting

BY JOHN P. DOYLE
Post-Crescent News Service

MIAMI — Old political workhorse John W. Byrnes just couldn't stay away from the Republican National Convention

He indicated he was not sure if he would attend — this will be his sixth — but party loyalty won out and he said to his wife, "Oh, hell, Bobbie let's go. She was probably more insistant on coming than I was."

Because of the lack of candidates for the Republican nomination for President and vice president Byrnes' talk turned to 8th district affair.

He will not endorse any of the five GOP hopefuls, but it goes without saying he'll fully support the winner in November.

"I'm keeping time reserved to aid the candidate," said the retiring veteran of 25 years in Congress." He'll aid in the Presidential campaign also, he said. "But the 8th district is kind of number one in my book."

Concentrate on Congress

He's not slighting the White House, he went on, but said that because of Democratic disunity, labor and local Democrats will concentrate on congressional races.

"We must concentrate on congressional races," Byrnes went on, "because no president can do the job he's entitled to be able to do unless he has a sympathetic Congress."

Turning to the only major squabble to develop here, Byrnes said due to its complexity and "its late coming" he has not had time to study all the ramifications.

The debate centered around congressional colleague William Steiger's plan to reward states for party votes they produce. Steiger's plan called for a bonus to those states in which the party's presidential candidate does well, and a similar extra delegate bonus for those electing governors, senators and congressmen

Byrnes added, however, "there should be a premium of sorts given states which produce for the party. There's no sense giving an area a large say in the party, larger than its proportionate share based on population, when it doesn't produce for the party," he went on

Byrnes finally conceded "defeat" on federal revenue. Dispersal of funds to state and local governments. "We'll have a revenue sharing plan out soon. It's not important what compromise is reached by the joint House-Senate Conference Committee" because a perfect formula cannot be attained."

Each state has different problems, he noted. For instance, Hawaii functions mostly by state effort in all governmental areas, while in New Hampshire town government is overriding.

Byrnes cautioned about "being overly optimistic" about November's presidential election, conceding however "we do have a leg up."

"With proper effort and a proper campaign" Republicans can pick up a sizeable number of House and Senate seats in November, Byrnes added.

He also came up opposed to a quota system for future GOP conventions. He favors following an "open door" policy, a term which Republicans have stolen from the Democrats this year.

"How do you set quotas equitably," he asked. He indicated favoring making the party and leadership positions available to any one wlling to work and take part in the political process.

Byrnes won't be coming home right away, despite considering Green Bay his hometown and his retirement from Congress. He will remain in Washington at least until his two daughters finish high school, which will be in 18 months.

"I'll probably stay in Washington and try to do some consulting work," he said. "I do not intend to be a lobbyist, however," spiking talk that he'll take a corporate job trying to pursuade legislatures for his employers benefit.

There's not anything definite yet . . . there's no commitment" made on a future job when he steps down. "I've been talking with various people" who are interested in obtaining his services, he said.

Crucifix Pulled Off Church Wall

SHERWOOD — Two young men expected to appear in Calumet County Court today on charges stemming from a vandalism incident early Wednesday evening at Sacred Heart Church.

The men, one age 20 from Palmyra, Wis. and another from the state of Louisiana, were said to have climbed a crucifix and pulled it from the wall.

They were arrested by Calumet County police about 7 p.m. They are expected to appear before County Judge D. H. Sebora after being confined to the county jail.

The pair reportedly had been in a car accident before the incident occurred.

No damage report has been made available.
